STATES' VOTE ON REPEAL IS NOW ASSURED

Democrats Favor Dry Proposal In Caucus.

HOUSE TO ACT NEXT MONDAY

Rainey Sees Adoption by 20 More Than Number Needed.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Submission of the proposal to repeal the prohibition amendment was assured yesterday when House Democrats met in caucus and less than two score excused themselves from voting for the repeal resolution adopted the day before by the Senate.

The House will vote Monday. Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, who has given Congress and politicians throughout the country a new lesson about the sanctity of party platform pledges, on Monday will recognize Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), Illinois, party floor leader, to move suspension of the rules to consider the repeal proposal.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), New York, party leader, has promised not less than 100 Republican votes for the resolution. The nearly unanimous Democratic support plus the Republican support means that the resolution will be adopted and the question of repeal submitted to the States in the course of the next week.

Objections Brushed Aside.

House leaders brushed aside objections which some of the high and pure antiprohibitionists advanced on theoretical and ethical grounds to Section 2 of the Senate repeal resolution. Section 2 incorporated in the Constitution the essence of the Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting shipment of liquor from wet to dry States. Some wets have objected to that incorporation. They maintain it inevitably will mean the Federal Government will be coerced into launching an extraordinary activity to back up the declaration. Others argue that the provision merely means that the States shall have authority to stop shipments of goods which are contraband within their borders.

House leaders seemed to consider the objections of some of the purer of the anti-prohibitionists as somewhat academic, and the rank and file of the antiprohibitionists seemed to be so happy about the unexpected passage of a repeal resolution by the present session of the Senate that they were willing to welcome it as a long lost love they had been wooing for many years.

Representative Rainey predicted that the repeal resolution would be

PARIS THREAT TO AUSTRIA ON ARMS CHARGED

SECRECY IS BLAMED ON ITS HARSH TERMS

Cloaking French War Plans Against Italy Is Called Real Motive in Step.

Rome, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The Giornale d'Italia today published the text of what is called a virtual ultimatum that France, with Great Britain's adhesion, sent to Vienna giving the Austrian government a fortnight in which to get rid of arms and supplies allegedly concentrated in that country in violation, the paper says, of the Treaty of St. Germain.

The note was published in Paris, the newspaper said, but it did not mention when it was delivered. The note had been kept secret, the Giornale d'Italia said, because responsible French circles realized it was "excessively forceful," and do not wish to lay themselves open to public judgment.

[A dispatch from Paris said that the note was presented on February 11 and was mainly in the nature of a request for information as to the state of arms shipment in Hungary.]

The note evidently referred to the reported shipment of 40,000 rifles and 200 machine guns from Italy to Austria recently, although it did not mention the specific origin of the arms, according to the Giornale.

Charges were made by the Giornale that the real motive of the note was to cover the warlike preparations of France and her allies who were said in an editorial in Premier Mussolini's Milan paper, Il Popolo d'Italia, to be planning a military offensive against Italy.

STRUCK BY CAR, GIRL DEAD AND MAN HURT

Roosevelt High Student Is Killed; Auto Occupied by Four Youths.

The casual errand of mailing a letter last night ended in tragedy for a 16-year-old Roosevelt High School girl student, who was fatally injured, and her 55-year-old escort seriously hurt when they were struck by an automobile occupied by two boys and two girls at Georgia avenue and Emerson street northwest.

The dead girl is Barbara Burns, of 1120 Buchanan street northwest, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Burns. Harry M. Hucks, a roomer at the Burns' home, was injured.

William S. Phillips, jr., of 801 Aspen street northwest, son of a well known contractor, is said by police to have been the driver of the car that struck the couple. He and his companion, Meredith R. Jones, 19, of 1818 Kalorama road northwest, were detained by Sixth Precinct police.

Phillips was later ordered by Acting Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald held for an inquest at 11 a. m., today. The two young girls, Mildred Thompson, of 5101 Illinois avenue northwest, and Evelyn Berger, of 520 Quincy street northwest, were questioned by police and released.

As far as could be learned the girl and the man were crossing from the west to the east side of Georgia avenue when they were struck. Police believe they had mailed the letter and were going to a nearby confectionery store for refreshment.

George W. Barghausen, of 4014 Third street northwest, was waiting at the stop sign on Emerson street, preparatory to turning into Georgia avenue. He saw the car driven by Phillips go by, headed north, he told police. Then he heard the sound as the man and girl were struck.

Barghausen drove his car around the corner and came upon the crumpled bodies. He put the Burns girl in his machine and rushed her to Walter Reed Hospital. She was dead upon arival.

Another motorist took Hucks to the same hospital. He was said to have suffered a fractured left leg, severe shock and possible internal injuries. The Burns girl's body was removed to the morgue.

Phillips followed to the hospital in his own car after the accident.

Truckman Escapes Shot in Milk Strike

Milwaukee, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Intimidation and gunfire appeared today for the first time in the Wisconsin farmers' milk strike.

A Milwaukee truck driver, Harold Wolbt, was the target of a shot as he plunged his truck, loaded with milk, through a blockade of boxes and timbers on a highway at Cedarburg. The bullet missed and the truck safely passed the barrier. Cedarburg is far from the center of main strike activities.

In Outgamie County, stronghold of the Wisconsin cooperative milk pool, which is sponsoring the strike to raise the price of milk to $1.40 a hundred pounds for the farmer, several trucks were stopped and their contents poured into ditches.

King Willing to Head Committee on District

Senator Plans to Start Policy of More Self-Government.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, yesterday indicated he will accept chairmanship of the Senate District Committee after March 4 to succeed Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas.

He plans to institute a policy of greater local self-government, inaugurate a new program of economy, and sponsor a "more equitable" basis of local taxation, if the chairmanship materializes, he said last night.

As ranking Democrat on the committee, Senator King is first in line for the office when the Democrats reorganize the Senate. Until yesterday, however, he insisted he would not take the chairmanship, despite his broad interest in local affairs.

While his altered position is in no wise final until party heads parcel out the revised committee lists, the Utah senator, when approached yesterday, stated:

"I am inclined to think I will take it, if it is offered to me."

Senator King, also is ranking member of the Immigration Committee and the Committee on Privileges and Elections. He was represented as not wanting the former assignment, and preferring the District Committee to the Privileges and Elections chairmanship.

Although Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, both have been mentioned as possible successors to Senator Capper, Senator King has precedence over both. Neither Senator Copeland nor Senator Tydings have made a bid for the local post. The New York senator has said specifically he is not a candidate.

Senator Copeland is said to be in line for the Committee on Education and Labor, and Senator Tydings for the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs.

Senator King said yesterday he thinks there is need for greater local retrenchment in the interest of the District taxpayer.

He said he favors new taxes on in-

LEAGUE RADIOS PLAN TO CENSURE NIPPON

Tokyo Spokesman Declares Nation Can Not Accept Scheme for Peace.

Geneva, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The League of Nations told the whole world today by its own wireless telegraph of the plan of its leaders for a pronouncement of solemn censure upon Japan for her military action against China, and for a peaceful settlement of the dangerous conflict in the Far East.

Yosuke Matsuoka, special counsel for Japan, announced less than an hour after publication of the league's proposals that his government would not accept the recommendations for peace.

"There never was any question of Japan's accepting the report," he said. "To protect Manchukuo we must possess the chief town of Jehol. The only way to get peace is for the Chinese to withdraw their troops from Jehol.

"We will fight if we have to. I have heard that there are about 150,000 Chinese troops in Jehol, but one Japanese is worth ten Chinese. All Chinese soldiers are bandits."

Mr. Matsuoka avoided questions concerning Japan's plans for withdrawal from the league, saying he had received no instructions to withdraw.

"Nobody in the league wants Japan to leave," he said, "and Japan does not want to leave, but if the league creates certain circumstances, the

ZANGARA NOW SANE, MIAMI DOCTOR SAYS

Eminent Counsel Is Named by Court to Defend Anarchist Today.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Giuseppe Zangara—the man who tried to kill the President-elect—was declared sane today by Dr. E. C. Thomas, county physician.

The examination was informal. It was made several hours after Zangara's formal arraignment was postponed again while doctors exerted their skill to save two persons he wounded seriously—Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago and Mrs. Joe Gill, of Miami.

Mayor Cermak's condition was reported "satisfactory" late today and Mrs. Gill underwent a second blood transfusion in a desperate effort to save her life.

Woman Won't Testify And Gets 2-Day Term

A point-blank refusal to testify against the man she alleges struck her yesterday cost Ruth Rogers, of 223 First street northeast, a 48-hour sentence of contempt of Police Court.

Miss Rogers, according at Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz, accused John K. Wagner Charges Doak Reorganization 'Politics'

(Associated Press.)

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, told the Senate yesterday that, in the reorganization of the Federal employment system by Secretary Doak, of the Labor Department, appointments were made "purely on a political basis as political rewards."

Wagner made the remark in placing in the Congressional Record a magazine article reviewing a study of the Doak reorganization made by three members of the economics faculty of the University of Chicago. The reorganization was announced after President Hoover's veto, last March, of the Wagner bill, for establishing a Federal-State system of employment offices.

HENRY SLAYING WITNESSES GET DEATH THREATS

Philadelphia Gangster to Go on Trial Next Week in Capital Killing.

FRIENDS OF SUSPECT BELIEVED CALLERS

"Don't Know Too Much," Is Warning Received in Phone Messages.

Organized crime has challenged the sanctity of the District Supreme Court by threatening violence so as to muzzle the Government witnesses who are to testify on February 27 against Charles Harris, Philadelphia gangster, who goes on trial next week for the murder of Milton W. "Milsie" Henry, Washington gambler.

The witnesses, who are to testify in one of the few racketeer slayings in this country that has reached or will reach the stage of a trial, have been threatened in telephone calls "not to know too much, if you know what is good for you," The Post learned last night.

The threats have been made presumably by friends of the accused gunman, who the Government contends was sent here by out-of-town gangsters to kill Henry, who was murdered near Sixteenth and Newton streets on April 21, 1932.

First Time in District.

Though actual intimidation and attempts to intimidate witnesses have been made in other jurisdictions, this is the first time in the District, it is believed, that coercive attempts have been made to compel witnesses to distort their testimony.

So cautious has the Government been in its preparation of the case that in anticipation of terroristic tactics the complete witness list in the case has not been disclosed. Only those who testified at the coroner's inquest have been the subjects of threats.

The source from which The Post received the information of the menaces would not disclose the names of those who have received the threatening telephone calls, but adequate protection has been provided for them, it was said.

Voices of Men and Women.

The threatening voices on the telephone have been both of men and women. One of the witnesses, a woman, answered her telephone and a man's voice said:

"You knew too much at the coroner's inquest, you had better not have such a good memory at the trial, if you know what is good for you." Another witness, a man, received a similar threat. The exact number of witnesses who have been so threatened is unknown, and

2 in Gold Killings Accuse Third Man

Tell Police of New York Graphic Story About Arizona Slayings.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Two New Yorkers, arrested in connection with the slaying in the Arizona gold fields of John Hayden and Ralph Hart, veteran prospectors, today told police a graphic story of the crime, fixed the blame on a third man now being sought, then waived extradition and were held without bail.

Arizona officials were given 30 days to call for the prisoners—Daniel O'Connell, 28, and William Doughty, 32, both of Astoria, N. Y.

Their story in brief was that they had been unwilling witnesses to the shooting; that under threat of death they had been forced to dig graves for the victims, and that a $300,000 cache of gold formed the motive for the crime. The double slaying occurred February 7, near Yuma, Ariz.

German Proof Against Normano Put in Record

Boston, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Documentary evidence from Germany to substantiate that country's claim that Dr. Joao P. Normano, who until recently was a lecturer at Harvard University, was really Dr. Isaak Lewin, missing Berlin swindler, was admitted with reservations into the Federal records here today by United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney.

The Government alleges that Normano, who has been identified here by several witnesses who knew him in Berlin as Lewin, was the principal in a $750,000 swindle. He was remanded for a continued hearing two weeks hence.

STUART BARES BIG PROFITS IN INSULL STOCK

Explains How His Company Made $50,000,000.

DEFENDS PLAN TO RIG MARKET

(Associated Press.)

A Senate investigating committee was told yesterday that the market for securities in Insull investment trusts was artificially supported while the stock was sold to the public, after promoters of the companies made millions for themselves.

Documentary evidence was presented that after reaping enormous paper profits, organizers of the companies agreed to rig the market while they disposed of the stocks and bonds to the man on the street.

Tells Amazing Story.

The gray-haired, distinguished-looking banker was on the witness stand virtually from morning to night, and participated in the recitation of an amazing story of high finance through which his company realized paper profits running almost to $50,000,000 from the formation of the Insull companies.

Members of the committee found it virtually impossible to keep track of the mounting millions as they were told of Halsey, Stuart purchasing Insull stock for $12 and $15 a share, turning it in at $100 for new stock at $12.11 a share, which within a few days sold for $40.

Millions in Profit.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, asserted that several millions of the profit was in the nature of a "bonus" for transferring securities from one Insull company to another. Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, characterized as a move to "make the stock look better to the suckers who were going to buy it."

Stuart objected to that phrase, but agreed the transaction had enhanced the credit of the Insull Co., of which he was a director.

LIMIT ON CROP LOAN IS REDUCED TO $300

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hyde announced yesterday that $300 will be the maximum loan to any farmer from the $90,000,000 fund set aside by Congress for crop production financing.

In addition to reducing the maximum from $400 in 1932, Mr. Hyde issued regulations providing that farmers who are delinquent in repayment of two or more prior loans will be limited to $100. In order to conserve the fund, from which nearly 1,000,000 farmers are expected to seek assistance. The loan will be a first lien on the crop produced.

Congress authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to require acreage reduction up to 30 per cent as a loan condition, and Mr. Hyde said this will be enforced, except in the case of minor producers and growers of perennials. Orchardists will not be required to cut down their trees or otherwise reduce their producing capacity to qualify for aid.

Shortly before Hyde's announcement, Don McVay, chief of the crop production loan office, made a vigorous denial before the House Expenditures Committee that Government employes in his division had engaged in unusual political activities.

The committee was considering a resolution to require that accounts of the loan office be audited by the comptroller general. Chairman Cochran said he understood a field officer of the general loan office here had inspected the St. Louis branch, threatening employes with the loss of their jobs and then calling them together and advising them to vote for President Hoover.

"I was not in the regional office then and I know of no such activity," McVay answered. "No political material was distributed by the central office."

Cochran said he understood a district collection officer in Maine had solicited campaign contributions at the time of the Maine elections.

In Hyde's announcement, he said the acreage reduction requirement

Geneva, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—There was another clash in the world disarmament conference today over the old controversy about Germany's observance of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty.

Pierre Cot, French minister of aviation, referred to unofficial organizations in Germany which were giving military training. Rudolph Nadolny, the German representative, was on his feet immediately, asking M. Cot to explain himself.

The Frenchman replied that the question could be discussed more appropriately in committee and made no further explanation. Count Nadolny again expressed his displeasure, asserting that he was "unwilling to let pass unchallenged any slur upon my country."

HYDE STRIKES BLOW AT ALLOTMENT BILL

Letter to McNary Presages Hoover Veto If Farm Measure Passes.

(Associated Press.)

What the Hoover administration thinks of the domestic allotment farm relief bill was told for the first time yesterday, and it wasn't flattering.

President Hoover's Secretary of Agriculture—Arthur M. Hyde—wrote Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, that in his judgment "this bill would not afford substantial relief to agriculture, and contemplates such drastic regulation as to be impossible of effective administration."

This first official expression on the bill that passed the House more than a month ago and is now on the Senate calendar gave added weight to the belief of many that President Hoover would veto the much-discussed measure in the improbable event that Congress enacts it.

Letter Sent to McNary.

Hyde's letter, sent to McNary as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, dealt with the bill in the form in which it passed the house, rather than as it was favorably reported to the Senate early this week.

The same general principles to which he expressed objection, however, are contained in the revised bill, which covers only cotton and wheat, omitting hogs, tobacco, rice, peanuts and dairy products, items included by the House.

The Senate committee also struck from the bill all provisions for controlling acreage, and in this connection Mr. Hyde said emphatically that without effective provision for limiting production the benefit payment to the farmer would become "a pure bonus which would stimulate production and defeat the purposes of the act."

Would Tax Millers.

Under the bill as it passed the House, a tax would be levied on the miller, packer or other processor, to pay the farmer a bounty to bring this price for his domestically consumed output to approximate parity with the prewar level.

To receive these benefits, however, the farmer was required under the House bill to reduce his production 20 per cent, or in the case of dairy products to agree not to increase his output. It was this entire proviso that the Senate committee struck out, much to the chagrin of the farm organizations which backed the original bill.

ZANGARA NOW SANE MIAMI DOCTOR SAYS

for his defense and ordered him to reappear at 10 a. m. tomorrow for formal arraignment. His counsel's first step was to request appointment of sanity commission to examine Zangara, who says he has "beer" pains in his stomach and thinks he should kill all presidents and kings.

The specific charges against Zangara are attempted assassination of Franklin D. Roosevelt and assault with intent to murder Russell Caldwell, of Cocoanut Grove, Fla.; Miss Margaret Kruis, of Newark, N. J., and William Sinnott, of New York.

Florida is awaiting the outcome of Cermak's and Mrs. Gill's injuries before it charges the 38-year-old anarchist with a crime for wounding them in the barrage he fired at Mr. Roosevelt in the bloody finale of a celebration Wednesday night.

Zangara—his face gaunt and haunting—came into court unshackled today. He wore a light blue spotted shirt, open at the throat, and white trousers and shoes. He chatted with two deputies who stayed close by his side. The courtroom was packed, but there was no disturbance. Sheriff Dan Hardie stationed 20 deputies throughout the courtroom to see that Zangara received every protection.

Judge Collins kept court in session only five minutes. He announced appointment of Lewis Twyman, J. M. McCaskill and Alfred A. Rala to represent Zangara and ordered the defendant brought back into court tomorrow.

Zangara had said previously he didn't "want anybody to help me," but Judge Collins insisted he have the "best of counsel" to forestall any accusation that the prisoner was "railroaded."

Head of Bar Association.

Zangara seemed uninterested in the proceedings. After adjournment he was taken back to his cell on the twenty-first story of the Dade County court house.

His attorneys later asked the Dade County Medical Association to appoint a sanity commission to examine their client. It has not been announced whether their request will be granted.

They conferred with Zangara a long time today, but made no comment regarding the case. The counsel said they would decide Zangara's plea later. Asked if his plea would be insanity, they said they did not know.

Three Out of Danger.

Meanwhile as the judicial government of Florida geared its machinery to judge the hater of governments, physicians worked unceasingly to save Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Gill. The other victims of the tragedy are out of danger.

The Chicago mayor was shot in the abdomen and bulletins from his bedside during the day reported his condition as "very satisfactory." A bulletin at 5:20 p. m. said: "Condition satisfactory, comfortable day, sleeping most of the day." At that time his temperature was given as 99.2, pulse 84, respiration 24.

Dr. T. W. Hutson, attending Mrs. Gill said a laboratory report showed Mrs. Gill's condition was "favorable" with "red blood counts but slightly below normal and haemoglobin at practically normal level." A second blood transfusion—she had her first yesterday—was given later. The blood [illegible] centimeters of it—was given by J. D. Preston, her husband's cousin.

QUIZ FOLLOWS NAVY PAY CLERK'S SUICIDE

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17.—Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy, today detailed a board of investigation to conduct an inventory of the commissary store, in view of the suicide in Washington yesterday of Claude W. Hamilton, chief pay clerk in the Navy, who had been assigned to that department since October, 1931. This action was taken as a precaution, authorities said, and the store will remain closed until the probe is completed.

Lieut. Comdr. Earl H. Quinlan is senior member of the board, and others of the group are Lieut. Comdr. Dean H. Vance, Medical Corps, and Lieut. Homer B. Wheeler. The board immediately began its inquiry, and wives of many officers assigned to the academy, who are accustomed to dealing at the store, were surprised this morning at the temporary inconvenience to which they will be put.

Hamilton was found unconscious yesterday afternoon in his automobile in Potomac Park, Washington. There was a bullet wound in his right temple and a revolver with one empty chamber was found in the car. He died shortly afterward at Emergency Hospital, Washington. Police found several notes left by the suicide. One was addressed to his wife, another to his employers and another to "the press." The latter stated that financial difficulties led to the suicide, but no details were given.

Hamilton, who lived at 4725 Fourth street northwest, is survived by his wife. Funeral services with military honors will be held from a Washington funeral parlor Monday at 10 a. m., followed by burial in Arlington Cemetery.

STATES' VOTE ON DRY REPEAL IS ASSURED

adopted by 20 more votes than the required two-thirds. Representative Snell said that inclusion of section two in the repeal resolution would insure the favorable votes of 20 or more members who had voted against the so-called naked repeal resolution Speaker Garner forced the House to vote on the day it convened.

The vote in the Democratic caucus to support the Senate repeal resolution was 115 to 46. The total Democratic membership in the House is 220. Those who were not present at the caucus and did not excuse themselves by writing to Mr. Rainey before the caucus are bound by the decision of the majority.

But even in the number of those who voted against approval of the repeal resolution were to be found several who agreed to go along with the majority opinion of their party. That reduced the number of those excused from abiding by the party caucus to something like 30, which is 14 less than the number of Democrats who voted against the Garner repeal proposal on the opening day of the session.

Declared Acceptable.

Having nothing to do with the Democratic caucus, but of prime importance, nonetheless, was a statement by Representative James M. Beck (Republican), of Pennsylvania, that the Senate repeal resolution, including section two, about which there has been the quibbling, would be acceptable to the Republican wets, of whom he has been the leader.

Those die-hard drys among the Democrats who refused to abide by the dictum of their party's platform pledge included:

Representatives Browning, Tennessee; Eslick, Tennessee; Ellzey, Mississippi; Collins, Mississippi; Cooper, Tennessee; Doxey, Mississippi; Dominick, South Carolina; Driver, Arkansas; Goldsborough, Maryland; Greenwood, Indiana; Hare, South Carolina; Ludlow, Indiana; McKeown, Oklahoma; Mobley, Georgia; Morehead, Nebraska; Lankford, Georgia; McClintick, Oklahoma; Patman, Texas; Patterson, Alabama; Folk, Ohio; Rankin, Mississippi; Johnson, Oklahoma; Sanders, Texas; Tarver, Georgia; Wright, Georgia; Shallenberger, Nebraska; Swank, Oklahoma; Sandlin, Louisiana; Wilson, Louisiana.

Black to Speed Action On 30-Hour Week Bill

The establishment of a 30-hour work week in industry was urged upon the Senate yesterday by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, as a means of providing the "quick employment of million of jobless Americans."

He estimated that his bill, on which a Senate Judiciary subcommittee has just completed hearings, would "bring about the employment of approximately 6½ millions within a short period of time." Black expressed his intention of getting the bill out of committee and on the Senate calendar as quickly as possible.

BRATTON ECONOMY SCHEME HITS SNAG

House Conferees Adamant in Opposition to 5 Per Cent Appropriations Cut.

The Bratton amendment, directing heads of every Government department to trim 5 per cent from appropriations, ran into a stone wall of opposition yesterday when House conferees on the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill held out stubbornly against the proposal.

The amendment will be submitted to the House next week, without the concurrence of the House conferees. Several other major items in the supply bill and in the far-flung economy rider will be in disagreement, it appeared yesterday.

Despite unreconciled differences, both Senate and House conferees were hopeful of concluding deliberations this morning and submitting the bill to the House next week. The economy rider may be taken up in the House, item by item, with conferees making recommendations on each of the provisions.

Items in the rider on which House conferees can not agree with their Senate colleagues include abolition of the Bureau of Efficiency. House conferees said this should be put up to Franklin D. Roosevelt, when and if he gets proposed reorganization powers.

The Byrnes amendment conferring this broad authority to reorganize will be taken up at today's conference, along with the Garner plan to give him even wider authority to curtail the expenditures.

Conferees today will go back to the Senate's proposal to eliminate the $19,000,000 air mail subsidy, and the McKellar amendment providing for Board of Tax Appeal action on all tax refunds over $20,000. When adjournment was taken yesterday, they still were in disagreement on these items.

Yesterday's opposition to the Bratton amendment was based on the damage it threatens national defense, the wholesale Federal dismissals involved, and the belief the President already has authority to make the cuts if he deems them wise.

Third Sham Battle Ends Naval Attack

Saratoga Escapes in Fog After Successful Air Raid on San Pedro.

Aboard U. S. S. Pennsylvania, at sea off Pacific Coast, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—A third naval engagement in two days some 30 miles off Point Sur brought to an end today the Black Fleet naval raid on the Pacific Coast and terminated one of the most spectacular maneuvers ever held in the Pacific.

Escaping into the mist off Point Arguello yesterday morning, after a successful air raid on the San Pedro Area, the giant aircraft carrier Saratoga, of the Black raiding force, with the flagship Augusta and two other heavy cruisers, the Northampton and Pensacola, cleared all theoretical damage resulting from the engagement in the Santa Barbara Channel yesterday morning.

Disappearing from sight of the Blue defensive fleet after this engagement, the Saratoga and its three cruisers were not discovered again until 5:46 this morning.

Thom Requests I. C. C. To Retain Freight Rates

(Associated Press.)

A plea for continuation of increased railroad freight rates was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, who said the added revenues were needed now more than ever.

Thom contended, however, that the pooling arrangement whereby all funds derived from the increases are placed in a common pool to aid railroads unable to meet fixed charges should be done away with. The plan accumulated about $62,000,000 during 1932, he said, but if railroads unable to meet their interest payments without help were exempted only $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 would have been pooled.

Smith to Urge Cotton Curtailing Bill Today

(Associated Press.)

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, said last night he had arranged to be recognized at 11 o'clock this morning to ask immediate Senate consideration of his bill designed to cut 1933 cotton production.

Mr. Smith said he hoped for quick approval of the measure which would concentrate in a Government pool the approximately 3,500,000 bales of cotton controlled by the Farm Board or other Federal agencies. Cotton farmers agreeing to reduce production then would be given an option on an amount of the pooled cotton equal to the reduction in their crop. The option would enable them to buy at the present price and sell after August 15 without putting up money or taking any risk.

PARLEY OF 50 CITIES URGES R. F. C. LOANS

(Associated Press.)

Refusing to take a more far-reaching step proposed by St. Paul's mayor for economic relief, the representatives of nearly 50 large cities yesterday recommended to Congress that lending powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be broadened so that cities as well as States can borrow.

The need for an extensive public works program to alleviate unemployment also was reiterated as the mayors and other officials of the cities sought a way out of their financial situation.

As many of the mayors who came to the conference here yesterday, at the call of Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, as are able will go before the Senate Banking and Currency committee today with the resolution and a plea that it be given consideration.

A third important feature of the resolution provides that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation purchase tax anticipation warrants of municipalities.

In asking that provision be made for city loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the mayors proposed an addition to the present law to the effect that "any loans may be secured by a pledge of any unpaid or delinquent taxes."

Before adoption of the resolution, Mayor William Mahoney, of St. Paul (Minn.), insisted that "something more fundamental" was needed, and that "such meetings as this will only tend to have a demoralizing effect upon the people."

"Why can't we start industry up?" he asked. "The Government didn't hesitate to take over the railroads when they were in need. Have we no constructive proposal? Why can't we urge Congress to issue bonds—millions of them—and currency?

"What we need is to bring labor and material together to create new wealth. Why, in Iowa they use ropes on people who talk of foreclosures. You can't keep the people in a state of submission any longer."

The mayors perfected a permanent organization late yesterday to be known as the United States Conference of Mayors. They elected Mayor Murphy, president; Mayor Curley, vice president, and Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, Mayor William A. Anderson of Minneapolis and Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee, as trustees.

Byrns Raps Claims Of Two Candidates

Says McDuffie and Rainey Whistling to Keep Up Courage.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, a candidate for the speakership of the next House, said in a statement yesterday that candidates Rainey, of Illinois, and McDuffie, of Alabama, "are whistling to keep up their courage."

The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee said "the claims of Representatives Rainey and McDuffie as to pledged votes were absurd," and noted that "the combined pledges which they claim amount to six more than the entire membership of the caucus, leaving nothing for the other four candidates."

Indications are that the Democrats will caucus March 2 to select a successor to Speaker Garner. A group of leaders plan to force the caucus then through a petition if Representative Arnold (Democrat), Illinois, chairman of the caucus, does not call it for that date.

Hoover Signs $19,357 In Sioux Battle Claims

(Associated Press.)

The famous battles of the early West between Gen. Custer and Sitting Bull were recalled at the White House yesterday as President Hoover signed an act authorizing $19,357 for claims by Sioux Indians in North and South Dakota.

The claims covered losses of horses and guns and similar military equipment by Sioux Indians, whose descendants claim they were mere onlookers in the battles between Custer and Sitting Bull and should not have suffered because of them. Between 15,000 and 20,000 claims were filed by the Indians, but only 400 were allowed.

Senators Adjourn Inquiry on Overton

Howell Will Come Here to Report on Progress of Louisiana Charges.

New Orleans, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Investigation into the election of Representative John H. Overton to the United States Senate was recessed today to permit the Senate committeemen to return to Washington and make a report of progress. Chairman Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, said he expected to reconvene the investigation early in March.

On Monday the subcommittee, composed of Chairman Howell and Senator Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming, will report to the full special committee of five on the results of the inquiry in New Orleans.

The next skirmish was expected before the Senate when an effort will be made to get an additional appropriation of $25,000 to resume the inquiry in Louisiana during the interim of adjournment of this Congress and convening of a special session of the new Congress.

R. F. C. Relief Loans Go to Three States

Relief loans totaling more than $2,750,000 yesterday were authorized by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Kentucky receiving $2,600,700; California $86,000, and Ohio $54,660. The names of the Kentucky and Ohio units assisted were not made public.

Purchase of $800,000 of bonds of the Regional Bridge Co., Kansas City, Mo., was agreed upon yesterday by the corporation, the money to be used for constructing a toll bridge over the Missouri River, at Kansas City, Kans.

Taxicabs Grow Snappy As White House Calls

(Associated Press.)

Even on rainy days, when taxicabs often are at a premium, the White House doesn't seem to have much of a problem in this regard.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover yesterday afternoon had several ladies in for tea, and as darkness fell an usher picked up the telephone to ask for "two taxicabs at the White House, please."

A few minutes later he looked out of a window and found a string of empty cabs stretching from near the front door almost to the gates of the broad grounds of the Executive Mansion. Nine cabs answered the call. Seven drivers departed disgruntled.

ROBINSON OPPOSES PUBLICITY ON R. F. C.

(Associated Press.)

In direct opposition to Speaker Garner's ideas, the Democratic leader in the Senate, Robinson, of Arkansas, yesterday revived an issue supposedly settled by proposing repeal of the clause directing publicity for Reconstruction Corporation loans.

Robinson claimed majority support for his proposal, but several members of the independent groups indicated opposition. They refused to say definitely what they will do, however, until the measure reaches the floor. The Arkansas senator's bill was referred to the banking committee.

Most of the credit—or blame—for making the details of the hundreds of millions in loans that the relief agency has dispensed known to the public has been given to Garner. He insisted that publicity be mandatory in a law passed last summer giving the corporation additional funds.

Hoover Opposed Publicity.

President Hoover and members of the corporation opposed it. The Chief Executive signed the measure after saying he believed the loan reports would be held for the inspection of members of Congress only.

South Trimble, clerk of the House, put a different interpretation on the law and opened the records for public inspection.

Not satisfied, Garner then engineered a move to force the Reconstruction Corporation to reveal disbursements during the first five months of its existence. The House passed a resolution asking for them. The relief agency complied and these were made public also.

Serious Trouble Charged.

In a statement to newspapermen off the floor, Senator Robinson said:

"We are hearing from every part of the country that publicity regarding R. F. C. loans has been causing trouble with the banks and in some instances very serious trouble.

"It doesn't appear that the publicity provision has accomplished anything wholesome and it is my opinion that there is a general demand for a modification of the statute in this particular."

The present law provides that the corporation "shall make and publish" a quarterly report of its operations to Congress.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, campaigner for a law to legalize dissemination of birth-control information, yesterday hailed the results of a poll of the Senate Judiciary Committee as a big advance for her cause and "the best showing thus far made." The result was 9 against, 6 for, and 2 not voting.

Listed as voting for such legislation were Chairman Norris and Senators Robinson of Indiana, Hastings, Schall, Schuyler and Black. Against it were Senators Hebert, Austin, Ashurst, Walsh of Montana, King, Stephens, Dill, Bratton and Neely. Those reported as not voting were Senators Borah and Blaine.

BANK COMPROMISE MAY AID PASSAGE

Glass-Steagall Trade Would Insure Success of Blocked Bills.

(Associated Press.)

The possibility of a compromise that would rush through the closing days of Congress two important pieces of banking legislation were discussed on Capitol Hill last night after President Hoover summoned four House members to the White House for a conference.

The measures talked of were the Glass banking bill, already approved by the Senate, and the Steagall guaranty deposit bill, passed by the House last session. Largely because of the opposition of Senator Glass, of Virginia, the Senate has not acted on the deposit bill. Representative Steagall, of Alabama, is chairman of the House Banking Committee that has blocked the Glass bill.

Although the four House members who visited President Hoover—Steagall, and Luce, of Massachusetts; Strong of Kansas, and Campbell of Pennsylvania, Republicans—declined to say what they had talked about, many members felt certain the Glass bill had been a subject. Others thought the President also had asked passage of the measure Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, introduced yesterday to stop publication of Reconstruction Corporation loans.

The compromise most discussed would delete branch banking provisions from the Glass measure and insert the guaranty deposit features of that sponsored by Steagall. Such a bill could be sent to conference and the last differences settled there.

Express Rates Cut Because of Trucks

Eight Southern States Will Be Affected if New Scale Is Upheld.

(Associated Press.)

The Railway Express Agency yesterday filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission tariffs reducing rates on a large number of commodities between important shipping points in most of the Southern States to meet motor truck competition.

The rates, filed under the 30-day clause of the interstate commerce act, will become effective March 20 unless the commission receives protests and decides to suspend them. Otherwise they are effective without any formal commission action. The rates become effective between points within the States Monday.

Tariffs covering South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia were filed. They also are effective between important shiping points in Georgia and Jacksonville, Fla. The reductions all are from specific points to designated points within a radius of 200 miles of origin.

Clews in Boettcher Kidnaping All Fail

Family of Denver Man Despairs as Rumrunner Is Seized and Freed.

Denver, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—A despairing family waited patiently today for word from the kidnapers of Charles Boettcher 2d. Wearied authorities questioned and released a reputed rumrunners. Searchers beat the brush in mountainous country along the Wyoming border.

Arrest of Jack Stingley, 35, whom officers identified as a liquor runner, brought momentary hope to the family.

It collapsed when District Attorney Ray Humphreys, who said he had believed Stingley possessed valuable information about the abduction last Sunday night, ordered his release after several hours of questioning.

Secret Service Men Grab Him at Entrance to Roosevelt Home.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—A very old man leaned heavily against the Roosevelt town house just before the President-elect arrived today, scribbling something on paper. Alert Secret Service men watched him and noticed he edged closer toward the entrance. Finally they surrounded him. He smiled at them with twinkling eyes.

"Me?" he said. "I'm Tom Quillen, and I used to be a policeman. Now I'm 76. I wrote a march when Hoover was inaugurated; I've written another for Mr. Roosevelt. I thought I'd like to give it to him."

He exhibited the rolled music and the agents let him in to present the march to a secretary.

He thinks Congress carries too large a measure of responsibility in local matters, and favors legislation that would give to the District Commissioners broad power to act without going to Congress.

He said he also plans an inquiry into school conditions here.

Coincident with Senator King's announcement that he favors District income and inheritance taxes, Representative Carl Mapes (Republican), Michigan, announced yesterday he will propose his four local tax measures in the House next session.

He indicated he will revise his tax recommendations, after study of Bureau of Efficiency recommendations.

JUDGE OUSTER VOTE IMPENDING IN HOUSE

(Associated Press.)

A vote on the impeachment of Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of California, impends in the House following receipt yesterday of a majority report from the Judiciary Committee recommending censure and a minority report urging summary removal.

House leaders have not yet determined when the Louderback report will be called up on the floor for final action. Its consideration will depend upon the pressure of other business.

Ordinarily, the majority report would be voted on and its adoption would preclude a ballot on the impeachment report. But the committee agreed to permit the first vote on the impeachment resolution.

Majority Report Brief.

The majority report on the jurist, whose official conduct has been under investigation since last spring, was brief. It read:

"Resolved, that the evidence on the charges against Honorable Harold Louderback, District Judge for the Northern Disrtict of California, does not warrant the interposition of the constitutional powers of impeachment of the House.

"The committee censures the judge for conduct prejudicial to the dignity or the judiciary in appointing incompetent receivers, for the method of selecting receivers, for allowing fees that seem excessive and for a high degree of indifference to the interest of litigants in receiverships."

Impeachment Urged.

The minority report, prepared by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, was voluminous, listing five articles of impeachment attached to a resolution that Louderback "be impeached for misdemeanors in office."

The first four articles dealt with specific cases handled by the judge, the receivers and attorneys appointed, and his relationship with Sam Leake, a Christian Science practitioner. The last was of a general nature.

The majority report was filed by Representative McKeown (Democrat), Oklahoma, and the minority by LaGuardia. Chairman Sumners, of the committee, said he agreed with the findings of facts by the majority and with the conclusion of the minority that Louderback should be impeached.

SLAYING WITNESSES GET DEATH THREATS

authorities will not disclose their identities.

The killing of Henry was committed by two men in an automobile, bearing New Jersey license tags, issued in Camden County, which is near Philadelphia. One of the men, allegedly Harris, approached Henry's automobile and pumped three shotgun charges into his body.

Was On Way Home.

The killing occurred on Brown street near Newton street, while Henry was on his way to his home at 3620 Sixteenth street northwest. He died instantly. He was on his way home from a gambling place.

The exact motive for the killing of Henry has never been isolated from the multiplicity of motives which police say existed. His death has been attributed to his failure to "spring" John M. Kendricks, Camden and Philadelphia gangster, from the District Jail when he was awaiting trial for the shooting of a District policeman.

Accused of Kidnaping.

Kendricks was a bodyguard of Henry. The slain gambler also was accused of having kidnaped and held for ransom the outstanding gambling proprietor in the vicinity of Washington, but, when questioned, the gambler denied the kidnaping.

Henry also was known as a "stake" man for out-of-town criminals, who came to Washington. The "stake" man is the one who finances the criminal operations of a group and points out places for them to rob or hold up.

It was recalled at the time of Henry's death that his card was found upon Joseph Hays, Chicago bank robber, who was slain by a bank clerk when he tried to hold up the First National Bank of Southern Maryland, at Upper Marlboro, Md.

Reece Asserts Missing Bonds Left at Office

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—An answer filed today in Chancery Court for former State Insurance Commissioner Joseph I. Reece, who is accused of larceny of $100,000 in bonds from the insurance department, said the securities still were in possession of the department when he went out of office.

The securities were deposited with the blue sky division of the insurance department when Reece's predecessor, A. S. Caldwell, was in office and "were still so deposited with the blue sky division when this defendant went out of office on January 19," Reece's reply said.

HOUSE UNIT BACKS SILVER PROPOSAL

(Associated Press.)

Moving toward what some members labeled bimetallism, a House coinage subcommittee yesterday approved a tentative bill that could bring a currency expansion of $816,000,000 in almost four years through the purchase of silver by the United States Treasury.

Next week, said Chairman Somers, the measure will be submitted to the full committee for consideration. The bill would let the Treasury buy as much as 40,000,000 ounces of silver a month until the price of the white metal rose from its present 25 cents to 75 cents.

Under the schedule of maximum prices fixed by the subcommittee it would be three years and nine months before the top price of 75 cents could be reached. Meanwhile, the Treasury would have coined silver dollars with the bullion it purchased. The purchases might be enough to permit the issuance of $816,000,000 in silver certificates.

The new currency would be made legal tender and would be redeemable in the same way as the present dollar bill—in gold.

Opponents of this plan of increasing the price of silver to raise the purchasing power of the Orient, however, said they felt the issuance of that quantity of silver certificates might cause the value of the gold reserve to become enhanced.

That in turn, they asserted, would lead to redemption of other forms of currency that have priority over silver certificates, leaving the new money actually on a silver basis.

Thus, they said, the new money would be silver money leading to bimetallism without a fixed ratio other than the price the Treasury could pay for the white metal.

Somers, however, said that because of the tie between gold and silver there would be no resulting bimetallism but simply an increased use of silver.

ROOSEVELT TO MAP U. S. LEAGUE POLICY

Secretary Stimson to Keep President-elect Advised About Manchuria.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The future course of the United States through the troubled waters of Manchuria will be plotted by President-elect Roosevelt himself, it became known here yesterday. Secretary of State Stimson expects to be in communication with the incoming President some time next week, when he will go over with him the recent problems that have come up in connection with the undeclared war between China and Japan and the efforts of the League of Nations to stop it.

The league broadcast yesterday from Geneva one of the longest communications on record, the complete report of the committee of nineteen on the Manchurian situation. At 9 a. m. yesterday the text began to reach here and throughout the day until 10 o'clock last night, it continued to arrive. The complete report is about 20,000 words long and repeats in greater detail the recommendations of the committee which were presented to the league at its January meeting.

U. S. May Sit In.

The more important phase of yesterday's Far Eastern developments yesterday was, however, the report from Geneva that the league intended to invite the United States and Russia to participate with the committee of nineteen, in the formation of a committee of conciliation, to effect the peaceable settlement of the struggle between the two countries.

The action on this invitation will naturally be held in abeyance until the invitation is definitely received. In any event, however, it is the President-elect who will make the decision.

Officials here are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the negotiations going on in Tokyo among the leaders of the Government and the elder statesmen, with regard to Japan's withdrawal from the League of Nations. Such a prospect would make a profound revision in Japanese political life necessary and for this reason the developments of the other phases of the international situation are waiting upon the decision from Tokyo.

Roosevelt to Decide.

The United States had unofficially made it clear when American participation on the league's commission of conciliation first came up that such participation by this Government would have to be made with the consent of both parties to the dispute. It is not believed likely that any change in this policy is imminent, but nevertheless the accession of the Roosevelt regime is so imminent that Secretary Stimson preferred to withhold any comment on the probable American position until he had definitely discussed it with the President-elect.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat and probably next chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the league committee's report is too delicate a question for him to comment upon and indicated it must be passed on by President-elect Roosevelt.

JAPANESE CABINET AGREES ON POLICY

Tokyo Ready to Quit Seat at Geneva if League Adopts Censure.

Tokyo, Feb. 17 (A.I.).—The conflict with the League of Nations over Japan's Manchurian policy was the subject of a cabinet meeting today, at which it was understood the ministers decided to withdraw the Japanese delegate from Geneva if the league assembly adopts a prepared report censuring Japan.

Four decisions reached by the cabinet were reported as follows:

1. To reject the league's recommendations in the Manchurian situation.

2. To maintain the attitude set forth in Japan's observations on the Lytton commission's report, especially regarding recognition of Manchukuo and the stand for direct negotiations with China without outside intervention.

3. To issue a counter-statement if the league assembly adopts the recommendations prepared for it.

4. To instruct the Japanese delegate to vote against the league report and, in event of its adoption, to withdraw either to London or Paris to await further developments.

Adm. Pratt Is Winner In Essay Competition

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17.—Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, who will be retired from active duty February 28, has been declared winner of the annual prize essay competition conducted by the United States Naval Institute, headquarters of which are at the Naval Academy.

Admiral Pratt's essay was entitled "Lest They Forget." The award is a cash prize of $300. As the admiral already is a medalist and life member of the institute through awards in previous years, he also will receive a gold bar, suitably engraved in lieu of the customary medal, and the computed value of life membership.

Honorable mention in the competition which carried with it a cash award of $100 went to Lieut. Frederick J. Bell, for his thesis, "The Swing of the Pendulum." Lieut. Bell is now on duty at the local station.

LEAGUE ANNOUNCES CENSURE OF JAPAN

league may compel Japan to leave."

The conquest of the Province of Jehol, which lies between Manchuria and China proper, is the next item on Japan's announced military schedule.

Chinese spokesmen accepted the league's settlement proposals as vindication of their nation's policy. But difficulty developed with the Soviet Russian representative, who indicated that the government had little faith in the new plan for a settlement of the conflict which has disturbed the Far East almost a year and a half.

The settlement plan, drawn up by the representatives of the 19 principal league powers, is embodied in a report which will be presented to the league assembly next week, with every prospect of the full approval of all members and governments except Tokyo.

Reaffirming China's right to sovereignty over Manchuria, the report repeats the Lytton commission's conclusion that the Japanese military activities in these northeastern provinces have not been legitimate self-defense, and it recommends the early evacuation of Japanese troops.

Conciliation Proposed.

To seek a solution of the Eastern problem, the report proposes negotiations between China and Japan, with the League Powers and the United States and Russia participating in the role of assistant and umpire.

Meanwhile, the report would engage the signatory powers not to recognize the State of Manchukuo in law or in fact, and to continue to deal with the problem in concert with other nations, league members and nonleague members. Manchukuo is the government set up with the assistance of the Japanese to rule over Manchuria after they had expelled the Chinese forces from the province.

Other than this program of nonrecognition and noncooperation, the report proposes no measures for coercing Japan if the Tokyo government formally refuses to accept the recommendations. Adoption of further measures at this stage to insure execution of the league's will, leaders assert, would amount to uttering a threat.

They consider that Japan's reaction to the report must be made clear before further steps are planned. After adoption of the report by the assembly three months are allowed under the league covenant for acceptance or rejection.

MOFFETT URGES U.S. TO BUILD BIG FLEET

Admiral Says Strong Navy Could Have Prevented War in 1914.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—If the United States had had an "adequate" Navy 20 years ago, Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett declared tonight, "we could have prevented the World War."

As chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy Department, Moffett addressed the Naval Academy Graduates' Association of New York on "The Decadence of the United States Navy."

"Since the administration of President Wilson," he said " * * * our Navy has progressively declined. "If the interests and self-respect of the Nation are to be maintained, we must have an adequate Navy at all times.

"By letting the Navy become decadent, we are losing our self-respect as a Nation and the respect of other nations.

"We can not maintain our foreign policies; we can not maintain peace, and are inviting war by our weakness.

"Had we had an adequate Navy, a Navy commensurate with our rightful place and responsibilities in the world, we could have prevented the World War.

Similar to 1914.

"World conditions today are becoming similar to those that existed before the World War in 1914. * * *

"It never seems to occur to us, in our conceit, that another nation may declare war on us. We are too busy boasting that we are the greatest Nation on earth. We certainly have little to be proud of since the war, either as individuals or as a Nation.

"The United States has been an international fruit tree, shaken down to the tune of $175,000,000 in new ships at the Washington Conference, and to the tune of $11,000,000,000 in postwar debts. * * *

Cities in Danger.

"Bombardment of our cities, our country, by planes from aircraft carriers and other vessels can be made a reality in a few days after a declaration of war—perhaps a few days before—and the only way to prevent it is to have an adequate Navy * * * before war breaks out. * * *

"By allowing the Navy to become decadent, as it has become, you are risking not only the honor and glory of America, but her very existence."

He said the United States was "faced with the growing antagonism of the world."

All the Nation's vessels are undermanned, he asserted.

Bullet That Hurt Woman Found Under Mayor Cermak's Collar.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—When Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago was taken to the hospital here Wednesday night suffering from a bullet wound, a second bullet was found between his neck and collar. It had not broken the skin and there was no hole in his shirt or collar to indicate how it might have entered.

The mystery was solved today when Alderman James Bowler, Cermak's traveling companion, found a bit of cloth clinging to the bullet and began matching it with others bits of cloth. He found the cloth was from the hat of Miss Margaret Kruis, who had been shot in the head. Apparently, the bullet had passed through her hat and dropped down Cermak's neck.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS UNDER HEAVY GUARD

Hosts of blue-coated policemen and grim-faced detectives and secret service men, aggregating nearly 1,000, surrounded Mr. Roosevelt from the minute his special train stopped in Jersey City.

They escorted him across the Hudson River on a ferry and led him again through the welcoming crowds along the streets of New York.

Arriving at his East Sixty-fifth street home, the happy President-elect got a "hello" from Mrs. Roosevelt who came out to the automobile amid the crowd to greet her husband.

Happy as Victims Gain.

The thoughts of Roosevelt, however, were still with the five victims down in a Miami hospital who got the bullets of the madman intended for himself. He immediately got in touch with Miami and was cheered to hear news of progress by the wounded.

"I was made very happy," he told newspapermen, "by hearing from Miami this morning that both Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Gill are progressing favorably."

En route the President-elect emphatically gave word that no change was to be made in the inaugural plans as a result of the Miami attack.

Traveling northward through the day, the President-elect took advantage of the ride through Washington to talk with three of the men he has in mind for his Cabinet—Senators Hull, of Tennessee; Glass, of Virginia, and Cutting, of New Mexico.

Farley Heads Greeters.

No announcements were made. Senators Hull and Cutting are regarded as in the Cabinet. The latter is a Republican independent. A final answer is expected from Glass in a couple of days.

Early announcements of the Cabinet are believed in prospect. Otherwise, Mr. Roosevelt has his policies fixed and is ready to go into the White House two weeks hence.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, headed the reception committee which met Mr. Roosevelt at his depot in New Jersey. He and Roosevelt will go over in the next two weeks the men to be picked for other key positions in the Government.

Mr. Roosevelt himself would make no comment upon the Cabinet discussions. He said the conferences gave opportunity for discussion of the general economic and banking situation in which he is most interested.

May Aid Glass Bill.

Asked whether he would use his influence to speed the Glass banking reform bill through the House Banking Committee, he declined to reply. Some of his intimates believed, however, that the general principles of the legislation met the wishes of Roosevelt and if his influence was required it might be found.

Roosevelt also declined to comment on the prohibition repeal resolution adopted yesterday by the Senate, but his friends were convinced that he felt it met the Democratic platform by providing for ratification by State conventions instead of by State Legislatures.

It also is understood the President-elect insisted upon this change in the resolution at his January conference in New York with congressional leaders.

Leaving New York almost unnoticed a month ago, the next President was greeted as a returning hero today. Crowds were at every station along the route. Workers leaned out of factory windows to catch a glimpse of him. Crossing midtown a flutter of paper dropped from the upper stories of the towering buildings.

But it was hard for the crowd to get out a cheer. It could hardly find Roosevelt. His car was far back in the line of automobiles carrying the reception committee and police, instead of in front as usual.

McCarl Starts Probe Of Accounting Offices

An investigation into possible economies by centralization and consolidation of accounting activities in the various government departments was begun yesterday by Comptroller General McCarl, acting under authority of the Wheeler resolution, recently passed by the Senate.

He called on department heads for a statement of all costs entering into the keeping of accounting records, the maintenance of disbursing and collecting offices, the maintenance of purchasing and warehousing facilities, and other items. The comptroller must report his recommendations to the Senate on or before April 15.

will not apply to farmers who intend planting no more than 8 acres of cotton, 2½ acres of tobacco, 40 acres of wheat, 20 acres of corn, 2½ acres of truck crops, 12 acres of sugar beets, 8 acres of potatoes, 30 acres of rice, or 8 acres of peanuts.

The aggregate loans for tenants of an individual land owner will be limited to $1,200, compared with $1,600 in 1932, when more than $64,000,000 was loaned to 507,632 farmers, an average of $126. Interest will be at the rate of 5½ per cent, the same as last year, with the obligation due next October 31.

Borrowers will be required to agree to plant a garden for home use, and to grow a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply their livestock. A total of $1,000,000 of the appropriation has been set aside for feed loans for livestock in drouth or storm-stricken areas.

Hyde said that loans will be made only to farmers who are unable to obtain funds for crop production from other sources. No loans will be made to applicants with a means of livelihood other than agriculture, nor for payment of taxes, debts or interest or for the purchase of machinery or livestock.

Regional offices set up by the department last year at Washington, Memphis, St. Louis, Dallas, Minneapolis and Salt Lake City will handle the distribution of loans.

The department will be ready to disburse loans, it was said, in about ten days.

ROOSEVELT PAUSES HERE ON WAY HOME

Station Is Heavily Guarded; Confers With 3 Senators and Grayson.

Sliding swiftly under the city, the special train of Franklin D. Roosevelt coursed northward out of the tunnel in Union Station yesterday and came to a short pause in the spacious edifice that swarmed with an unprecedented number of uniformed policemen and Secret Service agents.

Anxiety occasioned by the assassination attempt at Miami has gripped officials and William H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, was in personal charge at the station.

Aboard the Roosevelt train was Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, mentioned for either the Treasury or State Department portfolio in the next Cabinet. The Tennessee senator boarded the train at Richmond.

Glass Boards Train.

Senator Carter Glass, the Virginian who was Secretary of the Treasury under President Wilson, boarded the train at the station here, as did Senator Bronson T. Cutting, New Mexico, Progressive. Both rode to Baltimore with the President-elect.

That the cards of politics were flipped energetically in prospect of the "new deal" was undoubted by observers here who sought the subject matter of the conversations between the three Democratic senators and the next Chief Executive.

Senator Hull, who left the train at Washington, admitted that the Nation's economics were discussed by the President-elect and himself, but he would not elaborate on the conversations. Senators Glass and Cutting would make no comment when they returned.

Cameras Are Examined.

Many believe that the Virginian and the President-elect came to an understanding as to whether or not the former would take over the Treasury portfolio, and that similar accord was reached with Senator Cutting as to the Interior post.

As the train pulled to a stop, strong police lines kept a scant crowd back. Even reporters and photographers were held at a distance.

After a few moments during which all cameras and equipment were thoroughly examined by detectives, the President-elect came out on the rear platform of the train, flashing a smile and exhibiting the unshaken composure he has maintained despite the Miami incident.

Among those standing with Mr. Roosevelt was Marvin H. McIntyre, one of his secretaries, and he was greeted affectionately by his two daughters.

Torture Kills Man; Posse Hunting Pair

Homesteader Set Afire by Drunken Robbers Who Wanted Money.

Tucucari, N. Mex., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Hours of agony had ended in death for Lee Marshall, 50-year-old homesteader, today and his indignant neighbors plunged anew into a relentless search for two robbers who tortured the rancher by fire early Wednesday morning in an effort to rob him of money he did not possess.

Writhing in pain, the rancher lived until late last night. Physicians said he would have been a cripple for life had he recovered. Sheriff Ira Allen took precautions to prevent a lynching if the men were found.

Marshall told officers and physicians two masked men, who he judged had been drinking, routed him from his dugout, threw gasoline on him when he told them he had no money, bound him with a chain, touched a match to his clothing and laughed derisively at his screams until he lost consciousness.

HUGE INSULL STOCK PROFITS EXPLAINED

when being questioned about his employment of the "Old Counselor" to advise radio listeners on investments, he excitedly broke in and shouted:

"You want to be fair, don't you? You are creating the impression that most of the securities we sold were worthless. We have sold worthless securities along with all other companies. But it is a very small percentage and we pride ourselves on our record."

The financier made little effort to reply, however, when Pecora presented a letter from Stuart's firm to Miss Evaline McNeil, a customer, recommending that she sell her Government bonds and buy other more lucrative investments, including Insull bonds.

"Did you tell her your company had a large stock interest in that company?" Pecora asked.

"Apparently not," the witness replied.

"Do you think that was fair?"

Stuart replied there was no reason she should not have been told because it was "common knowledge" and pointed out that the other securities recommended to her were still good.

Pecora, however, challenged the statement that Stuart's connection with the company was "common knowledge."

Inquiry Is Concluded.

The committee concluded its inquiry into the Insull case last night, with the exception of hearing one witness, and prepared to open next Tuesday an inquiry into the National City Bank, of New York, and its affiliate, the National City Co.

Chairman Norbeck has announced that Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board, and others have been called on for an inquiry into marketing of stock in the bank.

One of the final witnesses yesterday was Melvin A. Traylor, who said the First National Bank of Chicago, which he heads, had loaned a total of $18,000,000 to Insull companies.

Question of Violation.

Pecora asked if this would have violated the law against placing more than 15 per cent of a bank's capital and surplus in loans to a single individual.

"It would, if it had all gone to one borrower," Traylor replied, but he denies this was done because the loans were made to different Insull corporations.

Traylor said his bank had demanded more and more collateral from the Insull companies, and it was pointed out when the companies went into receivership all of their assets had been used in this way.

DIAMONDS that have a large surface area but are shallow in depth are known as "fisheyes" in trade parlance. They lack true brilliance because they permit light to pass through, instead of reflecting it. They are not comparable in value with stones of similar weight but better proportion and are therefore widely offered at cheap prices by irresponsible stores . . . Purchase of such stones can not be termed an investment because every diamond expert recognizes them immediately at their true value. That is but one of the reasons why diamonds should only be purchased from establishments of known integrity, experience and diamond knowledge.

GWINN W. RUST, 33, DIES ON OCEAN TRIP

Son of Realtor, Well Known in Social and Club Circles, Was War Veteran.

Gwinn Wheelright Rust, 33, son of H. L. Rust and the late Mrs. Josephine Wheelright Rust, and associate treasurer of the H. L. Rust Co., died suddenly yesterday on the White Star liner Georgic, en route to Nassau, Bahama Islands, where he planned a midwinter vacation to recuperate from a recent sinus operation.

Wireless reports from the ship's medical officer stated death resulted from diabetes, from which he had suffered for several years. The brief message from the vessel was a shock to Mr. Rust's many friends in Washington's younger social set.

Mr. Rust was born in Washington November 14, 1898. He attended St. Albans School and the Princeton Preparatory School. With the entry of the United States in the World War, he volunteered for active service and was enrolled in the Army Air Corps. After the war he became associated with his father's realty company. He was a member of the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs and a prominent figure in the social activities of Washington.

He is survived by a 7-year-old daughter, Rosalind, and his father and brother, Harry Lee Rust and Harry Lee Rust, Jr.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but services will be held at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church.

Magda Lupescu Arrives in Nice

Remains in Seclusion and Is Mum; Spent Night in Monte Carlo.

Nice, France, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Her red hair dyed black in order to escape from Roumania, Magda Lupescu, friend of King Carol of Roumania, arrived in Nice today. She is stopping in a hotel and is remaining in strict seclusion. Reports here earlier in the week which said she had taken refuge on the Riviera said it was the result of difficulties in Roumania.

She spent the night at Monte Carlo after crossing the border yesterday morning. She refused to talk.

Recent troubles in Roumania have included the barricading of railroad shops in Cluj and Bucharest by workmen who protested the detention of leaders arrested in a round-up of Communists. Troops were called in both instances. In the latest incident in Bucharest fifteen persons were killed when police and troops, after being held off 24 hours, stormed the gates and overpowered the barricaded workmen. A week ago, after an investigation of the posal department, bans were placed against Communist organizations.

U. S. NOT SO HARD UP, DAVID HOUSTON SAYS

(Associated Press.)

America was described for the Senate Finance Committee yesterday as "not so hard up" by an expert witness, who traced past economic upheavals and offered suggestions for improving business.

The witness was David F. Houston, of New York, Secretary of Agriculture and of the Treasury under President Wilson, one of a long line of economic leaders to come before the committee in its study of depression cures.

With him appeared John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who advocated a dictatorial board of emergency control with plenary power to take recovery steps as it saw fit, and L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, with other proposals for bringing back prosperity by aiding agriculture.

Houston pointed to the country's wealth as compared with world resources as indicating it was not so bad off. He saw the roots of the depression in the World War and too rapid expansion in agriculture, industry and governmental costs afterward.

To recapture prosperity he recommended:

Maintenance of the Federal credit and no tampering with the currency, and refunding of the public debt at lower interest when these were assured.

Revision of tariffs in the interest of trade, with America to get concessions, and discussion of readjustment of war debts, "provided America had some compensation."

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

AN even hundred employes, each with 15 years or more Government service to his credit, will attend the social gathering today at 2 p. m. at the Shoreham when a group of workers in the Veterans Administration gather.

Many are under the impression that the Veterans' Administration is of comparatively recent origin and that it was created after the close of the war. But the fact is that the bureau existed under the name of Veterans' Bureau and prior to that as the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

These veteran Veterans' Administration employes are proud of their years of connection with the Government and in celebration of the 15 or more years' service have arranged their party to include short talks, vocal solos and group singing, under direction of Mrs. Bella J. Howe.

M. COLLINS, director of finance, will be toastmaster.

The vocal soloists will be Mrs. Alice Neal and Miss Jack Charlton Ward, the piano accompaniments being played by William H. Holmes. Short talks will be made by the assistant administrators, Col. George E. Ijams, Maj. Omer W. Clark, M. M. Collins, director of finance, and Harold W. Breining; talks by Mrs. Kathryn J. Fenton, B. F. Myers, and Mrs. Inez M. Pugh, who was with the original Bureau of War Risk Insurance, will give a short talk descriptive of those early days.

The committee on arrangements are Mrs. Belle J. Howe, chairman; Mrs. Nancy R. Bauskett, Mrs. Katherine Phillips, Mrs. Cleo G. Moore, Mrs. Clara Selden, Mrs. Margaret Mey, Mrs. Julia Harding, Miss Marie E. Corredon, Miss Ann McGivney, Miss Bertha Gilliian, Miss Mabel Rowlands.

But the day was rainy. Pep was low. And besides, we didn't want it to "run out from under us."

IF we hadn't overbid our hand maybe we'd have made a better score last night at the General Accounting Office party. And if we were heard to laugh a bit often, you can say it was because of Louis V. Miss Elizabeth Galdmon, formerly Navy Department, and Miss Dorothy Ryder soon learned Louis is a heavy-caliber raconteur.

The ball was one of the most brilliant of its kind this season. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce ballroom was the setting for the colorful assemblage, which included among hundreds of others:

Bureau or department.....

There was a slight error in the directions for conducting the Diary Spelling Bee the evening of February 28 at the National Press Club, occasioned by omission of the word "not." The third sentence yesterday should have read: "The five who survive the first round will not participate in the second round."

More prizes are being rounded up for a contest, Swarmi Fedd tells us. And he should know.

ELY TO SURRENDER GEORGE CRAWFORD

Governor Says Virginia Has Promised Fair Trial to Ilsley Suspect.

Boston, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Gov. Joseph B. Ely today announced that he would grant the extradition of George Crawford, Negro, wanted by the authorities of Middleburg, Va., for the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Nina Buckner, in January, 1932.

Crawford was arrested in Boston for a store burglary and his fingerprints were found to tally with those of the man sought by the State of Virginia. Mrs. Ilsley, wealthy and socially prominent sportswoman, and her maid were found beaten to death in a cottage on the Ilsley estate, apparently the victims of burglars.

Witnesses from Virginia testified that Crawford had been seen in Middleburg the day before the slaying but not afterward. Crawford at first denied any connection with the case, but later made an alleged confession to a representative of the State of Virginia, in which he was said to have implicated another Negro, Charles Johnson, saying that the pair went to the cottage for purposes of robbery, that Crawford heard screams, saw Mrs. Ilsley, apparently dead, and his companion with a brick in his hand.

Later, at extradition hearings, Crawford repudiated the alleged confession and seven Boston Negroes testified that he had been in Boston at or about the time of the slayings.

Taking cognizance, apparently, of the point raised at the extradition hearings that considerable feeling has existed against the Negro in the community where the slayings occurred, the governor said he had been given assurance on high authority that Crawford would be given a fair trial and every protection of the law.

Rayburn Says Railways Must Help Themselves

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Rayburn of the House Interstate Commerce Committee said last night the railroads "must take the responsibility; and be willing to try to do something for themselves." He suggested that in many instances "reorganizations must come and fixed charges must be reduced before the railroads under any set-up will be made profitable."

In a statement on the report of the National Transportation Committee, the Texas Democrat said the major recommendations of the group including former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and Bernard M. Baruch, of New York, "are sound" and that their statement that the "railroad situation is not hopeless, is encouraging."

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Lucian Marler, his sister, Sheila, and her husband, Harland Reeves, are in Africa seeking their relative, Kaspa, the lionman, found as a child in the jungle by a llonesa, and raised together with her cubs. Kaspa had already been captured once by Jan Cloete, veteran Dutch hunter, and brought to Canada by Martin Sefton, where Kaspa was recognized as the sole heir to $4,000,000. He fell in love with a society girl, Madeline Moore, but because he learned that Sefton also loved her and because he was fed up with civilization, Kaspa had gone back to the jungle. The relatives are seeking him because they want his inheritance if he's dead. Lucian and Reeves have entered a conspiracy with Loudon Grant, unscrupulous commissioner, who forces Cloete to agree to shoot Kaspa on sight. Madeline, who is seeking her lover, and Sefton are also with the party. They get separated from the others in the forest, and are attacked by baboons, when Kaspa rushes out of the trees and saves them. Before Madeline can say anything, he disappears again in the forest.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

TOWARD morning Reeves awoke and lay listening to the hunting call of the lions. He thought of Kaspa's warning, and felt that he must be on guard. He wanted to meet Kaspa face to face and settle the matter once and for all—that was what he had come to Africa for.

It would be simple, thought Reeves, to creep up on the lions and surprise them at the feast. He slipped quietly into shorts and boots, and, taking the rifle from beside his bed, stole out into the night. Without worrying about the direction of the wind or the lie of the country, Reeves strode out upon the veld, intent upon finding his enemy and bringing matters to a conclusion. The best defense was attacked, he maintained, and he was not going to lie down under the insults of a creature no better than an animal.

Reeves was no coward, but he did not realize the danger he ran. Had he done so he would have thought twice about tackling a lion pack single handed in the dark. Every story he had heard confirmed his opinion that the man with the rifle was in an unassailable position, providing he kept his head and shot straight. He had made many a sortie into no-man's-land in the old days, and since he had not bombs, machine guns and shrapnel to contend with in this occasion he felt confident of his ability to escape scathless from the encounter he hoped to provoke.

The idea that he was soon to be surrounded by half a dozen noiseless, furtive beasts, who could kill him at a blow without his being aware of their presence did not occur to him. The affair was between Kaspa and himself, and he visualized a stand-up fight in which his rifle would be pitted against the speed and strength of his antagonist. The low grunts that reverberated upon the still air at intervals gave him his direction, and at the end of a mile of sharp walking he came to a grassy hollow wherein huge beasts fed under a pall of mist. He could hear the scrunching and lapping of their great jaws within a few yards, and by sheer luck the wind that carried these sounds was blowing strongly in his face.

He stood there gripping the rifle, peering into the mist wreaths which blew over the hills toward him, uncertain what course to pursue. He supposed that Kaspa was with the lions, but he was by no means certain of it. It seemed he must go forward to the kill, holding the rifle ready to shoot the first beast he saw. Cloete had told him of adventures similar to this. It seemed that the lions would not attack you unless they were wounded, and that if you dropped one the others would clear off and leave their comrade to its fate. He intended to make himself master of the kill, and if there was any dispute about the matter, so much the worse for the lions. He stepped forward slowly, striving to penetrate the gloom that rendered everything invisible at a distance of six paces from his eyes.

Immediately he entered the hollow there was a sharp "woof" of alarm succeeded by dead silence. The lions were aware of him, and he pictured them crouched over the kill, watching to see what creature would appear out of the mist. He became slightly uneasy as he thought that Kaspa might well incite the whole pack to go for him. That thought had not occurred to him before. He had been so obsessed with the wish to meet the lion-man that he considered the lions as no more than spectators of the combat. Now he felt the presence of huge ferocious beasts within a few yards of him, and a frightening sense of his own littleness descended upon him, as cold and clammy as the mist.

A little human figure, alone in the night among the things that called the night their friend! He had been a fool to tackle this job singlehanded, but there was no turning back now; his self-respect was at stake. All the same, he wished the brutes would clear off and leave him free to return to the comfort of the camp fire and the society of his fellow adventurers.

Step by step he advanced, the rifle trembling slightly in his grasp. A voice came suddenly out of the obscurity, a low, husky voice that made Reeves jump, until he recognized it. "If that is a man, let him turn back before we kill him." Reeves felt an intense relief. He was not nearly as much afraid of Kaspa as he was of the silent lions. "I'm looking for you," he said belligerently. "I got your message, and I've come to argue the matter out with you. Come forward and show yourself."

A low laugh reached him.

"You have a rifle, I suppose, and you wish me to offer myself as a target. Is there any one with you, Reeves?"

"No, I'm alone," the stock broker answered. "I want to settle this thing man to man."

"Man to lion," Kaspa corrected. "You will fight with man's weapons according to man's custom, and I will fight like a lion. All right, Reeves, look out! You will never reach your camp alive."

Reeves laughed sardonically. "You don't frighten me!" he cried. "Tell your lion friend to stand back, and come forward yourself. I want to see you charge me like you did once before. I'd have stopped you that time if I'd had something more than a popgun."

There was no answer; the wind soughed mournfully through the grass, and near by a little veld bird spoke hopefully of the coming dawn. Reeves listened intently. The silence got on his nerves. He supposed Kaspa was crouching there waiting for him to make the first move.

All right, he would not disappoint him. He walked forward rapidly, holding his rifle at the ready. He stopped suddenly before the half-eaten carcass of a zebra. There was no sign of the lions. The body was still warm, and he could see the huge footprints of the carnivora in the soil about the kill. The sight of that spoor dismayed him; it was indicative of the size and strength of the creatures that made it. They must be bigger than any lions he had seen in a menagerie. He glared round him, ready to defend himself. There was nothing visible but the moonlit mist swirling along the grass.

Reeves shuddered suddenly. He was a fool to stand there exposing himself to his enemies. Why didn't Kaspa come out and fight? He had not thought the fellow a coward. He shouted an insulting challenge into the mist, and afar off, as it seemed, a huge voice moaned, "Aar-gh, aar-gh aargh," in reply.

Reeves ran up out of the hollow. Suddenly he knew that they were all about him, great slouching things with red eyes of hate, hearing and seeing him without difficulty, while he groped in that silver obscurity as helpless as a blind man. He headed down hill, walking with long, hasty strides, seeking the camp, and the security of lamps and fires. Deep, mournful voices moaned and grunted out of the mist ahead. He stopped and, turning at right angles, started off anew in a long detour. He had not gone far before again he heard those sounds in front.

He stood to wipe the sweat from his brow with the sleeve of his shirt. He was being hunted like a buck; he knew it instinctively. Kaspa had said that he would never reach the camp alive. It occurred to him that any one of those silent-footed demons might come charging out of the mist to strike him to the ground before he had time to level his rifle. He realized the terrible capabilities of lions in the night upon their own hunting ground. How deluded he had been in thinking man invincible with the weapons of civilization! Kaspa had said he would fight with the weapons of lions, and Reeves was more helpless against these tactics than the smallest buck that ran panic-stricken from those blood-curdling voices. He sat down upon a grass-covered ant hill and determined to sell his life as dearly as possible. He would get one of the brutes anyway before he was overwhelmed.

There was an ear-shattering roar and some great beast came rushing toward him through the mist. He leaped to his feet and threw up his rifle, ready to shoot immediately the attacker became visible, but nothing materialized; the lion did not push home his charge. In the ensuing silence Reeves found that he was holding his breath. He expelled it in a great shout: "Kaspa, call off your lions! This is between us two alone." There was no answer, and the little veld bird began again to cheer on the reluctant dawn with his sweet, melancholy notes.

"I won't be stampeded like a zebra," said Reeves to himself; 'I'll walk straight on, and if they want to attack me they can do so. I know they've got me beat. I may as well die game." He pushed on toward the camp, and this time, when those warning grunts sounded ahead of him, he did not turn back, but strode forward ready to shoot his way out of the ambush. He saw nothing, but once he dipped down into a shallow donga something dashed out of the mist and actually brushed against his legs. He spun around, but there was nothing to shoot at. That incident reassured him somewhat.

The lion could have killed him without risk to itself, and the fact that it had not done so proved that Kaspa had been bluffing. He could not be harmed on this occasion; he was being warned, and he made up his mind to accept the warning. It was now plain to him that if he stayed in this locality his life was forfeited. Kaspa could kill him in a dozen different ways; by night as he slept, by day as he went abroad in the bush. His enemy might lie up in any piece of bush or grass and strike him down as he passed by. The odds were all in the lion-man's favor.

Reeves struck into the little game-path beside the stream and hurried onward, thanking his luck that he had not gone astray in the dark. The dawn was now breaking, the mist becoming lighter and less opaque; he could see bushes and rocks on either hand. His nearness to camp did not cause him to relax his vigilance, however; he kept wary eyes upon the surrounding shrubs, and so intent was he on guarding against a sudden attack that he did not notice a slim figure approaching along the trail. This was Madeline, who had awakened and, influenced by the hope that she might encounter Kaspa, or at least hear something of his hunting, had strolled out along the stream.

Hotel banquet waiters who start the tip-plate with a 50-cent piece of their own . . . Shoe shine artists in subway stations . . . The carousel man who tours the east side, his diminutive merry-go-round being pulled around by an underfed horse . . . What a vocation that must be—refilling the chewing gum slots in the subway.

The gray-haired clerk in a Fifth avenue cigar store who likes to recall the time when the reservoir stood where the Public Library now is located . . . The pilot of a Staten Island ferry who owns a chicken farm in Connecticut . . . And a deckhand on the Statue of Liberty ferry who speaks five languages.

Pushcarts piled high with Egyptian dates . . . Faith Bacon, who has much the same type of beauty as Imogene "Bubbles" Wilson (Mary Nolan) . . . Gray-haired dowagers who still ride along Park avenue in their Victoria carriages.

Those chorus girls with the impossible names? . . . Arguments between dog owners at Central Park Reservoir as to the respective merits of their respective pets . . . The police reporter who picks up an extra bob now and then by lecturing on Robert Browning.

Talkative Taxi Drivers.

Taxi drivers who like to tell the story of their lives. An especially appreciative incident is when one driver turned to his passenger and began, "You know, I've had an adventurous life." His passenger was Frank Buck, the wild animal man . . . Air lines do not like the word "air pockets." They call them air currents.

Charity organizations are putting a new appeal into the campaign to collect funds: A dozen handsome juveniles, unable to find work on the stage, were hired to ask for donations from the debutantes and dowagers along Fifth avenue.

'KID' LILLY QUICKLY GETS LIFE SENTENCE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

William Kidd, alias "Kid" Lilly, alias John Gaines, colored, was arraigned yesterday in the Alexandria Corporation Court, plead guilty to the fatal shooting of Sergt. Charles R. McClary, of the Alexandria police force, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life by Judge William P. Woolls, all within 50 minutes after his arrival in Alexandria in the custody of Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Sergt. Frederick Kaus, from Columbus, Ohio, where he was captured several days ago after a fight with four police officers.

The party arrived in Alexandria at 9:25 a. m. The prisoner was taken to Police Headquarters and placed in a cell, where, in the presence of Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan, City Manager Wallace Lawrence and several officers, he repeated, in substance, a confession he is alleged to have made to Sergt. Sims on the train en route to Washington.

In this statement Lilly denied that he was aware of having shot any one. He said he went to a house in North Patrick street to visit Frances Coolidge, who was not at home. He claims he heard someone coming up behind him and ran, firing either two or three shots to the rear as he ran.

In June, 1929, Lilly was arrested by Alexandria officers and held for the authorities of Pittsylvania County on a charge of shooting his wife. The officers came after him and took him on a bus. On nearing Danville, Va., Lilly jumped from a window of the bus and escaped. He claims he caught a Southern Railway train and went to Blair, Va., and later caught another train for Alexandria, leaving it at Cameron yard. He remained around the pump house there until about noon the following day, then went to the home of Lewis Peyton, colored, across the old canal in Alexandria. Peyton supplied him with something to eat and a quantity of dandelion wine, and returned to him a pistol which he had left in Peyton's custody. He then went to the home of the Coolidge woman, intending to spend the night, and the shooting followed.

Following the shooting, Lilly stated he went to Cameron Run, where he was given food by a colored woman, then caught a train for Charlottesville, then went to New Glasgow, near Amherst, remaining there until he heard he was wanted for the shooting of Sergt. McClary, and then worked his way to Columbus, Ohio.

The reward of $1,000 offered by the Alexandria city council for information leading to the arrest of Lilly has been claimed by a Columbus woman named Carrie Parker, who claims she was able to identify Lilly through a picture published in a detective magazine. An investigation will be made by Alexandria authorities before the money is paid.

The search for Lilly, which has lasted almost four years, has been unrelenting, his photograph, fingerprints and description having been sent to the police department of every city of importance in the United States.

Alexandria still has one unsolved murder case—that of Police Sergt. Elton B. Hummer, who was shot and killed in the early morning of August 18, 1928, as he was making the rounds of his assigned territory. Hummer was shot with a .45-caliber automatic pistol at the entrance to an alley on South Columbus street and killed instantly. No definite clews to his murderer have ever been discovered.

Miss Ella B. Cox died yesterday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Rosa M. Murphy, 918 King street, Alexandria, after an illness of less than a week. She was a daughter of the late Charles Francis and Cecelia Meade Cox and is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Murphy, Miss May B. Cox and Miss Carrie Lee Cox, and a brother, City Sergt. Robert H. Cox. The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock Monday from the home.

Mrs. Malvina Henderson, 71, widow of Bladen Henderson, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dessie Groves, 911 Gibbon street, Alexandria. She was a native of King George County. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Groves and Mrs. Lucy Allen, of Alexandria; Mrs. Ruth Huber, of Washington, and a son, Ollie Henderson, of Alexandria.

The funeral of J. Norman Gibbs, who died on Wednesday in the Alexandria Hospital, took place yesterday afternoon from Wheatley's funeral home, the services conducted by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Burial was in the Presbyterian Cemetery. Pallbearers were E. W. Thompson, Bert Harrison, Harry Pierson, Harmon Roberts, Courtland H. Davis, George West and Alfred Thomson.

An estate valued at approximately $180,000 was left by the late Virgil Bain, hardware merchant, who died February 8, and as no will was made by the deceased, the two surviving brothers, the Rev. E. L. Bain, of Portsmouth, Va., and George Bain, of Bealston, Va., are the heirs. The First National Bank, of Alexandria, and the Rev. E. L. Bain qualified as administrators of the estate.

B. Y. Morrison, of the Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Lloyd Harris, of Aldie, president of the Garden Club of Virginia, were speakers at a meeting of the Alexandria Garden Club held on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Robert Miller Reese, in preparation for the annual narcissus show to be staged in Gadsby's Tavern in April. Mrs. Gardner L. Boothe and Mrs. Richard T. Hammett are chairmen for the exhibit.

"Port of Missing Gloves" Boon to Theater Patrons

Washington is unique in many things and not least of these is its "Port of Missing Gloves."

Gloves will be lost or forgotten and all that are left in four downtown theaters find harbor at the "port" where their owners may call for them.

The "Port of Missing Gloves" was founded at the Southern Stelos Co., at 613 Twelfth street northwest, by Miss Ruth Kinney, its manager, last October.

To it are sent every pair or single glove left in the Palace, Fox, Columbia and Keith's theaters, and to it come the owners to claim their lost property.

When the gloves arrive at the Port—they come in hundreds—they are labelled with the name of the theater in which they were left and stored to wait the search of the claimants.

Several thousand have been returned to their owners from the "Port" and other thousands remain unclaimed. At Christmas time many of the unclaimed ones were paired up and given to the Salvation Army for distribution to the needy.

The number of gloves left in the theaters is astounding. In one month 405 came to the "Port" from a single showhouse and of these 267 were claimed by the owners.

Miss Kinney, who believes that her idea has not been tried at any other place, says that the number of gloves left at a theater is in a direct proportion to the popularity of the bill being played.

Many more women's than men's gloves are left, she said, adding that men invariably lose their right glove. Women lose both one or the pair and do it much more often because, unlike men, they do not have a pocket handy.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 16.

LIMITATION ON STOCK LOSSES.

Certain new provisions are contained in the revenue act of 1932 under the above-mentioned heading limiting the deduction for losses sustained on the sale or exchange of stocks and bonds which are not capital assets—that is, which have not been held for a period of more than two years. In accordance with the limitation, such losses may be deducted only against gains from similar transactions for the year, although the amount of the excess of such loss disallowed as a deduction for the year 1932 may be carried forward and taken as a deduction against gains from similar transactions for the succeeding year to the extent of the taxpayer's net income for the year 1932. It is also to be noted that such loss may not be offset against capital gains.

The above-mentioned limitation is in general applicable to both corporations and individuals as well as other taxpayers. By the terms of the statute, however, the limitation does not apply to dealers in securities as to stocks and bonds acquired for resale to customers or to banks or trust companies incorporated under the laws of the United States or of any State or Territory.

In defining "stocks and bonds" for the purpose of such limitation, the statute specifically excludes therefrom bonds issued by a government or political subdivision thereof. Such exclusion not only includes bonds issued by the Government of the United States or a State or political subdivision thereof, but also includes bonds issued by a foreign country or foreign municipality. It therefore follows that the deduction for losses sustained on the sale or exchange of such bonds is not subject to such limitation.

Charm Is Keynote in Post's $10,500 Search for 51 Girls

Widow of Mature Years Has Equal Opportunity to Win Place in Court of Honor at Chicago as Young Debutante.

In conducting its search for 51 girls to officiate as queen and her court of honor at the opening of the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago on June 1, The Washington Post is not looking for mere perfection of features, but for that indescribable characteristic that can only be interpreted by the word "charm." Many of the women who are known to history for their charming femininity have not been beautiful in the commonly accepted definition of the word, but all have reflected that magnetism of character upon which selections in The Post's $10,500 contest will be based.

Because of this fact, no age limit has been set for entrants, and it is as possible for a widow of mature years to win the coveted prize as that it will be claimed by a youthful debutante. The only condition is that the candidate be at present unmarried and not a professional, such as a stage girl or artists' model or an employe of The Washington Post. Neither is it recommended that girls below the age of 16 enter, because it is necessary that the title of queen be borne with the natural dignity that is seldom possessed by those below that age.

To enter the contest it is only necessary to fill out the transmittal coupon printed below, or to write the same information upon a separate sheet of paper, and paste on the back of a photograph that has been taken within the past twelve months and that is at least 6 by 8 inches in size. The picture should then be mailed to the Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post. Photographs may be entered personally or by any friend or relative.

From all photographs submitted, 51 girls will be selected and will be entertained as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune for a period of two weeks in Chicago. Their transportation to the exposition and return will be paid from their homes in any part of the world, together with hotel expenses and the cost of beautiful gowns to be designed by leading modistes. In addition, three of the group will be chosen as queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting and will be awarded cash prizes of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

The search will continue until Saturday, April 15, and each Sunday up to and including Sunday, April 2, The Washington Post will publish the pictures of ten entrants in the contest and pay $5 for each photograph so reproduced. This coming Sunday the fourth group of ten entrants will be pictured in The Sunday Post rotogravure section.

FARM BUREAU HEADS PICK 1933 OFFICERS

Montgomery County Group Holds Election at Rockville.

Josiah W. Jones, of Olney, was re-elected president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting of the board of directors yesterday at the Rockville Courthouse. Other officers reelected were W. W. Hodges, of Boyd, vice president; George C. Fry, of Rockville, secretary-treasurer; Miss Katherine Benson, Rockville, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The directors of the county bureau adopted a resolution approving the recommendations made by the State Farm Bureau Federation and the State Grange regarding distribution of gasoline tax money for lateral roads and establishment of a sales tax for raising of emergency funds.

The board flatly opposed issuance of any further bonds by Montgomery County at the present time. A committee was appointed to carry on a membership drive.

Following a lengthy discussion, the board voted to oppose the proposal sponsored by the Sandy Spring Community Club, which would have the Montgomery County commissioners act as a zoning board in the county outside of the metropolitan area, which is administered by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

J. W. Jones was appointed as chairman of a board committee which will appear Monday night at a meeting of the committee on internal county improvement of the Montgomery County Civic Federation at Rockville Courthouse to oppose the measure. The federation committee, headed by W. I. Cleveland, will hold a hearing on the resolution in order to ascertain public feeling in the matter.

ATTACK ON U. OF MD. FUNDS PROGRESSING

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17.—Senator Milton L. Veasy, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the University of Maryland appropriation, is a trustee of Western Maryland College, which has asked a State appropriation of $50,000, it was revealed here today.

Senator Veasy sponsored the resolution calling for an investigating committee and was appointed to head the group. He has been the mainspring of the Senate group calling for reductions in the university budget. This budget already has been cut $49,000 under last year's appropriation of $1,192,839.

Western Maryland College receives $50,000 from the State this year, and a similar appropriation has been approved for 1934 and 1935. No cut in this amount has been definitely decided upon. In return for the State appropriation, the college gives 72 scholarships in the State, while the university gives none.

Meanwhile, Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university, said he would cooperate fully with the three senators appointed to "investigate the affairs" of the school. The committee has not yet organized its inquiry, but will do so at a meeting to be held here Monday when the Legislature reconvenes.

The student congress of the university has adopted a resolution approving the retention of H. C. (Curly) Byrd, in the three posts from which he draws salaries totaling $11,500: Byrd, whose multiple jobs fired Senator Veasy's ire, is vice president, director of physical education, and football coach.

The makers of Vicks VapoRub have produced an antiseptic which does everything that a gargle or mouth-wash can and should do — at half the usual price of other quality antiseptics. The name of this new product is Vicks Voratone Antiseptic.

Of course, the only real proof of its quality and amazing economy is actual use. To furnish this proof, Vicks Chemists supplied to druggists—at less than cost—5 million special trial bottles—a 25c value for 10c. These trial bottles have gone so quickly that this offer is now made:

Mild Enough, Strong Enough

No extravagant claims are made for Vicks Voratone. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce — and they were aided by the chemists, bacteriologists and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations here and in Europe.

They created a balanced antiseptic—mild enough to be used day in and day out without risk to delicate membranes; yet strong enough to do everything that an oral antiseptic can and should do.

For All Customary Uses

You can use Vicks Antiseptic, in your customary way, for bad breath (halitosis); as a gargle; as a mouth-wash; as an antiseptic lotion, and for all the other customary uses.

CHILDHOOD EXPERTS MEET IN ROCKVILLE

Dr. Richards Warns Against Forcing Young Into Unsuitable Endeavors.

Forcing children into endeavors of which they are not mentally and physically capable is a cause of types of behavior in the child which are unsocial and unhealthful, Dr. Esther Richards, associate professor of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, told a Conference on Child Health held yesterday at the Rockville Courthouse under the auspices of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters. Among the results are truancy, asthma, twitches and other disorders, Dr. Richards said.

Dr. William H. F. Warthen, of the Baltimore City Department of Maternal and Infant Hygiene, said that it is too early to determine just how the present depression is affecting child health. He said that while much argument has been set forth that reduction of overeating has caused a better health condition, charts of vital statistics show that there actually is an increase in deaths from diseases caused by overeating.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, Montgomery County health officer, said that a properly balanced health program should devote 50 per cent of its energies toward child health. Montgomery County at present is devoting about one-third to child health. He urged the necessity of provising more funds for personnel and news of such an expansion in child health work.

Others who spoke were Dr. Clifford Waller, of the U. S. Public Health Service; Dr. J. H. Mason Knox, jr., director of the State Bureau of Infant and Maternal Hygiene; Dr. Robert H. Riley, chairman of the State Board of Health; Dr. Loren Johnson, of Washington, psychiatrist.

Mrs. Raymond Clapper, chairman of the league committee on welfare, presided at the morning session and Dr. Jacob Bird, president of the Montgomery of the Social Service League, led the morning discussion. Miss Willie Greene Day, executive secretary of the Social eSrvice League, presided in the afternoon and Dr. Dexter M. Bullard, of Rockville, led the discussion.

BILL WOULD BOOST TEACHERS' SALARIES

Increase Planned for Negro Instructors in Nearby Maryland.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17.—A bill providing that the minimum salary for colored school teachers shall be the same as for white, at an additional cost of $35,000 in Prince Georges County and $20,000 in Montgomery, was introduced in the House of Delegates today.

It is estimated that the bill, if passed, would raise the average salary of colored teachers by about $425 per year. The additional cost in Prince Georges County would raise the tax rate by 5.3 cents on $100, while the Montgomery rate would be about 2.3 cents higher.

Objecting to the action of the minority member in asking use of the House chamber for a hearing on county legislation, the majority of the Montgomery County delegation today sent a letter to Speaker T. Barton Harrington asking that the time and place of holding county hearings be left to the majority.

The letter said that the delegation has adopted the policy of holding all hearings in Rockville, where more people can attend and at less expense. Minority Member Walter W. Dawson (Republican), had obtained tentative permission to use the House chamber on February 28 for a hearing on county bills.

Another bill offered today would perit the use of 1933 auto license tags until April 1, 1934, and would permit 1934 tags to be used until April, 1935. A resolution calling on the House to appoint five delegates to investigate the collapse of the United Railways of Baltimore also was received.

Under the terms of a bill offered today, no person or corporation in Frederick County would be permitted to own more than 500 acres of land to be used for farming or agricultural purposes. The bill permitting the construction of a bridge across the Potomac River near Colonial Beach, Va., was reported favorably.

Man and Wife Are Burned As Flames Destroy Home

Mrs. Edna Talmage, 28, was seriously burned about the face and body, her husband, Frank Talmage, 32, was badly burned on his hands and arms, and their home at Clinton, Md., was destroyed late yesterday by a fire caused by the explosion of a can of kerosene with which the woman was attempting to kindle a wood fire in a cooking stove.

Sprayed with the ignited fluid, the woman was instantly enveloped in flames. Her husband, who was in the house, went to her rescue, and tried to tear off her blazing garments. A neighbor, hearing their screams, came to their assistance, and removed them from the house through which the flames were rapidly spreading. They were brought to Providence hospital where it was reported last night that Mrs. Talmage's condition was critical.

It was reported that the Talmages lived in a five room frame house with Mrs. Talmage's brother, Joe Klatz, and his wife. They have two small children, Walter, 10, and Doris, 8. Both the children were at school and the Klatzs also were away from home when the fire occurred.

There are no fire departments within miles of the home and the house and its contents were destroyed by the flames which spread rapidly through the frame structure.

JAPAN MUST DECIDE.

The league of nations committee charged with dealing with the Manchurian question has laid its report before the world. Recommendations are made for conciliation of the dispute, but since the committee states certain conclusions which are diametrically opposed to Japanese acts and policies, it seems highly improbable that Japan will agree to negotiate. The report is to be discussed by the league assembly next week, and if ratified Japan will be faced with the alternative of negotiating or withdrawing from the league.

The situation that confronts Japan is to be considered by a council in which members of the emperor's family and the last surviving elder statesman will be present. It is recognized on all sides that Japan is about to make a fateful decision. It must decide whether to remain at amity with other countries or embark alone on a course that may embroil it in war with many nations.

The developments in the Far East are unique. No similar problem has ever been presented to the world. The nations have never before faced the test of the covenant that binds them to co-operate for the preservation of peace against aggression. Thus far they have met the test successfully, and the report of the committee of nineteen, if adopted, will be another long step forward in international co-operation against an aggressor. Although conciliation is recommended, the penalties of violation of the covenant are in the background. The committee resolutely refuses to recognize Manchukuo, and calls upon Japan to withdraw its forces from Chinese territory.

It has been surmised that Japan will withdraw from the league and declare war upon China, so that the Japanese navy can blockade Chinese ports and prevent China from obtaining war material. In that event the nations will be faced with the question whether the old rule of neutrality shall be observed, or whether they shall adhere to the new system established by the covenant of the league. Under that system they could not remain neutral after having identified an aggressor who had violated the covenant. Their sympathies would be with China; but they would not be bound to engage in war, and probably they would endeavor to avoid a clash with Japanese vessels blockading Chinese ports. How they could achieve this feat is difficult to foresee.

The United States could adopt the rule of neutrality in case of war between Japan and China. If it should do so it would recognize the validity of a Japanese blockade of Chinese ports if the blockade were effective.

A strong argument against American neutrality would lie in the fact that Japan had violated treaties to which the United States is a party, particularly the nine-power pact recognizing and guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China. The integrity of China is the foundation-stone of the doctrine of the open door, upon which the United States depends for equal rights in trade and commerce. It can not be expected that the United States would relinquish its treaty rights to a violator without entering a determined protest and taking steps to protect itself. The pressure of circumstances would be such as to make it very difficult for the United States to refrain from co-operating with other nations in seeking to bring Japan to terms.

The answer to the question of peace or war in the Far East rests with the supreme council that is to meet in Tokyo. Unfortunately the war spirit is strong in Japan, and the prizes of aggression are so tempting that the whole nation seems to be solidified in its determination to trample upon treaties and defy the world's opposition. That opposition can hardly fail to be transformed into hostilities if Japan should declare war and blockade China.

TAX REFUNDS.

Conferees on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill are struggling with an extraneous amendment adopted by the Senate to require a review of all tax refunds of more than $20,000 by the Board of Tax Appeals. Fear is expressed that if the bill is sent to the White House containing this provision it may be vetoed, as was the first deficiency supply bill containing a similar arrangement for review of tax refund cases by the joint congressional committee on taxation. In that event Congress might not have time to repass this vital measure before March 4.

These panaceas for review of tax refunds have been written into various bills at the insistence of Senator McKellar. His amendment which caused a veto was clearly unconstitutional. It sought to transfer responsibility for an administrative duty from the President to Congress. Having been frustrated in that attempt, Senator McKellar sought to fix responsibility for tax refunds upon the Board of Tax Appeals. This body functions as a court, and its decisions are reviewable in the higher courts. Is not the board an arm of the judiciary, which under the Constitution, can not exercise executive functions?

At any rate, the court could not undertake this work without setting up a completely new division that would be entirely separate from the board to which tax appeals are taken. Many tax refunds now go before the board. But such cases are heard as they would be in a court, attorneys for the Bureau of Internal Revenue presenting the Government's case and attorneys for the taxpayer presenting his viewpoint. Obviously, it would be absurd to require that all cases involving tax refunds of more than $20,000 be carried before this tribunal, because if the Treasury considered the claim of the taxpayer justified, it would make no defense before the board, and the taxpayer would win by default. The only manner in which the board could be required to check on refunds by the Treasury would be to impose upon it new administrative duties, quite apart from its judicial function. Such an arrangement would be highly unsatisfactory, even if it should be decided constitutional.

Only one sensible course is open to the conferees on this subject. The McKellar amendment should be thrown out. If Congress wishes to have the joint congressional committee on taxation make more extensive reviews of refunds, with a view to reporting to Congress instead of attempting to hold up the refunds, there can be no objection. That procedure, which is already in effect for all refunds of more than $75,000, is an ample safeguard against fraud or negligence. It is a pity that the Senate hasn't sufficient understanding of the fundamental law to avoid the adoption of measures that are obviously unconstitutional.

SEND FOR DARROW!

Judge Collins, at Miami, has named three lawyers as defenders of Guiseppe Zangara, would-be assassin of President-elect Roosevelt. Strange to say, Clarence Darrow is not among them.

Zangara is in a difficult situation, with the possibility of two of his victims dying and thus subjecting him to the charge of first-degree murder. He is in danger of life imprisonment or execution.

This is an ideal case for Clarence Darrow, the eloquent legal defender of assassins. Here is an opportunity for Darrow to arraign society for its brutal attitude toward Zangara. By skillful manipulation of the heartstrings of jurors, and by questions which will draw from Zangara a piteous tale of suffering at the hands of society, Darrow might put the nation and the State of Florida in the wrong and convince the sobbing jury that it should pronounce Zangara an innocent and much-abused man.

Will the societies and leagues that sympathize with communism and opposition to law raise funds to hire Clarence Darrow as defender of Zangara? If not, why not? Let Zangara be made a symbol of the brutality of society. Let him be pictured as a victim about to be lynched by the law, merely because he lost patience and tried to kill the President-elect. After all, the President-elect was not harmed. And Zangara did not try to kill Mayor Cermak or Mrs. Gill. Call it a hasty, ill-considered burst of temper by a man who has suffered from the bludgeoning of fate and circumstance. Call in Clarence Darrow, and save Zangara. Thousands of Communists who are struggling for a new social order as a substitute for the American Republic would be discouraged if Zangara should be punished. "Liberals" everywhere should rally to the defense of this friendless assassin.

RAILROAD RELIEF.

Neither the fiduciary institutions sponsoring it nor the general public will be surprised that the National Transportation Committee failed to find any immediate or sweeping remedy for the present ailment of the common carriers. The railroads are in a difficult position, with earnings of the leading roads almost at the vanishing point, while nearly half, even of the Class I roads, were operated last year at a loss. The committee's investigation, which was begun last October under the leadership of Calvin Coolidge and completed with Bernard M. Baruch as chairman, was also composed of Alfred E. Smith, Alexander Legge and Clark Howell.

The broadest recommendation made by the committee is for the elimination of wasteful competition of parallel lines and favoring regional consolidations looking eventually to a single national system, urging that consolidations be hastened and, where necessary, enforced. It is found advisable that railroads be permitted to own and operate competing services, particularly where they can be utilized to replace unprofitable rail service, but in this connection regulatory jurisdiction of water rates is also advocated.

Government barge operation and water subsidies are hit in the suggestion that Federal assumption of any part of the costs of inefficient means of transportation competing with the railroads should be abandoned as no longer necessary. The committee holds that in general inland waterways should bear all cost of amortization, interest, maintenance and operation. It is suggested that if the projected St. Lawrence waterway can not stand the test of this rule the treaty should not be ratified. The committee recommends taxation of motor traffic to support the highways and that it be subjected to such regulation as is necessary for public protection, but highway transportation gains support in the comment that neither taxation nor regulation should be applied "for any purpose of handicapping the march of progress for the benefit of the railroads."

In the important matter of rates the committee finds that the basis of cost of operation under effective management is a better general rule than an attempt to preserve capital structures regardless of economic trends. Important suggestions that may have more immediate effect include repeal of the recapture clause, revision of the statutory rule of rate making, liberalization of R. F. C. loans to permit acceptance of adequate security rather than demanding marketable collateral, and a new bankruptcy act to facilitate reorganizations. Mr. Smith, though agreeing with the committee in the main, filed a minority report to oppose expansion of R. F. C. loans and to voice entire opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway.

The particularly cheerful point in the committee report is the opinion expressed that owing to economies made by the railroads an increase of even less than 20 per cent in business would now put most of them on an earning basis and that a 50 per cent expansion of traffic would provide the same net earnings as the larger business of three years ago.

After suffering a barrage of 20,000 words over the radio Japan feebly refuses to surrender to the league, but a few more broadcasts may settle everything.

Frank Roosevelt believes in improving public institutions, but he doesn't propose to purge the Senate by taking over all its members.

DECAY OF THE NAVY

By REAR ADMIRAL W. A. MOFFETT, U. S. N., Chief of Bureau of Aeronautics, in Speech at Naval Graduates' Dinner, New York, February 17.

World conditions today are becoming similar to those that existed before the World War in 1914. Few then believed that we would be drawn into the war, as still fewer today believe that another war is possible or probable for years to come, and the public isn't interested in warnings such as this speech is intended to be.

It never seems to occur to us, in our conceit, that another nation may declare war against us. We are too busy boasting that we are the greatest nation on earth. We certainly have little to be proud of since the war, either as individuals or as a nation. The United States has been an international fruit tree, shaken down to the tune of $175,000,000 in new ships at the Washington Conference, and to the tune of $11,000,000,000 in postwar debts, not to mention the investments our bankers and our gullibility lost for us in foreign bonds. Are we as smart as we think we are, or are we riding for a fall—indeed, falling now? The time has come to stop "kidding" ourselves, to stop boasting and do something to show that we are, or can be, worthy of the traditions that we talk so much about—worthy of the great men and women who founded this Nation.

Fortunately for us, when we got into the war in 1917, our allies held off the enemy while we prepared, and after a year were able to make our power felt. Such will not be the case again; certainly not in one respect, even though the conditions be the same. I refer to the new, powerful, ultra-modern weapon, terrible in its effectiveness, as will be shown in future wars; that will revolutionize all warfare, and especially naval warfare—aviation. Until now the oceans have protected us from sudden and swift attack. Isolated raids by ships and bombardment by guns on ships were distant possibilities, but today—now—aviation has changed all that. Bombardment of our cities, our country, by planes from aircraft carriers and other vessels can be made a reality in a few days after a declaration of war—perhaps a few days before—and the only way to prevent it is to have an adequate navy, including all its aircraft carriers, flying-deck cruisers and airships, before war breaks out.

We sent our sons to France to be slaughtered owing to lack of proper preparedness. It will be as nothing if the next war finds us unprepared. You would send out your fleet today outnumbered, undermanned, untrained, inviting defeat. By allowing the Navy to become decadent, as it has become, you are risking not only the honor and glory of America, but her very existence. The decadence of its navy is a sign of the decadence of a nation.

But It Takes Thirty-Six Strokes.

POST HASTE

Another Florida boom has reverberated around the world.

What a flop that was when the Senate put the peel in repeal and stepped on it.

Michigan's little bank holiday is not serious. If Congress wants to see bigger and better banking trouble it will begin monkeying with the currency.

"D. C. radicals warn police of meeting." How about a double dose of vice versa?

The committee of nineteen screws up courage to announce what everybody has known about Manchuria for more than a year. Japan will soon have to do more than threaten to resign from the league.

After the New Orleans hearing no one can claim that the Long brothers are short on invectives.

If the female of the species can save a President it would seem that one woman in the Cabinet is the irreducible minimum.

If any of the astute congressional dopesters foreshadowed the Senate's about-face between the beer and repeal votes he has yet to produce the printed words.

No one would expect a Roosevelt to run under fire, but to be just as calm when he can't run is doubly brave.

The wets do not have to be further convinced that thirteen is an unlucky number when it comes to non-ratifying States.

"Bankers prolong short-time credits to Germany." For the same reason that mortgage collections are not being made in Iowa.

If, as has been hinted, the Senate reverse on prohibition was due to Roosevelt pressure, the next Congress should perform at a finger touch.

Cheer up! You might have been appointed by the court to defend Zangara. PAUL HUDSON.

DISPUTED WISDOM.

About the time I think I know
Which path to take and which road to go
Somebody gets on his feet to say
I ought to travel another way.
And so firmly fixed in his views is he
That his argument sadly confuses me.

I mention this and I mention that,
And instantly somebody floors me flat
Or shows me a different point of view,
The existence of which I never knew,
And I toss on my pillow the whole night long,
Wondering which is the right and wrong.

My neighbor accepts what I scorn to take,
Another an argument long can make,
Proving that he has the proper view
Of what is false and what is true;
And wise indeed is the man who knows
The hidden places where wisdom grows.

Two sides to a question? All printed lore
Will show to a reader a dozen or more,
And the way he goes and the word he heeds
Depend on the people he trusts or reads,
For the best that man on this earth can do
Is to cling to the facts he believes are true.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: When you were a little girl, your acquaintances included a small pest who felt neglected by the world. In order to remedy this sad state of affairs, she developed the habit of chanting in endless sing-song: "I know a secret. I know a secret."

The scheme worked nicely. If it didn't impress other people, at least it ministered to her pride and made her a contented little snob. It always gives us a feeling of superiority to be "in the know." That's one reason we delight in gossip.

All pretense is inspired by discontent and shame. The pretender says in effect: "I am pretending to be something I am not because I am ashamed of what I am."

Perhaps you never will be tempted to pretend, but in any case I give you fair warning that the ultimate cost will be greater than the profit.

Does your list of girl friends include one who always seems wholly at ease and as perfectly poised as the wild creatures in the woods?

She is being natural—not by conscious effort, but simply because she isn't thinking about herself.

The pretender is constantly in danger of embarrassment. She can't pretend without being self-conscious, and the nervous strain of keeping up her role often proves too much for her. Then she giggles or laughs too much or chatters nonsense in a daze of hysteria.

It is much like being a witness in court. The witness schooled to perjure himself soon cracks under the strain of cross-examination and in helpless panic entangles himself in his falsehoods. The one who tells the truth retains his poise because he has nothing to fear. He knows the truth is solid ground, without pitfalls.

Say to yourself: "I am what I am, let it be good or bad, learned or ignorant, smart or stupid, and the world must accept me as I am or throw me out. I won't sacrifice my self-respect to win its favor."

At once the strain is over. You relax like an entertainer who has finished his bit and retired to the wings. And relaxation gives you the unconscious naturalness that is nine parts of charm.

You can't rattle a carpenter while he is sawing boards. He is easily embarrassed only when he puts on a boiled shirt and tries to seem at home in a swell restaurant. Love, DAD.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Another Seed and Crop Loan.

Kansas City Times.

The appropriation of $90,000,000 for seed and crop loans to be made through the Federal Department of Agriculture has received the approval of the President. The Department of Agriculture has had a tremendous amount of experience in handling such loans in recent years. The first of them were confined to those who had suffered from floods or drought. Later they were made on the basis of the need of the applicant rather than the cause of his need. Undoubtedly much of the surplus cotton and wheat produced in 1932 could be traced directly to Government aid.

That the department should be bending every possible effort toward crop reduction on the one hand and be required to make loans to increase production on the other is incongruous. Fortunately the Secretary of Agriculture is permitted to formulate rules to control the making of loans.

Roosevelt's Courage.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Thankfulness over Mr. Roosevelt's escape is the more profound because of this relief from unspoken apprehension. The attempt upon his life brings a sudden realization of the relation between this man and the millions who look to him for guidance in a time of great distress and confusion. His magnificent courage and serenity during the dramatic moments at the Bay Front Park, and after, must add to the public admiration of the man who is so soon to take the helm in Washington.

Those Slick New Yorkers.

Superior (Wis.) Telegram.

New York State is preparing for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, say dispatches. You can't fool New Yorkers. They knew we had that eighteenth amendment all the time!

Politics Versus Economy.

Minneapolis Journal.

When the Republicans in Congress wanted to give to President Hoover a free hand to reorganize Federal Departments, in the interest of economy, the Democrats objected. Now that the Democrats wish to give President-elect Roosevelt even more of a free hand to reorganize Federal Departments, in the interest of economy, the Republicans object. So long as the needs of party politics take precedence over the needs of sorely tried taxpayers, there isn't going to be any economy.

Veterans' Relief.

Ribbing (Minn.) Tribune.

It is not only in regard to European debts that we are prize suckers among the nations. The United States had 360,000 men killed or wounded in the World War. England, France, Germany, Italy and Canada had 16,500,000 killed or wounded. Yet veterans' relief in the United States is today costing 25 per cent more than veterans' relief in England, France, Germany, Italy and Canada combined. Not because the veterans have demanded it, but because the people fall for the eloquence of the vest-busting politicians, who, in the name of gratitude to the veterans, have foisted upon the American people a burden of more than $400,000,000 a year for largess to veterans who returned from the war sound of limb and wind.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Letter to Senator Coolidge Demands Protection of New England Industries.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have written the following letter to Senator Marcus A. Coolidge, of Massachusetts:

"The American people are confronted today with the unemployment problem and goods are being shipped in here from foreign countries with depreciated currency and cheap labor and throwing our people out of work.

"In my travels over New England I find many industries that are either ruined or being forced into idleness by this invasion. I understand representatives from the Southern and Western States are opposed to the principle of protection, and I believe that it is your duty to show leadership by forcing through this legislation or placing the responsibilities on their shoulders for its failure.

"I can not understand the shortsightedness of these representatives from the agricultural sections, since I believe that they are dependent for the sale of their products on the prosperity of the industrial sections. It is my belief that if Congress does not do something to remedy this at once there will be just one alternative—that we will have a dictator.

"I shall be glad to send you a list of the industries of New England that are hard pressed on account of cheap foreign products that are forced on the buyer by reason of this vicious circle.

"In 1897 this same condition existed and a little later a government was elected that gave this country protection, and within a very few months the country was very prosperous.

"The late Leslie M. Shaw, who was Secretary of the Treasury under President Theodore Roosevelt, just prior to his death, wrote an article in which he stated that in six different depressions this country had free trade conditions. In each of these depressions recovery was effected by protective legislation. If this was successful in six different depressions, why not try it again? he asked.

"If the present or new incoming legislatures fail to enact such legislation very soon I can not see how American industry can ever survive."

Another Angle to Mortgage Situation. Investors in Mortgages Pinched by Postponements.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a spirit of open rebellion among guaranteed first mortgage investors at the attitude taken against them by mortgage companies as to reducing guaranteed interest on certificates and holding out on paying the principal when due.

Do these mortgage companies think that the thousands of people who put money in their hands will stand idly by while they are told that their money will be tied up from 18 months to 3 years after it is due during times like these?. During this depression we have been depending on this interest, with what we could save, to meet many demands to help those who have not. If this is the best that these big minds can do, then give us back our money.

The whip is held up by an official, meaning if we do not sign on the dotted line, laws will be jammed through so quick that our signature will not be necessary.

Well, what are mortgage investors going to do about it? READER.

All High School Cadets Should Have Place in Inaugural Parade, Says Citizen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much disappointed when it was stated that the high school cadets would not be allowed to march in their full strenth in the inaugural parade. Within recent years there has been a great deal of talk about the desirability of Americanization to improve the quality of our citizenship. But to disappoint these young Americans in their ardent desire to take a conspicuous part in their country's great quadrennial ceremonial does not look to me like a good way to Americanize.

Of course I can understand that it may be well to shorten the parade for the convenience and comfort of the public. But on the other hand one of its finest features will be missing so far as I am concerned, if the cadets do not march in all their glory.

I still hope those having the parade in charge will finally change their minds and let all the cadets take part in it. COLUMBIA.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The most outstanding diagram in the night sky is Orion's beauty-glass in the form of a baseball diamond, held by the Mighty Hunter in such a way that the beautiful Seven Sisters forming the Pleiades can behold their own loveliness and at the same time keep an ever-watchful eye on that ever-following gentleman.

Orion is now on our north-south line—known as the meridian—about 8 p. m., directly between us and the South Pole of the sky. His three "belt stars" form the upper-left side of the glass; his three "sword stars," its handle. An opera-glass will give a better view of his Great Nebula, whose exact position is clearly marked by the middle star in the handle.

The opera-glass will also give a most splendid view of the Fairies' Dipper in the Pleiades—easily seen out beyond Aldebaran and his V-shaped group, by sighting from the left to the right, along the "belt stars."

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

THREE color fashions give the clever woman an opportunity to display her taste and color sense—and her cleverness. I know a lovely and determined lady who has made a whole new wardrobe for three daughters for the summer—and one that they all are delighted with—from old frocks, remnants and scrap-bag pieces!

The reason is that one yard of one color, wisely assorted with one and a quarter or half of another color or print, and finished off with one more yard of another color, makes a chic frock. And who hasn't a yard of this and a yard of that handy? Or can't pick up a $3 value of fabric for 75 cents or so at the remnant counter?

Prints are the wisest for the experiment, because a two or three colored print is practically safe with any two colors in its own print—all one color and white, or one color and black prints are ideal. For you can use them with one solid color and one solid white. The two frocks I designed for you today show you that—I suggested organdy for the top sleeves, because it is so smart this summer, and so youthful. The body of each frock is a print, and the skirt a solid color—but it need not be always this way.

Three shades of a color are delightful—a lemon yellow, a deep yellow, and an orange-yellow are a favorite combination in Paris. And either of these dresses developed in these three colors—can't you just see it?

Au revoir.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12 noon, from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:15 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make this a rather depressing day. You will possibly experience a feeling of great inertia. Your mental capacities will appear to be at a low ebb and you will not be able to make the best of opportunities that come your way. The sexes will seem indifferent, one to the other.

The child born on this February 18 will be unsteady and changeable in his early years. He will be fickle in his attitude toward friends of both sexes. He will not prove himself a good all around student at school. He will do admirably in the one or two subjects which he enjoys, for he will concentrate on them to the neglect of the rest. Women will always make a fuss over these children.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE MAKING OF A STOMACH ULCER.

THE inventors have been at work. This time the product is a new disease bearing the name depression ulcer. The reference is to ulcer of the stomach and of the duodenum, resulting principally from worry. Perhaps a better name would be worry ulcer, but the economic stress under which such a large group is suffering as a result of the depression has caused so many to develop the disease that the name given runs back to the basic cause.

The nature of these peculiar ulcers is not a matter of agreement among physicians, nor is there unanimity among them as to the cause. Dr. E. S. Judd holds that, whatever the direct cause may be, violation of the laws of hygiene is at least a contributor.

Three contributing causes that he gives are drinking alcoholic beverages, smoking too much, and worry. There are some who cure themselves of ulcer by abstaining from alcoholic beverages, by using very little tobacco and by breaking the worry habit.

Governor to Urge Roosevelt Retreat

(Associated Press.)

A hope that President-elect Roosevelt will establish a retreat in West Virginia was expressed yesterday by Gov. William G. Conley of that State.

Gov. Conley, in reply to a letter from Representative Bowman (Republican), of Morgantown, W. Va., urging him to ask the Legislature to invite Mr. Roosevelt to establish a retreat at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., said he would transmit the request to the legislators.

Mr. Bowman said an analysis of the waters at Berkeley Springs showed they had virtually the same medicinal properties as those at Warm Springs, Ga., which Mr. Roosevelt has found beneficial. The governor suggested White Sulphur Springs and other West Virginia resorts might also be brought to Mr. Roosevelt's attention.

Catholic U. Club Team To Debate Debt Erasing

Peanut Machine Theft Brings 45 Days' Term

For the theft of a 75-pound peanut vending machine, Charles Duvall, 42, yesterday was sent to jail for 45 days.

Tried before Judge John P. McMahon, Duvall was convicted of stealing the machine from in front of the store of Chesterfield Finley on H street southeast. Policeman J. D. Bennett, of the Ninth Precinct, said he saw Duvall carrying the machine and stopped him to question him.

FOOD SHOW TONIGHT ENDS WITH CARNIVAL

Coach Will Be Awarded as Successful Exposition Draws to Close.

With a gala carnival program, the second annual United Food Stores Exposition will reach its conclusion in the Washington Auditorium tonight. Everyone who has attended the show during the week will figure in the award of a 1933 Rockne coach which will be given away at the closing session. The only requirement is that the recipient be present.

This afternoon, each of the winners at daily baby contests conducted throughout the week will compete for the honor of "champion baby of the show." A handsome prize awaits the victor.

Three-and-a-half-year-old Lauristin Murray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Murray, of 728 C street northeast, won the contest yesterday afternoon for infants between 3 and 4 years of age. More than 40 babies competed.

The show committee, of which Morris L. Kraft is chairman, and Morris Vigderhouse, vice chairman, announced last night that close to 50,000 persons have viewed the diversified array of food products at the exposition since it opened a week ago. The awards to be made today will bring the total prizes given away to a value of more than $2,000.

All excess foodstuffs on the distributing platform will be given away to holders of lucky tickets at the show tonight. During the week hundreds of baskets of food have been given away in this fashion, in addition to the generous samples distributed by exhibitors.

Play Suit Brought To Supreme Court

(Associated Press.)

Authors and producers of two theatrical plays brought their troubles yesterday to the Supreme Court.

Philip Hurn and Percy Morgan, jr., authors of the copyrighted play, "The Evil Hour," contended through Joseph Lorenz as counsel that they were entitled to relief for unfair practices and competition by Fulton Oursler, Lowell Brentano, Albert Lewis and Sam H. Harris, authors and producers of the play, "The Spider."

They insisted a spiritualistic seance in their play had been appropriated by Oursler and his associates. Lorenz contended the Federal district court in New York should have passed on the claims of his clients of unfair practices and competition after it had found their copyrighted play had not been infringed.

Martha Logan Says - - - - - "Try Tomato Rabbit"

So often after a trip to the local movie with the neighbors, or a friendly round of contract, we serve a snack of some kind. A tomato rabbit is just such a dish to make easily and quickly. The three important or main ingredients are two of those tinfoil-wrapped packages of a fairly "nippy" cheese (although Brick or American serves the purpose admirably), one can of tomato soup and one small can of condensed milk.

Now to make the dish. With a coarse strainer and wooden spoon press the packages of cheese through and you have your grated cheese. Add this, with the contents of the can of tomato soup, undiluted, to the top of a double boiler. Heat until the cheese and soup are well blended and smooth.

Then add one well-beaten egg and one cup of condensed milk, mixed. While this mixture is heating stir in one teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, one or two drops of tabasco, salt and cayenne, to give it the proper flavor desired.

When all the ingredients are well blended and heated pour a little over some toast, rusks or crackers. A bit of chopped parsley adds an attractive garnish. Some people like to add a bit of scraped onion for flavoring also—or rub the pan with a little garlic before cooking. If you like garlic or onion, you will like the suggestion. This dish and a beverage make a very nice informal "snack."

The Meanderer

Would Dedicate a Column to Cheese — Imported, Domestic, Mild or Strong—And Speak of Rabbits and Turkeys, Asparagus and Pineapple.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column in The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Cheese fanciers would have enjoyed accompanying the Meanderer to cheese realms unlimited, where cheese from Italy, France, Greece, Germany, Norway, Holland, Switzerland and other far parts associate with good American brands from Wisconsin and New York. Those who don't care so much for cheese don't desert the Meanderer this morning, but just glance down lower in the colmn for relief.

"Good, runny, real French Camembert," in the words of a reader's request in a letter to the Meanderer, is waiting for the requesting reader and others in a cheese marketer's place in one of our best known downtown markets. Packed in round wooden boxes, with tinsel covers labeled liberally with names of authentic French producers, this choice Camembert is kept in large tin containers in the cheese marketer's place, ready for discriminating customers. If Camembert is not your choice, then listen and read this partial list of other cheeses neighboring the Camembert: Edam, Roquefort, Limburger, Gouda (much like Edam), Liederkranz (stronger than Camembert, but not as odorous as Limburger), Coon cheese from New York (sharp, light-colored), brick cheese from Wisconsin, creamed or dry cottage cheese, and a delicious mixture of sharp cheese and pimientos prepared by the cheese dealer interviewed, and used for sandwiches and spreads. If it's a little of several kinds you'd like, take home a box of this dealer's mixed cheese for 50 cents. It contains little rounds of foil-wrapped, boxed choice kinds, including Roquefort, Camembert, Briekase, Edamber, Romadur and Brierkase type.

A rich, different cheese, moist and white, from Greece, is made from sheep milk and is known as feta. It is imported by a shop on Ninth street, near the Public Library.

Italian Roquefort cheese, or gorgonzola, which many prefer to the French Boquefort, is in the big market only a few steps from where the Meanderer found the long list of cheese above. Hard Roman cheese is in this Italian food place, too, and sells in pieces or grated.

Cheese is combined with other foods in many ways, of course, but new combinations suggested to the Meanderer on this tour were minced chives with cottage cheese; and a few drops of Worcestershire with Roquefort or with grated Roman cheese. Both these mixtures should be choice, appetizing bits for Sunday night suppers. Chives are found in the big downtown market near the cheese. Flourishing little chives plants in pots sell for less than a quarter.

"Rabbit tid-bits" are well-trimmed, carefully packed lean pieces of rabbit in packages for 35 cents. Each package contains about five servings. This new method of preparing rabbit comes from a packer in Baltimore and is proving popular in Washington.

From mucklands in Florida, where many fortunes have been spent trying to produce asparagus, there is coming at last delicious, tender, winter asparagus. The Meanderer saw this asparagus in crates in the Southwest market wholesale region and advises that it is a most delicious bit for those who need not object to its price.

Turkeys, choice, fresh-killed, sell in a high-class Southwest market poultry house for 25 cents a pound. This poultry marketer plans to offer a carload of the best turkeys for Washington's Birthday feasts.

Fresh pineapples seem a year-round food in local markets. They are large, sweet and cost little, often found for 25 cents. Now that pineapple has risen so in the category of foods necessary for health, the unsweetened pineapple juice so low-priced in a chain store is of decided interest.

Dandelion greens at this time of year are a bit unusual. No one found them growing about, but a food dealer in a downtown market has ready some especially cultivated dandelion greens for only 10 cents a bunch.

Perfect grade, Delicious apples cost just six pounds for a quarter in the food stand where the dandelion greens are found.

Very coarse, crushed wheat for making breakfast cereal is just 10 cents a pound in a little Ninth street shop I frequent, and I recommend it for variety in morning menus.

Smooth, uniform-sized white onions for creaming are packed in quart boxes for 10 cents at a market stand on K street.

$5 AWARD IS MADE TO 'JELLY JUMBLES'

An interesting cake confection called "Jelly Jumbles," was judged the winning recipe in this week's Post contest. It was submitted by Jannette I. Secrest, of 3513 Northampton street, who will receive the $5 prize. Her recipe follows:

Materials:
1 cup butter
½ cup sour milk
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
Jelly flour.

Method: Cream the butter; add sugar gradually, egg well beaten, soda mixed with milk, salt and flour to make a soft dough. Chill and shape, using a round cutter. On the center of one-half the pieces put jelly. Make three small openings in remaining half, using a thimble, and put pieces together. Press edges slightly and bake in a medium hot oven that jumbles may keep in good shape.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

THE little subdeb, debutantes and other youthful types will plan their parties with much enthusiasm with this dainty frock in mind.

As you can see, there is just a hint of the "Puritan" in this effective dress, which makes it so especially lovely for sweet young things.

Soft crinkly crepe silk is a very charming medium for this model, though sheer crepe and crinkly satin crepe can also be used.

Style No. 3390 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

BOB WHITE

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question—At this time of the possible repeal of the eighteenth amendment, are you for or against its repeal?

Answer—As a father of growing children I do not favor the return of the old-time drinking saloons. On the other hand the secret drinking of today, and the hip-pocket holidays of so many of our younger generation are to be deplored, and again I say as a father I do not want my children brought up in this atmosphere, which I am sorry to say has pervaded every stratum of society.

In countries in which I have lived where drinking is a part of the family board I do not find as much sin and sordidness associated with it as we find here under the so-called prohibition.

You can not prohibit people's appetite. You may educate them to be sure, and this takes time—generations.

An immediate repeal will do a great deal of harm for a period. This is to be expected. The next thing we must do is to teach our children that wines are for the use and not the abuse of man. Then we may safely hope for a temperate people, who will govern themselves according to their capacity.

We need to write less laws upon our statute books, and more laws in the hearts of our people. This is particularly true with this question we answer today.

Yes, I am for repeal. After that I am for strict enforcement of the laws that will govern the distribution and consumption of liquors and spirits.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WHAT Powel Crosley, jr., believes to be the future of high power in this country is revealed in the order he has placed with the R. C. A.-Victor Co. for the installation of the largest broadcasting transmitter in the United States. It is to be built for experimental use in connection with Station WLW, Cincinnati, and will be capable of transmitting with 500,000 watts of power.

The contract calls for the installation of the new transmitter within a year at a cost estimated at $400,000. The highest regular power assigned to any transmitter in the United States by the Federal Radio Commission, for regular use, is 50,000 watts.

OLD-TIME moving pictures, photographs and movies of old-time automobiles, pictures of any old-time device, afford us much amusement and such relics have been heard and seen a great deal of late.

Always in the lead in providing novelties for his listeners, "Hollywood" McCosker, managing director of WOR, Newark, in celebration of the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the broadcaster, next Thursday night at 9 o'clock, will invite the radio audience to listen to a reproduction of the first program ever broadcast by WOR. The station's original, primitive equipment will be used.

In addition to this, "Hollywood" will polish off his silk topper and broadcast his first speech since he was elected president of the National Association of Broadcasters. Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey will speak, as will Robert Clothier, president of Rutgers University, and Edward Bamberger, president of the Bamberger Broadcasting Service.

When WOR began operation 11 years ago it was broadcasting on 250 watts power, but today uses 50,000 watts, being one of the most powerful stations in the United States. In the beginning the little old haywire set-up probably didn't cost more than a few hundred dollars, but today its owners, Messrs. Strauss, of R. H. Macy & Co., New York, are said to value it at between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000.

GIUSEPPE VERDI'S "Rigoletto" will be heard in its entirety from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City over WRC, beginning at 2 p. m.

Lily Pons, Giuseppe De Luca, Gladys Swarthout and Giacomo Lauri-Volpi will sing the celebrated quartet. Vincenzo Bellezza will conduct the opera, which will be sung in Italian. The cast will be as follows.

Rigoletto, Giuseppe De Luca.
Gilda, Lily Pons.
Maddalena, his sister, Gladys Swarthout.
Giovanna, friend of Maddalena, Philine Falco.
Monterone, enemy of the duke, Alfredo Gandolfi.
Marullo, a gossip, Millo Picco.
Borsa, a courtier, Angelo Bada.
Count Ceprano, a nobleman, Paolo Ananian.
The Countess, his wife, Elda Vettori.

Frank Black has discovered the Land Where the Good Songs Go, and plans to visit it with Countess Albani, the Revelers and a concert orchestra for an hour each Saturday night, at 10 o'clock, starting tonight. This feature will be heard instead of the Lucky Strike series featuring light opera favorites and a dance orchestra.

The Land Where the Good Songs Go is a land of melody where the well-remembered popular and semi-classical songs of yesterday and the day before are waiting to live again under the stimulus of the director's baton. For the opening broadcast Countess Albani will sing "Who'll Buy My Violets?" and "Wanting You," from "New Moon."

THE Little Congress annual banquet proceedings will be broadcast over WJSV at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The address will be delivered by Senator William J. Bulow, of South Dakota.

The Little Congress is an organization of secretaries, assistants and others—to members of Congress. An explanation of the founding and purpose of the group will be related by Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House.

Mary Ruth Rountree, young soprano from Georgia, who is preparing for an operatic career under Queena Mario, will be the soloist. She will be accompanied by Ruth Bermon, of the Julliard School of Music.

An official censor of songs has been appointed by the N. B. C. He will peruse the lyrics of all new tunes and decide upon their suitability for loudspeaker consumption. If the lyrics are considered out of line, the vocal rendition of the composition will be barred from any source on the chain, although the music may be played.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with soloists and chorus, during the program under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky over the WJZ-WBAL hook-up at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

The Prelude to and the Good Friday Spell from "Parsifal," by Wagner, will round out the program.

A VIENNESE program arranged by Dr. Hugh Riesenfeld (WRC, 9 o'clock) will include the Strauss selections, "A Night in Venice," "Harmonies of the Hemispheres," Kreisler's "The Old Refrain," Heuberger's "Midnight Bells," "Under the Double Eagle," Dvorak's Slavonic Dance and selections from "Sari," the popular operetta of twenty years ago.

Tony Wons' experiment the other morning with his voice, heard in Washington over WJSV, didn't cost the network a cent. Furthermore, it didn't cost Tony anything if he has an unlimited telephone service.

Tony set out to prove that radio does not change a voice so much, using his dog at home to prove it. His wife put the dog in front of the radio at home and Tony, while on the air, commanded it to do tricks. The dog did them and the wife reported, a page boy bringing the result to Tony at the mike in the Columbia building downtown.

Stocks Quit Lower Ground For First Time This Week

Seven-Tenths Gain Added as Sales Decline to 659,795 Shares.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Stocks felt a little better today and closed higher for the first time this week.

A speculative flurry in equities of companies manufacturing products that might stand to benefit by prohibition change and a boost for the rails provided sufficient leverage to bring a general assortment of fractional to 2-point net gains, though volume totaled only 653,795 shares.

The shift in market direction, after a three-day decline, was in the face of continued pressure against dollars from a number of foreign currencies and a weak Government bond list.

Stocks apparently looked with greater equanimity of selling on dollars, even though some foreign monies reached quotations that would make profitable gold exports from this country. Bankers attributed the sharp reversal in trend to European alarms over the attempted assasination of Mr. Roosevelt, pointing out that in foreign quarters the incident might be regarded as having a political significance not accorded it here. Doubtless, also, the banking situation in Michigan had caused some unsettlement abroad; and the current combinations of factors, it was assumed, has revived professional speculation against dollars.

Shares were moderately steady until the later afternoon hours, when short covering, based on the earlier tone, became a little more vigorous. Owens Illinois Glass, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Crown Cork & Seal and National Distillers lifted 1 to 2 points but did most of their advancing before noon. There was a similar range of net gains for American Can, McKeesport Tin Plate, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Allied Chemical, Dupont, Case, American Tobacco "B" Westinghouse Electric and National Biscuit—many of them being stocks which supposedly harbored a substantial short interest. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Harvester, New York Central, Southern Pacific and Union Carbide were up about half a point on the average.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

Treasury receipts for February 15 were $77,688,748.11; expenditures, $76,325,146.20; balance, $341,354,394.36. Customs duties for 15 days of February were $8,671,976.29.

BONDS' TONE STEADY AS FEDERALS DROP

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Bonds displayed a reasonably steady tone today in the face of unusually wide declines in the United States Government list. Price movements were irregular and there were several soft spots in the rail division, but for all these features the market as a whole showed a better resistance to selling than on Thursday.

Principally as a result of weakness in parts of the rail and utility lists, the composite average was again lowered, this time by 4-10 of a point. Transactions amounted to $11,061,000 compared with $11,451,000 on the previous day.

The recession in Treasury and Liberty loans seemed out of proportion to the comparatively small volume of selling in the group. U. S. Treasury 4¼s had an extreme decline of ⅞ of a point, but this was narrowed slightly at the close. In the rest of the list losses extended to ½ point.

Certain of the rail obligations enjoyed fair recoveries from Thursday's slump, but others sank still lower. Losses of a point or two occurred in some issues of the Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Milwaukee, and New York Central. Several of these and other carriers were represented in the day's gains.

Bonds representing various lines of industry showed a tendency to improve, this being particularly true of the issues of American Cyanamid, American Type Founders, Commercial Credit, Corn Products and Wheeling Steel. Second-grade issues in both industrial and utility divisions were generally soft.

The foreign division again showed marked irregularity with some slight rallies in Germans and others which were heavily sold yesterday. Most of the Japanese loans continued heavy.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—Trading on the stock exchange was generally quiet with a fair recovery in Chinese, German and Japanese bonds. Gilt-edged securities and gold mining shares advanced in the early trading, but with industrials and oils drooped again in the afternoon on profit taking. The closing was irregular.

Paris—The bourse was adversely affected by the decline in the dollar and the market suffered general losses. The closing was heavy.

SILK MARKET.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed firm; sales, 3,910 bales; March, 1.18(b); May, 1.17(b); July, 1.17. Open market quotations (60-day basis) Shanghai steam extra B, 1.15; Canton double extra A, 14@16s, .95; Japanese crack, double extra, 1.27.

Sugar Prices Gain as Java Votes to Curtail Production

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Thanks to the stolid Dutch producers in Java, sugar has been exerting a sweetening influence in the commodity markets, scoring striking gains.

Raw sugar futures have appreciated almost 30 per cent in value in the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. For instance, the March delivery sold on February 3 at 0.65 of 1 cent a pound. Yesterday it touched 0.84. These quotations are before payment of duty, which adds 2 cents to the price.

While coffee and tin have actually topped the levels of a year ago, sugar is creeping up on last year. Yesterday's closing price of 0.84 for March delivery compared with a closing price of 0.93 on that date in 1932.

Inasmuch as raw sugar was a leader in last summer's upturn in commodity prices, market observers hope its present rise may be prophetic.

The rise evidently started by reports that Java, second only to Cuba in sugar production, might limit her crop for the 1933-34 season to only 450,000 tons, against 1,320,000 in 1932-33.

Another helpful influence has been trade gossip that Javan producers were making overtures to Havana for cooperation between its export agency, V. I. S. P., and Cuba's "Single Seller" agency, which handles all her exports.

The Chadbourne plan, sponsored by Thomas A. Chadbourne, of New York, lead down a definite quota plan for principal producers outside the United States. While the plan was severely buffeted last year by the world-wide depressions its future now seems more hopeful.

The statistical position of sugar has definitely improved. Willett & Gray estimate the 1932-33 crop year production at 23,830,000 tons for the world, a reduction of 9.8 per cent from the 1931-32 year, and comparing with 28,789,000 in 1930-31 year.

The Javan producers cut their crop for 1932-33 to about 1,320,000, from 2,575,000 in the previous year, the most sweeping reduction made by any of the principal producing countries. Cuba curtailed its crop to about 2,000,000 tons, or about 600,000 below the previous year.

Loans to Brokers Boosted $5,000,000

CURB RENEWS GAINS IN IRREGULAR SALES

Market Follows Big Board as Turnover Drops to 110,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The curb market engaged in an irregular recovery today. Transfers totaled 110,000 shares, against 140,000 yesterday.

Industrial and dividend news was meager, the market taking its direction mainly from the action of prices on the stock exchange, where rallying tendencies were in evidence. Traders showed considerable disposition to stay on the sidelines.

United Gas preferred responded to a lowering of the dividend rate with a rise of more than 2 points. The last previous payment having been 87½ cents.

Other utility stocks were steady, following several days of reactionary bent due to the combined influences of a moderate down trend in power production figures and to reports of possible rate reductions. Electric Bond & Share was a shade higher while Niagara Hudson Power eased a slight fraction. Commonwealth Edison lost a point in dull trading and American Gas & Electric gained a like amount.

The oils moved in a narrow orbit. Standard of Indians slipped a fraction while Standard of Kentucky gained a little. Gulf and Humble were steady.

Aluminum, Singer, United Shoe Machinery and Newmont gained slightly. The Ford issues were steady.

U. S. Steel Offers Sale Of Shares to Employes

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The United States Steel Corporation today announced an offering of 200,000 shares of common stock to its employes at $27 a share, under the annual subscription plan. The offering price a year ago was $40 a share for the same amount.

U. S. Steel common closed on the New York Stock Exchange today at $27.12, a net gain for the day of 50 cents.

Week's Bank Failures Decline Sharply to 23

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—This week's bank failures dropped sharply to a total of 23, against 45 last week, due to the effectiveness of bank stabilization acts in some States and emergency moratorium measures in others, the American Banker reported today.

Suspensions were scattered as follows: Three each in California, Washington and Missouri; two in Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey and New York, and one each in Illinois, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas. Deposit liabilities affected were approximately $10,260,000. For the year to date, there have been 320 closings, tying up $175,884,000 of deposits.

"Michigan's moratorium was effective there in obtaining time for the reorganization of an extensive branch banking situation," said the publication.

CORN LEADS WHEAT IN SPIRITED ADVANCE

Repeal Legislation Causes Speculation in Grains; Provisions Drop.

Chicago, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Corn prices ran briskly upward a cent a bushel today, and rural holders seized the chance to realize cash on the largest business this season.

Likelihood that the House of Representatives at Washington would give quick approval Monday to the prohibition repeal bill which passed the Senate yesterday was largely responsible for the action of the corn market. Proposed legislation to facilitate manufacture of corn alcohol for automobile use acted also as a strengthening influence on values.

Corn closed firm, but at some setback from the day's top, ¼ to ¾ above yesterday's finish; wheat, unchanged to ¼ up; oats, ¼ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Speculation In Corn.

Concentrated speculative purchasing of corn went hand in hand with the jump in prices. One big trader was credited with buying a million bushels of future deliveries. In some quarters, this buying was regarded as an offset to previous heavy sales on his part. A contributing stimulus to price upturns was word from Buenos Aires that the corn harvest in Northern Argentina showed very poor returns.

Closing of so-called "spread" trades had an important effect both on corn and wheat prices, helping to ease wheat and simultaneously hoist corn. Deferred deliveries of corn were in particular demand, with September contracts gaining half a cent on July at one time. It was estimated that upward of 1,000,000 bushels of corn to arrive in Chicago has been bought so far this week.

Wheat price gains were promoted by indications that 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken for export, in addition to a large amount yesterday. The bullish effect, however, was subsequently counterbalanced by selling here ascribed to United States Government financed sources. Oats responded to corn strength.

Provisions were steadied by upturns of hog values.

Bank Clearings

Bank clearings for the week ended February 15 are in decided contrast to the showing made in the preceding week. Total clearings at 47 leading cities, as reported to Bradstreet's Weekly, amounted to only $3,747,290,000, 24.7 per cent below the corresponding 1932 week. For the previous week a gain of 1.8 per cent had been reported. In New York City a loss of 21.8 per cent took place, compared to a rise of 9.6 per cent last week. Clearings outside New York City were 30.2 per cent less than a year ago, whereas the drop from 1932 was only 12.4 per cent last week.

The reason for this week's seemingly poor showing is similar to the cause of the apparent improvement widely commented on a week ago—the periods are by no means comparable. The 1933 week ended February 15 contains little or none of the midmonth payments. The 1932 week ended February 18 did. The previous 1933 week, since it ended on the 8th, contained first-of-the-month payments. The 1932 week, ended on the 11th, did not. Judging by the more accurate standard of the Weekly Clearings Index, compiled by Bradstreet's Weekly, the real trend is apparent. This index, which makes allowance for such changes, fell last week from 39.7 to 38.4 per cent of the 1928-30 average, and this week dropped again to 35.8. A year ago the index stood at 48.6.

The following table gives the clearings by cities, for this week and last, together with per cent change as compared with the same week of last year.

COTTON PRICES GAIN IN SPITE OF LOSSES

May Closes at 6.13 as General Market Rises 4 to 7 Points.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Cotton reacted after an early advance today. July closed at 6.25, or 9 points off from the best, with the general market finishing barely steady at net advance of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was 4 to 8 points higher in response to steady Liverpool cables and foreign buying, including Liverpool, continental and Japanese.

There also was some buying through commission houses and Wall street sources, but demand narrowed on the advance to 6.07 for March and 6.22 for May. Prices worked off from the best under realizing or liquidation was coupled with some Southern selling in the late trading. Closing quotations showed reactions of 6 to 9 points from the best on the more active positions.

March Selling Continues.

March liquidation continued during the day, with considerable switching into later deliveries without much change in the differences. There were unconfirmed reports of a better spot demand in the Southwest, and these were given some weight by the apparent absence of Southern selling pressure.

Liverpool cables said hedge selling had been taken by trade calling and reported a quiet market for cotton cloths in Manchester, although noting some inquiry from India and China.

Additional rains were reported in the belt, which were thought likely to cause further delays in farm work and retard the movement.

Exports today 51,988, making 5,473,967 so far this season. Port receipts, 25,171; U. S. port stocks, 4,639,774.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil showed little change today. Trading consisted principally of exchanging from March for September at 40 points difference.

Price changes were narrow and unimportant, with the market closing unchanged to 1 point lower. Steadiness of lard, cotton and grains were supporting factors. Sales were 30 contracts, or 4,500 barrels, including 18 contracts in the way of exchanges. Bleachable spot closed 3.56; March, 3.70; May, 3.86; July, 3.96; September, 4.08.

SUGAR—Raw was firm today, with prices 8 points higher for spots on increased demand from refiners. Offerings were comparatively light. Sales reported, including some closed late the previous day, aggregated about 54,000 bags of Philippines and 57,000 bags of Puerto Rican, mostly March arrival to refiners, at 2.80, while operators bought 27,000 bags of Philippines for March-April shipment at 2.82 and 15,000 bags at 2.82. Offerings were well absorbed and the continued steadiness of the spot market led to renewed covering and buying by houses with Cuban contracts. March contracts sold from .81 to .84, while July, after reacting to .67, advanced to .91, with final prices at the best of the session.

Refined was unchanged at 3.90 but the tone was firm owing to the advance in raws. Demand, however, was still light and confined to nearby requirements.

WEEK'S TRADE SEEN POINTING TO UPTURN

Dun and Bradstreet Find Encouraging Signs of Improvement.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The weekly mercantile reviews today found reasons for encouragement in current business news.

"There was more in the reports on trade conditions this week," said R. G. Dun & Co., "to general encouragement and more developments calculated to indicate that progress has not ceased, even though its pace may have slackened somewhat in certain branches of activity.

"The period of readjustment now under way gives increasing evidence that business gradually is recovering from the most unfavorable phases which have hampered its forward movement, and that for all the lack of outstanding gains in many important divisions, bearish influences to effect recession are being resisted vigorously.

Interest in Catastrophes.

"Too much attention apparently is being focused on catastrophes and too little interest being taken in the expanding foundation that is being built, quietly but steadily, by those possessing patience, fortitude and faith in the future.

"Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers have cleaned out most of their old stocks, made heavy cuts in inventories, instituted substantial operating economies and, in many instances, have built up good cash reserves after curtailing liabilities substantially.

"Where operating profits are not being realized, losses virtually are being eliminated by increased efficiency in management.

Commodity Price Action.

"The action of commodity markets this week was in the right direction, particularly as it has carried with it an advance in the major agricultural offerings.

"Retail distribution is showing pronounced resistance to further curtailment. Buying of winter merchandise was even larger than it was a week ago."

Bradstreet's said the week found general business "resisting adverse news reports with fair success," helped by cold weather which brought individual price advances and larger sales volume in some lines.

READING COMPANY'S EARNINGS INCREASE

Net Up to $1.02 on Shares, Compared with 37 Cents in '31.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The Reading Co., operating the railroad of the same name, had net income of $4,228,789 last year, equal to $1.02 a common share, compared with $3,314,928 or 37 cents a share in 1931.

A net income for 1932 applicable to common stock of $3,817,893.95, or $2.02 a share, compared with $4,054,-841.16 or $2.12 a share in 1931, was reported today by P. Lorillard Co.

Current assets were placed at $57,-908,510.11 and current liabilities at $2,888,179.72. The assets included $14,907,746.14 cash and $2,040,737.99 of U. S. bonds.

The Underwood, Elliott, Fisher Co. and subsidiaries report for 1932 consolidated net loss of $763,070, compared with net income of $1,401,060 or $1.79 a share on the common stock in 1931.

Current assets as shown in the balance sheet for December 31 amounted to $11,345,876 and current liabilities $606,490, compared with $13,893,366 and $911,385, respectively, at the end of 1931. Cash amounted to $4,104,957 against $4,414,754 a year ago. The company has no bank loans.

Southern Pacific Co. in a preliminary statement issued today shows consolidated net loss for 1932 of $9,470,001 compared with net income of $8,881,333 in 1931, equal to $1.92 a share on the capital stock.

This heavy falling off in revenues, Chairman Hale Holden said, reflected the decreased activity in all lines of business, and resulting intensified competition with steamship lines, motor trucks and other forms of transportation.

Total operating revenues of Southern Pacific lines were $56,065,085, a decrease of 28.2 per cent from 1931.

The report disclosed that at the end of 1932 Southern Pacific owned an aggregate of $23,128 shares or 87.14 per cent of the outstanding common and preferred stocks of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co.

American Locomotive Co. today reported net loss, after all charges, of $4,589,716 for 1932, compared with loss of $3,929,384 in 1931.

Unfilled orders on January 1 amounted to $1,079,891, against $4,-621,456 at the beginning of the previous year. Current assets as of December 31 were $18,884,064, against current liabilities of $1,428,794, compared with $24,491,964 and $1,861,737, respectively, at the close of 1931.

Directors of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. today reduced the quarterly dividend on the capital stock to 25 cents from 50 cents. The disbursement is payable March 15 to shares of record March 1.

The United Gas Corporation today declared a dividend of 25 cents on the $7 preferred stock, payable March 1 to stock of record February 21. The previous payment was 87½ cents on December 1 last. The company is a subsidiary of the Electric Power & Light Co., of the Electric Bond & Share group.

U. S. MILLS SEEKING REFINED SUGAR DUTY

(Associated Press.)

Representatives of domestic sugar refineries told the tariff commission yesterday that imports of refined sugars are "flooding the Eastern and Gulf States and driving from the market sugar produced in the United States."

Wilbur L. Cummings, of New York, attorney for domestic refiners, said that the imports have increased from 1,182 tons in 1925, to 423,247 tons in 1932, with the last year's imports representing a 31 per cent increase over 1931. The result, he said, is that many jobs have been lost to citizens of this country and the refining industry has been paralyzed.

Unless an increase in the differential between the tariffs on refined and raw sugars is provided, Mr. Cummings predicted an increased flood of refined sugar imports and more widespread unemployment in the industry.

Senator Walsh and Representative McCormack, Massachusetts Democrats, also asked the commission for an increased differential, asserting that American refineries may be forced to transfer their business to Cuba.

Daniel C. Roper, former commissioner of Internal Revenue, appearing as counsel for a group of Cuban sugar companies, protested that the present tariff on raw sugar is so high it has prostrated the industry in Cuba.

He urged that the commission in making its report of the sugar investigation to the President append a recommendation for a sugar production allotment plan to apply to the Philippines, Puerto Rico and Hawaii, whose sugars now enter without duty. The tariff on Cuban raw sugar is 2 cents a pound.

Mr. Roper said that while Cuba has cut production 50 per cent, expansion of production is proceeding in the insular possessions and that this "is unfair to Cuba." He said a quota production could be worked out which would require action by Congress. He suggested that it might follow the design of the immigration quota law, permitting the entry of only certain quantities of sugar into the United States from each possession annually.

Japanese Demand Kailu's Evacuation

Chinese Will Ignore Note; Crisis in Jehol Now Seems Imminent.

Peiping (Saturday), Feb. 18 (A.P.).—Japan today sent an ultimatum to the Chinese commander at Kailu, in northeast Jehol, demanding the immediate evacuation of the city.

This was announced in an official Chinese communique, which added that if the ultimatum were not obeyed the Japanese would attack Kailu, a strategic point in the province which Japan aims to add to Manchukuo.

The Chinese have decided to ignore the demand, the announcement said. Meanwhile, Japanese troop movements continued and the crisis in Jehol seemed imminent.

"PRIVATE JONES." Universal picturization of a story by Richard Schayer, featuring Lee Tracy, with Gloria Stuart, Shirley Grey, Russell Gleason, Emma Dunn, Walter Catlett and Frank McHugh. Directed by Russell Mack. Previewed Thursday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

The possibilities of disaster in the life of a not too conscientious objector during the World War are pretty thoroughly recapitulated in this acrid comedy of a draft dodger who wasn't raised to be a soldier.

As "Private Jones," Lee Tracy finds it difficult to fit himself into the major purposes of the A. E. F. Discipline means nothing to him; orders almost as little. Most of the time he spends working out long sentences of K. P. duty, under a dull-witted mess sergeant who still is smart enough to keep himself out of trouble. When not in the brig, Jones is innocently defying authority—especially his first lieutenant—and paving the way for further and more severe penalties.

In one burst of temper he socks the "looey" right on his button—a breach of discipline that is construed as a clever ruse on his part to evade service in the front line, to which his outfit is moving up. So he is sent along. Out in the thick of an artillery barrage circumstances shape themselves so that the rebellious Mr. Jones and his commanding officer are placed in a tight spot and come through by reason of certain heroic acts of Private Jones, which earn him a trinket to hang on his shirt in the form of a D. S. C.

Of course, there was a girl in it—a Red Cross worker back in the hut behind the lines, with whom Jones fell quietly and unostentatiously in love before he knew she was the wife of his hated Nemesis, the lieutenant.

This sounds dangerously like a cut-and-dried and wholly conventional war yarn with no fang of novelty in it. As a matter of fact, it goes much farther than that and takes on some importance as a humorous but penetrating analysis of mental processes and resentments that probably were characteristics of a vast section of the American Army that went to France blindly and uncomprehendingly, for it knew not what. Private Jones' magnificent capacity for getting himself into trouble is productive of an enormous amount of plausible and pungent comedy, but in many of his speeches and much of his deportment there is a stinging indictment of a system that has as its primary object the conversion of citizenry into cannon fodder.

Lee Tracy plays his part from Brooklyn right up to the doors of Berlin and back again! His simple and unaffected study of a lad caught up in the draft will stand a considerably more minute examination than most of the happy-go-lucky characters he has contributed to a light and irresponsible screen. "Private Jones" affords a good deal to think seriously about while it delivers its steady bombardment of laughs, and Mr. Tracy permits none of it to escape his incisive attention.

Two outstanding performances in support are contributed by Donald Cook, as the lieutenant, and Frank McHugh, as the mess sergeant with a sense of humor as well as duty. McHugh, like Tracy, has never been more effective, and Cook makes a genuinely fine job of a role that elicits scant sympathy. Gloria Stuart is the girl and minor roles are played with skill by Shirley Grey, Russell Gleason, Berton Churchill, Emma Dunn, Ethel Clayton and Walter Catlett. Mr. Catlett is particularly effective as the Y. M. C. A. worker who seemed strangely out of place in his brutally masculine surroundings!

There is a deal of the horror of war scattered about through the action, after things get going in France, but there is never a time when Mr. Tracy is not superior to the artillery as a center of interest.

The supplementary program is led by "I Know Everybody and Everybody's Racket," a bit of urban sophistication starring Walter Winchell, a newspaper fellow, or something. Indeed, the Universal News, with Graham McNamee as vocal as usual, is the only other auxiliary to augment a feature that is completely competent to stand on its own merits. Obviously, you will get a bang out of it!

EARLE

Blondie Johnson is a throwback.

She dates right back to those ancient days of racketeers and gangs, molls and gunmen, killed forever (or so we had hoped), by the final burst of carnage in "Scarface."

This hackneyed tale is a silly thing, with Joan Blondell playing a sort of Mary ("Within the Law") Turner more wisecracking than wise and more without than within. The amiable Chester Morris wanders through as a big shot, weak as water in Blondie's hands, but so tough, physically, that neither bullets nor careening cars can down him.

After a painful but thankfully brief burst of Joan's giving her all for drama's sake in a very lachrymose beginning, which could easily be omitted, since she tells about it plus trimmings later on, she turns into her usual brisk and snappy self as a wise blonde making the big city give the little girl a helping hand.

From cheap sob-story graft to de luxe racketeering is just a couple of hops, skips and jumps to Blondie, the skip being love, since the little lady's motto is "business before pleasure."

Joan is cute and flip if slightly unsympathetic, handling her wisecracks, even those which are somewhat less than inspired, well. Chet Morris hasn't much to do but grin or scowl or chew gum, but even in this he seems to mean whichever he does. He also dies once, but the movies took it over and gave him a curtain call.

Mae Busch has a little more to do than usual. Allen Jenkins continues to be as amusing as he has been ever since "Blessed Event, and there is a masterly collection of strange and sinister looking citizens in the gangs.

On the stage, melody-man Gus Van pleases with character songs. The Twelve Aristocrats present a graceful act, featuring Marilyn Miller's gentle ballroom adagio-type of dancing but with enough young ladies to go round. The casting Campbells in an aerial act and Sidney Page, assisted by Petite Marie and Peggy Earle, complete the flesh-and-blood portion of the program. In introducing it, Maxine Doyle ventures one old-time "Thank youuuuu" plus a wink.

A newsreel, a Roscoe Arbuckle comedy, which has its funny moments and its sadly antiquated ones, and Freddie Clark leading the band in a Washington's Birthday (no, not Bicentennial) overture complete the bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"TOPAZE." RKO-Radio picturization of Benn W. Levy's translation of the play by Marcel Pagnol, adapted to the screen by Ben Hecht, starring John Barrymore, with Myrna Loy, Reginald Mason, Albert Conti, Luis Alberni, Frank Reicher and Jobyna Howland. Directed by Harry D'Arrast. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

The youngest of the Barrymores has gone whimsical—delightfully and disarmingly quaint and naive, but with a bit of acid and iron under all the soft-voiced gentleness and vast bewilderment at the world.

It would be difficult to conjure two more widely divergent roles than Prince Chegodieff, the ardent young patriot of "Rasputin and the Empress," and Prof. Auguste Topaze, the school teacher and pseudo-scientist of "Topaze," now revealing its many irresistible qualities at RKO-Keith's. Yet, poles apart as they are, John Barrymore plays them with equal competence and authority. His Prince Chegodieff, of course, already is known to a large segment of Washington filmgoers. Topaze, the artful rogue, deserves to be known by an even greater number.

Here is an assignment that entails the double function of creating an almost uninterrupted flow of delicious comedy and maintaining a characterization that abounds in those simple and transparent traits that are hardest of all to assume with any authentic realism. In the minute punctilio of the typical "absent-minded professor," as well as in the gradual evolution of a shrewd, perceptive and acquisitive sophisticate, Barrymore is superb. Playing with utter and unfailing repression, squeezing every drop of humor out of deftly written and erudite lines and completely harmonizing amusing action with perfect rhythm of both speech and gesture, he offers a demonstration of that rare acting technique that loses itself completely in the illusion of actuality. He IS Topaze, credulous, conciliatory and crafty.

The story, of course, is a feathery thing having to do with a meek little professor, expelled from his post at a private school for boys, who becomes the business associate of the husband and father of the Amazonian mother and pampered son who were the instigators of his dismissal. The Baron is a gentleman of shady practices, not only in business but in his domestic relationships, as well, and it is in this fact that Prof. Topaze finds his opportunity. And that opportunity he puts to splendid account.

Inconsequential as the story may be, it is given extraordinary artistic importance by the superiority of Mr. Barrymore's flawless performance and by the excellence of the support accorded him by Reginald Mason, as the Baron; Myrna Loy, in the compromising position of the Baron's secret romance; Frank Reicher, the Doctor Stegg, who conducts the academy for boys; Albert Conti, Parisian politician and industrial conniver of the first water—the poison "Topaze Mineral Water," perhaps—Luis Alberni, an "Honest" Rascal, and Jobyna Howland, as the abundant Baroness. Master Jackie Searle is diabolically precocious in another of his irritating juvenile creations.

Descending a few levels from the high plane of Mr. Barrymore and his efficient associates' fascinating drollery, Walter Catlett and "Skeets" Gallagher, aided and abetted by a clever cast of farceurs, provide further hilarity in a robust marital comedy that bears the title of "Private Wives" and is woven around an idea of substantial worth, as such things go.

Other supplementaries include an Ann Leaf-Donald Novis, combination organlogue and song reel, "Night of Romance," musically worth the time it consumes, and a new issue of the Pathe News, in which William Hard, Washington political observer and writer, achieves an immediate, if slightly unfortunate, audience response.

PALACE

"STATE FAIR." Fox Films picturization of the novel by Phil Stong, featuring Will Rogers, Janet Gaynor, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Louise Dresser, Norman Foster, Frank Craven, Victor Jory and Frank Melton. Directed by Henry King. Reviewed Friday night by M. A. McKevitt.

Here is a page taken from the book Americana, an honest account of one portion of American life, a realistic presentation which proves again that fact can be made as interesting as fiction.

Hollywod has focused its cameras on a State fair and the result is something different in the way of movie entertainment. Perhaps it would not be too much to say that "State Fair" will be the forerunner of a cycle of pictures in which the American scene is further exploited.

The direction shows that an earnest effort has been made to be faithful to the demands of this well-known Literary Guild prize-winning story. The cast is completely proficient, every person being well suited to the character portrayed.

The action takes place on a farm and at the fair grounds. Each member of the Frake family has some special reason for attending this State Mecca: The father wants his 900-pound hog, Blue Boy, to win the grand prize; Melissa Frake, his wife, intends to capture prizes for her sour and sweet pickles and her mincemeat; the son practices in the barn throwing embroidery hoops at pegs in order to even up a score with a certain barker at a concession stand, and the daughter is eager to get away and "raise hell."

This country family spend a week at the fair and we think that you will follow their interesting interlude with deep interest and keen enjoyment. You are bound to buckle up in your seat at Congressman Goodheart's speech before the judging of the prize boars and last night's audience almost caused a riot when the professors from the Agricultural College performed the solemn ceremony of scrutinizing "Blue Boy" and his competitor, preparatory to announcing the winner of the porker exhibit.

Although Will Rogers is a perfect Abel Frake, he does not have an opportunity to be entirely the center of attraction. We'd give that honor to "Blue Boy." Janet Gaynor continues to leave the sentimental manner of acting behind her for a more expressive characterization and Lew Ayres should please any one as the lover-reporter. Shapely and smiling Sally Eilers and Norman Foster do excellent work as the other pair of romantics. The two most brilliant performances were contributed by Louise Dresser and Victor Jory, the latter being a barker. His part was very minor but excellent. Frank Craven's acting was characteristic and a bit erratic.

A Mickey Mouse cartoon, unusually interesting, a frolicking Flip the Frog comedy, a nonsensical Charley Chase farce and a fine Metrotone News release augmented an evening of rich entertainment.

METROPOLITAN

"THE KING'S VACATION." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Ernest Pascal, starring George Arliss, with Dudley Digges, O. P. Heggie, Marjorie Gateson, Dick Powell, Patricia Ellis and Florence Arliss. Directed by John Adolfi. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

The moment the introductory scenes of regal grandeur in and about the palace of Philip, the king, are disclosed, one realizes that here is to be another subtle satire on governmental procedures, somewhat in the Robert Emmett Sherwood manner. It is all too grand to be real; too imaginative to be mistaken for an essay at serious fact. And that is the way it turns out.

The early portions of "The King's Vacation" are devoted to an explosion of the myth that monarchs are men of power. They are, it seems, mere puppets, whisked from one uniform to another as the day progresses and forced to sacrifice their every personal preference for the traditional demands of court cremonials upon their time and persons.

So King Philip abdicated, was freed from state obligations to perpetuate a royal marriage, and, released by his royal consort, returned speedily to his morganatic wife and grown daughter, from whom he had been torn almost two decades before to become the ostensible ruler of his country. Here, he had dreamed, would be the simple little cottage he had left; the tranquil pursuits of the countryside and his old workshop, where he could putter with his new marine engine, left incompleted when he was called to the throne.

But here, instead, he finds a wife with aspirations for high places; a "helpmeet" bent upon acquiring the things from which he has just escaped. By coincidence, his royal consort lives nearby in a neighboring village and revels in the rustic simplicities upon which his heart is set. The end should not be difficult to perceive!

There is keen satire, biting irony and a finely wrought quality of finesse in every movement of this simple, unflustered and not overly dramatic vehicle for a star whose interpretative powers are scarcely, if ever at all, invoked by its developments.

George Arliss, needless to say, plays the role of the king with poise, polish and intelligence. He is supported by an especially well-chosen company, led by Florence Arliss, his wife, in the role of the royalist who turns rustic; Marjorie Gateson, as the pastoral wife who went regal; Patricia Ellis, as the daughter; Dick Powell, as her plebeian lover, despised by the mother and admired by the king; Dudley Digges, O. P. Heggie—both in roles beneath their capabilities—Vernon Steele and James Bell.

The complementary attractions are diversified and diverting. Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, puts his dummy through an amusing lot of banter in "Africa Speaks English;" "Ride Him, Bosko" is an exciting "Looney Tunes" cartoon comedy, and Ruth Etting has one of her most pretentious short-reel subjects in "By-Gones," the musicalized reveries of an elderly lady telling her nieces and nephews a bedtime story. Miss Etting was never better.

The Paramount Sound News, with surprisingly complete views of the circumstances immediately preceding and immediately following the sensational attempt on the life of the President-elect in Miami, completes an entertainment the whole family can enjoy without a cringe.

LOEW'S FOX

"ISLAND OF LOST SOULS." Paramount picturization of "Island of Doctor Moreau," by H. G. Wells, featuring Charles Laughton, Leila Hyams, Richard Arlen, Kathleen Burke and Bela Lugosi. Directed by Erle Kenton. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Wiedorfer.

A weird, eerie, imaginative tale, this "Island of Lost Souls," and one that too-sensitive folks might well be advised not to see; but for those whose hearts are stout, this H. G. Wells' yarn of helping nature in evolving new forms will greatly appeal.

In its development, this picture strongly hints of Karel Kapek's highly dramatic "RUR." Where the Kapek opus was concerned with the making of robots out of cold steel and other inanimate materials, Mr. Wells invokes the philosophy that by changing the germplasm of animals, the processes of evolution can be speeded up several millenia. While the technique which Dr. Moreau employs (though not too clearly pictured) is perhaps basically impossible, the researches of recent years on the modification of life by X-ray irradiation makes the major thesis not too highly impossible.

Dr. Moreau, by changing the germplasm of animals, has evolved a race of anthropoids on his island which, as in "RUR," finally revolt because the human factors have been developed to such a point that the reason begins to function. Following the parallel still further, the race and the doctor are finally eradicated, preserving for mankind a world in status quo.

This picture is not what could be called, except to the addict of the so-called horror pictures, entertainment. Yet, in a way, it is, for there are combined all the dramatic elements in a most engrossing, though fanciful, manner even though the subject itself is out of the ordinary, and, at times, gruesome.

As the mad doctor—insane on the subject of this unnatural evolution—Charles Laughton gives another of his masterful delineations, painting in bold strokes this monomaniac. Richard Arlen and Leila Hyams are brought in for the purpose of testing the final achievement of the doctor's work—the fecundity of the man-made men. Kathleen Burke, as Lota, the panther woman, does a good piece of work in a part that demands the almost total repression of all human emotions, and Bela Lugosi, as the leader of the revolt, again proves himself no mean handler of make-up.

Headlining the stage portion of the bill is George Olsen and his band, assisted by Ethel Shutta. Following much the usual form for such acts, there are presented, besides strictly band numbers, duets and quartets, vocal and instrumental.

W. C. T. U. SPEAKER ADMITS WET GAINS

But Francis D. Nichol Sees Dry Reverses as Only Temporary.

Admitting that the public's declaration for light wines and beer has put the W. C. T. U. on the "defensive in a sense," Francis D. Nichol, author and lecturer, of Takoma Park, Md., yesterday assured members there is no danger of the organization losing its effectiveness. He spoke at the Frances Willard memorial services held by the District W. C. T. U. at the Methodist Building.

"We may, doubtless, be facing some temporary reversals . . . but there is no danger of having to forge all our weapons anew, or of having to build again all the support and aid that contributed to the enactment of national prohibition," Mr. Nichol said.

He pointed out that the wets have been embarrassed through their failure to offer a substitute "for dealing with the liquor problem." There are many persons who wish the return of light wines and beer who will join the dry forces before they will permit the return of the saloon, Mr. Nichol said. He charged that repeal in any form means the return of the saloon.

Other speakers on the program were Mrs. Hiram Wadleigh, president of the District W. C. T. U.; the Rev. Harry Burgan, pastor of the Hamline Methodist Church; Mrs. William Snell, of Washington, an officer in the organization, and Mrs. F. C. Brinley, of Washington.

Michigan Expects Bank Dictatorship

Eight-Day Moratorium May Be Extended Fully by Gov. Comstock.

Detroit, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Michigan tonight looked to an absolute "financial dictatorship" to solve its banking problems and to open—at least partially—normal channels of commerce soon after the present eight-day moratorium ends next Thursday.

In the hands of Gov. William A. Comstock, less than two months in office, would be placed the most far-reaching powers ever vested in a State executive under legislation which today went before the State's lawmakers. By Monday night, the governor said, he expected to be fully empowered to regulate banking operations.

The "acute financial emergency" in the Union Guardian Trust Co., of Detroit, which led Gov. Comstock to proclaim last Tuesday a banking holiday, he intimated tonight may lead to an extension of the moratorium. He said that "developments alone" will determine whether "a full or semimoratorium" will be continued after February 23.

"Agreement among the bankers as to just what should be done must be obtained," he said. Should they fail to agree, he added, "it may be necessary for me to order another mandatory holiday until such agreement can be reached."

'The Lord' Preaches Here Tomorrow

Harrison, of "Green Pastures," in First Congregational in Morning.

At the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, tomorrow morning Richard B. Harrison, who plays the Lord in "The Green Pastures," will be a pulpit guest and speaker. A unit from the Green Pastures Choir will offer a group of Negro spirituals. The service, which starts at 11 o'clock, will be broadcast over Station WOL.

In the evening at 8 o'clock, the Columbia Bible Training School Conference will hold a service. Bishop James E. Freeman will speak on "The Need of God and His Word in the World Today." Dr. Albert J. McCartney will speak on "The Bible, the Book of Life." The First Congregational Church Choir, under the direction of Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dear Mother: Today has not been lacking in excitement. Early this morning, Daisy, the maid, burst into my room in a ruffled state.

"That awful woman, who leaves whisky bottles all over her room, is back on my floor," she said. It was the one I wrote you about, Caroline King, whose father was once prominent in politics. Twice divorced here from her first husband, and married to him here after her first divorce, then married at the end of her second divorce to a freshman from the University of Montana, Reno thought it had seen the last of her. She bought property here before she left on her wedding trip to China. On the trip she discovered that her husband, aged 20 (whom she thought a dear, ingenuous boy), had overlooked the necessity of getting a divorce from his first wife, so she is back here to get an annulment. Of course, it is meat for the papers who are practically camping on her trail. Daisy is scandalized. She likes "nice, quiet ladies" like me on her floor.

"Don't judge Reno by her!" she kept muttering as she made my bed.

Did I tell you I met the Mayor of Reno and visited him in his office? He is a great animal lover and has a rare collection of birds, part of which decorate the office. The card-covered ceiling represents every big poker game played in the county from Territorial days to the present. He was for seven years in Washington and has a daughter living there now.

'Honest John' Admits 48 Years of Vote Trickery

Philadelphia, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—John J. McKinley, jr., treasurer of the Republican city central campaign committee, and known to politicians as "Honest John," said today that buying off of the opposition had been the practice of the Republican party in his district for the p t 48 years.

He made the statement while testifying in the election contest brought by John J. Shanahan, Democrat, to have Representative James M. Beck denied the congressional seat to which, on the face of the returns, he was reelected last November. McKinley testified that $12,205 was spent to insure Beck's reelection.

2 High Free State Officers Arrested

Dublin, Irish Free State, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Inspector William O'Connel, of the Civic Guards headquarters staff, and Col. George Hogan, an army officer, were arrested today on charges of violating the official secrets act.

They were arraigned on six counts and, after pleading not guilty, were remanded in custody until tomorrow. The prosecution opposed bail. The two men have been active politically. Col. Hogan is a brother of Patrick Hogan, former minister of agriculture and a lieutenant of former President William T. Cosgrave.

Stories were persistently current in Dublin tonight, despite apparently authoritative denials, that the arrests followed discovery by the government of plans to effect a coup d'etat.

Fords Accept Service In Sweeten Auto Case

Detroit, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—After several weeks of legal battling over the validity of a subpena served on Henry Ford by a ruse, and a brush between a chauffeur and deputies who attempted to serve a similar order on Edsel Ford, the Fords in a surprise move today voluntarily accepted new subpenas in a six-year-old legal action against the Ford Motor Co.

The subpenas ordered them to appear March 3 to give depositions in connection with the suit of the Sweeten Automobile Co., of Philadelphia, against the Ford Co.

SENATE CURBS TALK TO SPEED RELIEF BILL

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday tackled the unemployment relief problem with an earnestness that pointed to quick action on measures for additional Federal assistance at the present session.

Taking up the $500,000,000 direct Federal grant bill of Senators La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, it accepted after only brief discussion an amendment of Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, to liberalize Reconstruction Corporation loans for public improvement projects and then agreed unanimously to limit debate beginning today to hasten a final vote.

The issue, as in the last session, was whether the Government should make outright donations to the States for relief of the destitute and unemployed, as provided in the La Follette-Costigan measure, or increase the limit of loans for this purpose.

Wagner has a substitute pending to increase the existing $300,000,000 total for relief loans to States to $600,000,000, but this was not reached yesterday.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, proposed an amendment for issuance by the Treasury of $1,000,000,000 in stamped scrip as legal tender in payment of debts, but withdrew it after a lengthy speech in which he said he had "no illusions" about its fate.

Under the Wagner amendment approved yesterday, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation could make loans to States and municipalities for construction projects that are "needful and in the public interest" without requiring that they be "self-liquidating."

It also extends the destitution relief section to the District of Columbia and authorizes $5,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds to be used in enabling credit insurance organizations to provide export credit guaranties.

SENSATION HINTED BY DOCTOR IN SCHAAF'S DEATH

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BREATHLESS BENNY LADIS, whose claim to fame is that he is the brother of the man who owns a piece of Reds Barry, chief title to whom rested in two other men, is about town these days smoking up the Barry-Kennedy bout that is the feature attraction at Portner's Arena next Tuesday.

Since uttering his proclamation a month ago that Reds Barry, trained by Benny's brother, Mushky, is the outstanding heavyweight of the world, barring only the champion, Jack Sharkey, and the redoubtable Max Schmeling, Breathless Benny has revised his rankings and now rates the heavyweight talent of the world in this order: Reds Barry, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey.

Breathless Benny's new list of rankings smacks a bit of treason, for Schmeling is the prime favorite of his brother, Mushky, who trains the boxers of the Joe Jacobs stable as well as Barry. But Benny gets away with ranking Schmeling No. 2 to Barry on the grounds that he is merely the Washington mouthpiece for Barry, and his rankings, as a matter of fact, are never taken seriously by anybody.

Has Developed A Punch.

This department has it straight from Breathless Benny, who has it straight from his brother, Mushky, that Barry is the most improved fighter in the world today and the moment that Barry steps into the ring as the challenger in a world heavyweight title bout the world heavyweight title will change hands in short order, if not sooner.

It seems, according to Breathless Benny, who has it straight from his brother, Mushky, who wouldn't tell a lie, that Barry has developed a punch since leaving Washington, which is a great surprise to local fans who always admitted that Barry was something of a boxer but who waited in vain at Barry's local fights to see him uncork a punch hard enough to crush a newly laid egg.

"It's training that's done it," says Breathless Benny. "Training under my brother, Mushky, who is the best trainer in the world, bar none. Bar none, I mean. Ain't he the trainer of Max Schmeling and ain't Schmeling the best trained fighter in the world today? That's what Mushky has done for Barry. He gave Barry a punch."

Fought Main Bout At Age of 15.

Despite Ladis, Barry has undeniably gone a long way in his chosen profession of scrambling ears. He graduated from the Mohawk Club at the age of 14, after a two-year course in sweeping out the place at 50 cents a week, and after watching the assorted talent under the wing of Patsy Donovan naturally came by the opinion that if these boys were fighters he was a world champion.

A year later, at the age of 15, Barry had progressed so far as to box a main bout of ten rounds with Buster Newberry at Portsmouth, Va., losing the decision but firmly launching himself on a boxing career. A month later he reversed that verdict in favor of Newberry. Three years later, he celebrated his eighteenth birthday by signing to fight Maxie Rosenbloom at Laurel, losing the decision but gaining a thorough acquaintance with the finer art of boxing.

Barry then decided that his future lay in New York and a share of his contract was transferred to Mushky Jackson, trainer of Schmeling. In the past six months, under Jackson, Barry has beaten the best in the second flight of heavyweights, including Frankie Simmons, Arthur Huttick, Justin Surutus, Jack McCarthy and Isadore Gastanaga.

Knockouts Frequent In Indian Ball Game

Knockouts quite as impressive as those delivered in the ring and rough and tumbles on an average of one per five minutes likely will eventuate at Central High School stadium on the afternoon of March 3 in the Indian ball game being featured by the District Inaugural committee.

Indian ball, it is claimed, is one primitive sport that the Cherokee tribe has not allowed time to dim. All the courage and fortitude of this stoical, yet colorful band is brought out in these mix-ups.

Indian ball, the inaugural committee reports, is fascinating inasmuch as it combines all the thrills of baseball and lacrosse along with the roughness of football.

Listed as part of the double-header, All-Star lacrossemen of Annapolis and Baltimore come together. Tickets are available at Spalding's and hotel newsstands.

6 Star Milers Vie Tonight At Garden

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—A fighting field of six stars will compete in the Baxter mile of the New York A. C. games at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

If the race is run along prescribed lines it will be a duel between Gene Venzke, of the University of Pennsylvania, who set a world's record of 4:10 in this event a year ago, and Glenn Cunningham, husky Kansan, and late thorn in the Pennsylvanian's side.

Other entrants are Carl Coan, also of Pennsylvania, a dependable performer; Eric Ny, champion of Sweden at 1,500 meters; Leo Lermond, former national champion, who has slipped back a notch or so but who is often a dangerous foeman, and Frank Crowley, the on-coming young man of Manhattan College.

Cunningham Seen As Favorite.

Prerace favoritism tonight leaned toward Cunningham, who forced Venzke off the U. S. Olympic team, and who repeated with a well-won triumph in the Millrose games a fortnight ago. Cunningham has approached the peak of his form. He ran a 4:13 mile in winning the Millrose event, although he was not overly pressed. He has a record of 4:11.1, made in winning the national outdoor championships last summer. That's the fastest outdoor mile ever run in America.

Venzke, who stunned track and field followers by failing to qualify for the United States Olympic team after a winter and spring of dazzling performances, finished second to Cunningham in the Millrose mile. That defeat irked him tremendously for he had fancied himself on the high road to a comeback. Now he has another chance for revenge.

Bausch and Sexton Are Rivals.

Two Olympic champions, Jim Bausch and Leo Sexton, are others of importance in the N. Y. A. C. games entry list. Bausch, who set a new Olympic record for the decathlon, will compete in the pole vault and shotput, and Sexton, record-holder at 52 feet 6 3-16 inches in the shot, will appear only in his specialty.

Bausch is given no more than an outside chance of victory. Sexton, of course, is an almost certain shotput winner, and in the pole vault Bausch will compete with Keith Brown, Yale ace, who only recently reached 14 feet. Bausch, however, is capable of clearing 13 feet 6 inches in the vault, and of putting the shot past the 50-foot mark.

The 60-yard dash event offers possibilities of thrills with Emmett Toppino, of New Orleans, and Ed Siegel, of the Swedish-American A. C., as the marked starters.

Another top event is the half-mile which has Charles Hornbostel, of Indiana, and Glenn Dawson, of Oklahoma, as chief contestants.

Boxers of Two Forts Clash in Eight Rounds

Boxing teams of Fort Humphreys and Fort Meade will trade punches in a match Monday night at Fort Humphreys, Va. Eight bouts are on the program.

Phil Furr, Third Corps Area welterweight champion, will be pitted against Chet Wirkowski, hard-punching doughboy from Fort Humphreys. The cofeature brings together Johnny MacDonald, of Fort Meade, and Jimmie O'Neil, of Fort Humphreys.

1931 Nats Finished Third, Faltering at End of Year; West's .333 Led Batters

Injuries to Liska and Judge Were Blows to Johnson's Club.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

AS was the case in the previous season, the Nats again surprised in 1931, only it was with "reverse English," as the billiardists would say. Starting off with Heinie Manush, the big punch, normal again; with the veteran, Harry Rice, adding utility outfield strength and with Catcher "Pinky" Hargrave adding a batting punch in the pinches and when used as a starter Manager Walter Johnson had high hopes of giving Washington another pennant. But third was the best the club could get.

Baseball lost two of its greatest leaders only one day apart. On March 27 E. S. Barnard, American League president, unexpectedly died while the very next day his predecessor in office, Byron Bancroft Johnson, who organized the junior circuit, passed away following a lingering illness. Will Harridge later succeeded Mr. Barnard as American League head.

Injuries Lay Low Liska, Judge.

A club that wins has to have its share of the breaks and the Nats did not get any good ones, while it suffered two mighty bad ones. In the first place Ada Liska, the subway-ball flinger, of whom much was expected, reported at the Biloxi training camp with a sore flipper and it never did get cured. Then, with the season but 16 games old, the veteran first baseman, Joe Judge, was stricken with acute appendicitis in a game at Boston and was out for weeks.

Meanwhile, the Nats, although making a two-team race of it with the Athletics, had had more than their share of other troubles and Pilot Johnson decided to continue Joe Kuhel at first base in the interest of future development, even after the great regular was ready to return to the game.

In spots, the Nats played brilliant ball. They boasted the second longest winning streak of the season, twelve, but faltered after being nine games ahead of the third-place Yankees, with little more than a month to go, and were beaten out for the runner-up berth in New York when they lost three of four games, with only five more to play.

3 Pitchers Won 72 Games for A's.

The Mackmen were simply a little too good. Their three ace pitchers gave them their edge. Grove won 16 in a row while turning in 34 victories out of 35 decisions. He led the league's pitchers in both percentage and effectiveness. With Earnshaw winning 21 and losing 7 and Walberg's record 20 and 12, this trio accounted for 72 victories.

Johnson's moundmen could not even come close to matching this. "General" Crowder won 18 and lost 11 Marberry, 16 and 4; Brown, 15 and 14; Fischer, 13 and 9; Hadley, 11 and 10; Burke, 8 and 3, and Jones, 9 and 10.

Monte Weaver, purchased from the Baltimore Orioles for $25,000, joined the team in the waning days of the season and won his only start, giving a promise which he fulfilled the next season, when he set a new victory-record for "freshmen."

The Nats were fourth in team batting, with West showing the way at a .333 clip. Five others topped the .300-mark, as follows: Hargrave, .323; Dave Harris, .312; Sam Rice .310; Manush, .307 and Cronin, .306 with Buddy Myer just beyond the line which separates the sheep from the goats.

In fielding the Nats led the league. Kuhel, who hit but .269, although he drove in 85 runs, finished far back among the first-sackers, but Myer led the keystone guardians, while Bluge, Cronin and West finished second in their positions, and Spencer ranked third among the catchers.

During the off-season, President Clark Griffith came through with another big trade, sending Pitchers Irving Hadley and "Sad Sam" Jones and Infielder Minter (Sonny Boy) Hayes to the White Sox in exchange for Outfielder Carl Reynolds and Infielder Johnny Kerr.

Cardinals Upset A's in Series.

The St. Louis Cardinals, winning the first two games and the last two, upset the dope by beating the Athletics in the seven-game world's series. Art (The Great) Shires was waived by the Nats to the Boston Braves before the season started. The Indians won ten straight early in the season and later had a losing

Md. Presents Basket Ball, Boxing

Western Md. Invades for 2-Sport Program Tonight.

G. W. Meets St. John; Gallaudet, G. U. Play Away.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE efficacy of twin-bill athletic nights finds further substantiation tonight as Maryland once again snares the center of the spotlight with two events to be staged in Ritchie Coliseum, the spacious hippodrome whose financial condition, recent trials have brought out, is of the same hue as its outside brick construction.

Maryland's basket ball team, ever interesting to regard since it can never be depended upon to play precisely the game you expect to see them play, meets Western Maryland's courtmen, beginning at 8 o'clock.

At the conclusion of the basketing, the boxing teams of the two schools will solemnly parade into a ring and plant the intercollegiate brand of left hook on the intercollegiate brand of aquiline nose. The polite schnozzle-splattering will commence at about 9:30 o'clock

G. W. Five Is Host To St. John's.

Downtown, George Washington University plays St. John's, of Annapolis, in basket ball.

G. W. functions tonight for the first time in three seasons, without the unquestionable guidance of Otts Zahn, whose nasal organ was bent past the stretching point Thursday night in a collision with the solid dome of Vinny Carlin, of Loyola. Ted O'Leary, the G. W. coach, probably will shift Forrest Burgess to guard and slip lean and hungry-looking Bill "Cassius" Noonan into forward, thus elevating the aggregate height of the team a meter or two.

St. John's has a couple of former high school players who dabbled in the game in Washington, notably one of the manifold MacCartees, another of the ubiquitous Cassasas, in addition to Eddie DeLisio. MacCartee went to Tech and the other two to Central. The most important thing about the game is that it is your last chance to see G. W. in action this year, the remaining two games on their schedule being on foriegn courts.

Georgetown plays tonight in Pittsburgh against Carnegie Tech, the runners-up in the Intercollegiate League. Georgetown is next to last. Gallaudet also plays, meeting the Quantico Marines at Quantico, with a good chance of winning a game for 1933.

Cleveland to Open In Old Ball Park

Special to The Washington Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 17.—The Indians will open the 1933 baseball season at Old League Park on April 12 unless a miracle transforms the Cleveland stadium from a current quagmire to a fit site.

The management of the Cleveland Club announced today that opening game seats would be sold for League Park with its limited seating capacity of only 20,000. While the Tribe is performing at its old ball park, Cleveland's $3,000,000 stadium with its 80,000 seating capacity will be idle.

Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, inspected the stadium diamond this afternoon and declared that only a siege of perfect weather, which would enable workmen to complete resodding of the entire playing field, would make it possible for the team to play there.

Frank Van Dellen, groundkeeper, stated that the stadium can not possibly be put in shape by April 12.

At the conclusion of the American League season, the stadium was turned over to football teams. Approximately 25 gridiron games were played and the turf and clay were churned up by cleats. Following the football season it was discovered that a faulty drainage system would have to be relaid.

5,000 to See Navy Boxers Meet Va. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 17.—Devotees of athletics are keyed to a high pitch tonight in anticipation of the "red letter" program of dual competition to be presented by teams of the Annapolis Midshipmen tomorrow afternoon and night.

There will be fourteen contests in eight different branches of sport, in which Navy Varsity and Plebe teams will stack up against representatives of eleven different institutions of the East, New England and the South. In three instances varsity and freshmen teams of the same schools are slated to oppose the Tars. Ten of the invading groups already are on the scene of activities, and are quartered overnight in Bancroft Hall as guests of the regiment of Midshipmen.

The day's big show will get under way, and end with boxing matches, the Navy Plebes taking on Staunton Military Academy of Virginia at 1:30 in the afternoon, while the varsity leather pushers will swap blows with the crack team of University of Virginia at 8 o'clock at night.

Boxing Show Is Sell-Out.

The latter will be the outstanding event of the card, and with a sell out of tickets announced by the Navy Athletic Association, a record throng will assemble in MacDonough Hall to watch the bouts. It is estimated that the throng will number 5,000 and will include upward of 600 adherents of the Virginia Cavaliers.

Next in point of interest to the Navy-Virginia boxing, a double header in swimming and water polo with University of Pennsylvania fish, basket ball with Lehigh, and wrestling with Washington and Lee University will draw major attention from the fans.

Featuring the Virginia boxing match will be the bout between Bobby Goldstein, captain and lightweight entry of the Cavaliers and Hank Miller, who hails from far off Alaska, and in view of the impressive record that has been registered by the Virginia leader, and the fine showing that Miller has made in previous meets, this should be one of the classiest ever staged in a Naval Academy ring.

NAVAL ACADEMY PROGRAM TODAY

Sunday Baseball Law Rejected by Carolina

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Legalization of Sunday baseball in North Carolina was rejected by the General Assembly today as the House heard one of its members charge that "sinister influences" are delaying the Legislature in affording relief to burdened taxpayers.

The House voted, 84 to 25, against the Sullivan bill to allow Sunday baseball for profit.

CORBETT UNCHANGED.

New York, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—The condition of James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, who is critically ill at his home in Bayside, Long Island, underwent no perceptible change within the past 24 hours, his old friend and companion, John Kelleher, said at noon today. He continued to manifest courageous spirit in the face of the doctor's statement that death is inevitable because of the condition of his heart.

G. U. FIVE IDLE DUE TO BUS MISHAP

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 17.—Georgetown University's basket ball team limped into Morgantown tonight at 11:15 o'clock, three hours late for its scheduled game with West Virginia University, resulting in the postponement of the engagement in deference to motor trouble encountered by the Georgetown bus en route.

The repair of the bus engaged the driver and Coach Mesmer's squad for several hours at Winchester, Va., 70 miles out of Washington and they finally proceeded here at low speed which resulted first in the delay and then the postponement of the game.

With the bus undergoing repairs here tonight, the Georgetown party will proceed tomorrow to Pittsburgh, where Pittsburgh University will be met in another Eastern Intercollegiate League game.

Pittsburgh, leading the league, defeated Georgetown in the Hoyas' debut on the court this season and is a favorite to repeat tomorrow despite the improvement of the Georgetown quintet, which has been functioning effectively in recent games, led by the sophomore, Ed Hargaden, who is the league's individual scoring leader.

Brain Studied For Final Verdict

Points Out Inability of Schaaf to Raise Arms in Defense.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—The official verdict as to the direct cause of Ernie Schaaf's death will be "something of a sensation," Dr. Charles G. Norris, chief medical examiner, said today.

He indicated that the Boston heavyweight's death was due more to inability to lift up his arms quickly enough to protect himself than from any blow inflicted.

Dr. Norris, who intends to issue his official verdict on Monday, said he was more convinced than ever that Schaaf had died "of natural causes" and not primarily from any injury inflicted in his bout with Primo Carnera at Madison Square Garden a week ago tonight.

Clot on Brain Called Cause.

The attending physician who operated on Schaaf in a desperate attempt to save his life said that he died of pressure of a blood clot on the brain, as a result of a hemorrhage caused by a blow on the right side of the head.

Dr. Norris emphasized that he is already certain there was no central hemorrhage and no fracture of the skull. There was, he said, a "universal flattening of the brain, a swelling of the entire brain, which immediately made me suspicious when I examined it."

He stressed that he had no criticism of the surgeons who decided to operate because the case was "very confusing," and no blame should be placed on the State Boxing Commission "or anyone else."

Garden Announces Risko-Levinsky.

Meanwhile Madison Square Garden announced that boxing would be resumed next Friday night with King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, meeting Johnny Risko, Cleveland veteran, in the scheduled 10-round main event. They had been scheduled originally to meet tonight, but their match was postponed because of Schaaf's death.

Primo Carnera today sent the following telegram to Schaaf's mother, Mrs. Lucy Schaaf, at Wrentham, Mass.:

"The dearest and most comforting thing I could have received was your telegram. Due to my upset condition I could not attend the funeral of your son but my heart and soul are there with all of you."

Schaaf Is Paid Tribute By Throngs at Burial

Wrentham, Mass., Feb. 17 (A.P.).—All of the honors in the power of a community were paid to Ernie Schaaf today when the inhabitants of this, his town, joined hundreds of notable outsiders at his funeral. A cortege of automobiles, two miles long, escorted the body of the boxer from the Schaaf home to a country church and thence to the cemetery.

Legionnaires stood at attention as the flag-draped hearse drew up to St. Mary's Church.

Two flag bearers, members of the Navy firing squad, and a detail of the town's firemen preceded the gray casket, followed into the edifice by the boxer's parents, his brothers and sisters, Jack Sharkey, heavyweight champion, and the others in the funeral procession.

Whip Applied In Vain to General A

Idealist, With Fator Up, Wins Third as Screech Stops.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 17 (A. P.).—Four horses competed in the featured Brighton Purse here this afternoon and the laurels went to the Goldstream's stud colt Marmion, which put an end to General A's winning streak, the latter trailing the victor by two lengths. Action lost the place by five lengths, with Happy Scot completing the field. Marmion was a well-played second choice, paying $6.50 for $2. The Son of Pot au Feu negotiated the 7 furlongs in 1:24 3-5.

General A. held at odds-on, maintained a daylight lead into the stretch, where Marmion began his challenge on the outside of the pacemaker. Alfred Robertson whipped the General but his mount was not good enough. Marmion, under a smooth hand ride, forged ahead at the eighth pole and widened the gap the remainder of the way. Action apd Happy Scott appeared outmatched.

Circle Roman Scores For Form Players.

The canary and white cross sashes silks of Mrs. W. S. Kilmer, who races under the nom de course of the Fairfields Stable, were borne to their first success by Circle Roman, favorite, in the opening contest. The filly scored by three parts of a length over Bran Muffin, with Three Bees three lengths farther back in the picture. Although carried wide before entering the stretch Circle Roman was good enough to overhaul the leaders and pay $5.40.

Interruption, a daughter of John P. Grier, owned by G. D. Widener, drew a heavy play in the 2-year-olds event and obliged by leading 17 other maidens to the judges. Bittybit was second, two lengths back and three parts of a length before Tomfoolery. The winner dashed right into a good lead and never was menaced, with Bittybit always the chief contender. Tomfoolery ran a good race to gain the short end of the purse, closing ground fast in the last furlong, although forced to the inside. The winner paid $5.80.

Idealist Wins After Screech Stops.

Idealist was a good thing in the third race, cracking down on top by two lengths, with the veteran, Laverne Fator doing the kicking. Uppercut beat Adelaide A. by three lengths for the place, with Screech, the favorite, fourth. Hank Mills had Screech winging out in front, with Daylight to spare over Idealist, but when Fator clucked the latter, the Sir Galahad colt easily drew clear. Screech stopped and allowed Uppercut and Adelaide A. to pass her in the final drive. The winner returned $6.90.

Hamilton, under Jockey Gilbert's strong handling, found a field to his liking in the fifth event, of one mile, out of the chute. The 6-year-old gelded son of Tryster stood a long, hard drive, with Fort Dearborn emerging the winner by a half length. General Court was beaten four lengths for the place. Hamilton was on the head end all the way and his backers received $10.40 for $2.

Twisted Threads tangled up calculations for the talent in the sixth event, registering in easy style by a length and a half to return $22.10. Lucky Racket took the place from Votan by a half length. Twisted Threads followed Votan's pace for six furlongs under wraps, took command without much effort and had enough in reserve to hold Lucky Racket's final bid under control. Votan lasted to save the show from Knee High.

Mrs. Hill Gains Title; Orcutt Bows, 5 and 4

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, who has a 17-year-old son, today defeated Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., defending titlist, to win the Florida women's golf championship.

The margin was unusually high, 5 and 4. Miss Orcutt's game was apparently erratic while her older opponent seemed to have one of her best days.

Mrs. Hill yesterday defeated Kathleen Garnham, the only one of eight invading British golf stars to enter the semi-final round.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FLA., FEBRUARY 17.

Sonny Workman, Washington's No. 1 gift to horse riding, is not being pressed with work here this winter. Sonny is only riding enough to keep in condition and can be depended upon to crack down when the horses move North. In the meanwhile, Gilbert, Bellizzi and Hanford are battling it out for the leading jockey honors at the meeting. Gilbert stands out in the group. Although not as flashy as the other two, the Syrian youth is steady and makes few mistakes. Both Hanford and Bellizzi show only ordinary ability at times. Mills is not taking as many mounts as usual and like Workman seems to be using the meeting as training for the big money tests later on in the season. BILL.

FIRST RACE—IMPEACH has shown enough of late to warrant a top position in this group. The Widener plater should make no mistakes. AFFIRMATIVE was a winging third the last time out and should account for the place ahead of AMERICANA.

THIRD RACE—LEROS has speed enough to take care of what these have to offer. Turned in a splendid effort the last time and I see no reason that this purse should be tossed away. MR. SPONGE takes off weight and should lead home CON AMORE for the second money.

FOURTH RACE—DARTLE, which I dug up before he faced the barrier, showed record time here and can lick DOMINO PLAYER and SPEEDY SKIPPY. All that remains is collecting that $3 mutuel.

FIFTH RACE—I don't believe they can beat CURACAO tomorrow. This one is fit as a fiddle and ready to run. GOLD STEP seems destined to take the place again. KINCSEN'S late rush may earn third cash.

SIXTH RACE—NUTLET looks like the improving sort and I will not be surprised if he comes home with this bacon. NOSE IN and EVEREAIR to battle it out for the runner-up position.

SEVENTH RACE—WISHING STAR likes the distance and has been rested with a race of this kind in view. BRASS MONKEY is dangerous. MAJOR LANPHIER has hopped up a couple of notches recently and will be hard to force out of the pay.

Maryland Park Bows To Hyattsville, 27-20

Surprised by a fighting Maryland Park High School team, Hyattsville High School rallied in the final period of their game yesterday at the Hyattsville Armory to win a 27-20 victory and clinch the Prince Georges County scholastic championship.

Maryland Park battled its host on a point for point basis in the first half, which found Hyattsville leading, 15-14, at the intermission. The teams were deadlocked at 18-18 at the end of the third period and at 20-20 early in the fourth. But Calhoun, Cain and Cogar came through with field goals in the waning minutes of the fray, while Maryland Park was held scoreless, to clinch the verdict.

Columbus U. Defeats Bliss Quintet, 29-7

In a dreary game of basket ball, marked by the failure of the losers to score a single field goal in the entire first half, Columbus University defeated Bliss last night, 29 to 7, at Silver Spring High School Gym.

Columbus led by an 11-to-2 score at the half, Bliss' only points being foul shots by Begor and Bauer. Downey Rice, former Central High center, stood out for Columbus, with 15 points.

BARRY GROUP SEEKS NEW JUDGES

Portner's May Make Change for Battle With Kennedy.

THE ballyhoo blaze enveloping the Barry-Kennedy fight to be committed Tuesday night at Portners' Arena burned brightly last night as C. E. ("Patty") Cornell, general manager of the Washington branch of Reds Barry, Inc., announced that the firm's chief asset would not be permitted to step into the ring unless new judges replaced Denny Hughes and George King, present incumbents. No reason was assigned for the request.

Apprised of Cornell's demands, Matchmaker Frankie Mann intimated that it would be granted after a conference between the rival factions. Mann stated a change of judges would be satisfactory with him, although both King and Hughes are above reproach in the manner in which they have handled previous bouts.

Cornell's original demands included the ousting of Referee Charley Short, but later Benny Ladis, whose brother, "Musky" Jackson, is training and managing Barry in New York, and Patsy Donovan, another stockholder in the red-head, decided that Short would be acceptable.

Jimmy Erwin and Les Kennedy, who comprise the small minority opposing the Barry Brigade, were not aware of their opponents' demands last night, although Mann said he would confer with them on the matter today.

Pacini had a total of seven strikes and 22 spares. He rolled double-header strikes in the final boxes of his second and third games. Incidentally, Rinaldi Tailors, his team, took all three from King's Palace with games of 637, 695 and 608, for a 1,935 total.

C. U. CUB FIVE BEATEN BY CENTRAL

Threat of Freshmen Near End Halted in 29-24 Victory.

WITH Carroll Shore showing the way, Central High School defeated Catholic University Freshmen by a score of 29 to 24 in a hotly contested game played yesterday on the winners' court. Shore led both teams in scoring, with 15 points.

Both teams resorted to close guarding in the first quarter in which Central assumed a 3-2 lead, but the high school champions stepped out and helped themselves to a 16-8 advantage in the second period.

Bernie Lieb, Catholic's rangy center, led an assault on the Central basket that closed considerable ground between the two, bringing the score to 26-22 with Central still leading. Close guarding checked the Brooklanders' drive when it assumed serious proportions.

When the members of the intermediate department of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church School meet tomorrow morning and begin writing the scenario of a three-reel motion picture to be entitled "The Life of Paul," they will institute in that school another modern method of imparting biblical truths to youthful minds. When the script has been completed, the twelve scenes in the four acts of the play will be "shot" in nearby Virginia, along the shore of the Potomac and in the church building.

The cast of characters will include: Raymond Davies as "Paul," Ruth Warren as "Stephen" and "the Jailer's Wife," John Baldwin as "the Father of Saul" and "the Judge," Mary Jane Backenstoss as "the Mother of Saul" and "Ananias," Joseph Marzolf as Gamaliel" and "Silas," Catherine Lewis as a slave girl and a guard, John Marzolf as "Agrippa" and the ruler, Donald Stuart as "Barnabas" and "Timothy," Eleanor Hammer as the jailer and the youngest son, Barbara Pipes as Saul's sister and the chief rabbi, and Margaret Allen as the wife of Agrippa and a magician.

The Rev. J. A. McCambridge announces that the revival meetings which have been in progress since February 7 are to continue indefinitely. The unusual delivery of Rev. Mr. Newgent's sermons has caused the church to be overtaxed for seats and many have been turned away.

OUR OWN RIOT NEWS.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Throngs of former millionaires staged a demonstration in the streets here today, demanding fair treatment and the square deal. Jervis H. Bottomsby, former copper king, self appointed leader of the disturbers, addressed the crowd, urging that they get together and insist that in the present crisis somebody pay a little attention to their sorrowful plight.

"Things have been getting worse and worse with us for the last three years," he said. "Little did we ever think we'd be in the position we are in today. Yet in all the newspaper stories not a voice is raised in our behalf."

Banners were displayed, carrying such inscriptions as "Capital Demands Fair Play" "Give America's New Poor a Break" and "We Ask Bread and the Government Says 'Let Them Eat Polo Ponies!'"

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The worst fears of the authorities, a riot of the former rich, took place in Park avenue early today. The police said they had never seen anything like it.

The signal for the outbreak seemingly came when a former internationally famous financier drove his sixteen cylinder limousine to the curb at Eighty-first street and upon alighting was seen to be attired only in a shabby topcoat. He had no pants or shoes.

Almost immediately similar incidents were staged. At Park avenue and Seventy-eighth street the bronze doors of a fashionable apartment hotel swung open and out rushed a dozen former business magnates poorly clad and crying. "Bread! Bread!"

The mayor promised that a Millionaires' Relief Association would be organized at once. "New York little knows the pitiable plight of its citizens hopelessly involved in penthouse and twenty-two room suite leases entered into the pre-depresion era," he admitted.

Tough assignments are my order
And no hard work frightens me.
I will tackle any job, but
There is one from which I'll flee;
It's collecting all the money
That is owed the R. F. C.!

Smith Building Renamed Bowen

Bricklayers' and Plasterers' Union Honors Its President Emeritus.

The name of the Smith Building, nine-story and basement brick, steel and limestone office structure at 815-817 Fifteenth street northwest, has been changed to the Bowen Building, in honor of William J. Bowen, president emeritus, Bricklayers and Plasterers International Union of America, the organization now owning the property.

Metal letters spelling its new title were placed yesterday on the front of this former home of the defunct mortgage firm of F. H. Smith Co., in the center of the city's financial district. The building, which has an assessed value of $659,920, was bought at auction for $355,000 by Robert T. Highfield, vice president and cashier, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, as attorney in fact for Richard J. Gray, treasurer of the union which operates the building and will use two floors of it as its national headquarters. Headquarters of the union, formerly in Indianapolis, were moved to this city in 1925 and now are located at 1415-1417 K street northwest.

The building was erected by the F. H. Smith Co. in 1922, J. H. De Sibour having been its architect and R. P. Whitty Co. the builder. With a maximum depth of 139 feet and a width of 49, the structure contains 120 offices, a handsome banking room, mezzanine and safe deposit vaults.

District Commissioners Told of Maryland Parks

The District Commissioners and members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday listened to a report on the Maryland parks situation by Irving C. Root, engineer of the Maryland commission, and Curtis Walker, appraiser.

Earlier in the day Col. D. H. Sawyer, director of the Federal Employment Stabilization Board, told the gathering that present conditions offer an opportunity for a long-time program of planning for municipal works. Col. Sawyer illustrated his talk with lantern slides.

INAUGURAL DETAILS PLEASE ROOSEVELT; FUNDS ARE SOUGHT

No change in the inaugural program was suggested yesterday by President-elect Roosevelt in the conference which he had with Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Roosevelt inaugural committee. Admiral Grayson, who made the trip to Baltimore on the Roosevelt special, said on his return that all of the plans heretofore made would be carried out.

Subscription to the inaugural guarantee fund are still coming in steadily and the fund is well on its way to completion, according to Lloyd B. Wilson, chairman of the inaugural finance committee.

Mr. Wilson said, however, that it is the desire of the inaugural committee that participation in the fund be as widespread as possible, since the entire city will be the host to its thousands of visitors.

More Subscriptions Sought.

"Undoubtedly," Mr. Wilson stated, "there are a great many individuals and firms who wish to subscribe, but who have not yet had an opportunity to do so. The finance committee is anxious to complete its work within the next few days, and those who contemplate subscribing are requested to send in their subscriptions promptly.

"The progress of the inaugural plans continues to encourage the committee to believe that it will be possible to return to subscribers the full amount of their subscriptions."

Inquiries which have been received by the general entertainment committee indicate that the proposal to hold a band contest on inauguration night have been well received. More than half a dozen bands have communicated with John W. Childress. Mr. Childress said that if ten or twelve bands signify their intention of entering the contest it would be held. It is proposed to erect a band stand in the neighborhood of the Sherman statue, south of the Treasury, so that the spectators might be seated in the few stands which had already been erected in that vicinity.

Glee Club Concert.

It was also announced that Chief Mad Wolf, manager for Chief Yowlache, had informed the general entertainment committee that the Indian barytone would appear at the promenade concert to be held for the general public at the Pan-American Union on the night of March 2.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee, announced yesterday that the George Washington Glee Club, composed of 80 mixed voices, under the direction of Dr. Robert H. Harmon, would be a feature of the concert which will be held in connection with the inaugural ball. This feature of the ball will start at 8 o'clock on the lower floor of the Washington Auditorium.

Baltimore Unable to Comply.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police and vice chairman of the public order committee, said yesterday that Baltimore officials had told him that they could not supply 200 uniformed patrolmen to aid local police and marines in handling the March 4 crowds. He said that he would make other arrangements to get the policemen—probably from Philadelphia.

Large cities have been asked to send an aggregate of 60 detectives to aid in the inaugural policing and the protection of the new President. Brown asked officials in Boston, New York, Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland and other cities to send detectives "acquainted with both the criminal and the radical element."

Police to Prevent Red Assemblage

Any attempt by Communists to stage an unpermitted demonstration at the District Building today will be stopped, Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown said yesterday. No permit has been secured nor has there been application for one, by the Communists.

"Their only desire is to get publicity," Maj. Brown said. "They make extravagant claims that 10,000 will appear, and I am sure that if any at all appear it will be a mere handful. Their only hope is that their so-called demonstration will get publicity for them."

The proposed demonstration, according to announcements from Communistic sources, is to be a "mighty prelude" to a similar demonstration on March 4.

Kaufman Addresses Advertisers.

The old river steamer, Charles Macalester, which has been forced by the trend of modern progress to cease operations on the Potomac. The Commissioners yesterday canceled the Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall Steamboat Co.'s lease at the Seventh street wharves.

Boulevard to Mt. Vernon Has Ruined Business of Boat.

Young and old, the citizens of Washington will soon mourn the loss of an old friend. Year after year waters of the Potomac have churned in the wake of a veteran river craft, loaded fore and aft with gay laughing merrymaker bound for Marshall Hall and Mount Vernon. But an untimely and most fitting end has come. The "Charlie Mac" is going.

Modern progress has been too much. In former days the river steamer Charles Macalester was about the most popular transportation to pointe down the Potomac River. But now there is a beautiful boulevard, and an old side-paddle steamer is far too slow.

Words to this effect were placed before the District Commissioners yesterday in a petition to cancel the lease of the Mount Vernon & Marshall Hall Steamboat Co. on wharf property at the foot of Seventh street southwest.

Through R. M. Brennan, chairman of the District Wharf Committee, Frederick Mertens, president of the company, told the Commissioners how the new Mount Vernon boulevard had practically ruined his trade. They canceled the lease, effective March 1. It was due to expire May 31, 1934.

Mr. Mertens last night declined to discuss future plans of his company, but said that within 10 days he would have "startling news."

The "Charlie Mac" is not only known in this vicinity but throughout the country. Thousands of visitors have boarded the old steamer for the water trip to Mount Vernon. Until recently the boat was popular for moonlight excursions, but a larger and more modern craft was placed into operation by a rival concern.

Since 1890 the old side-paddle steamer has plied up and down the Potomac River. She was built the same year in Wilmington, Del., and has been in continuous service since.

But laughter and fun have not alone ruled the old craft's decks. Tragedy too has ridden the short trips up and down the river. Back in 1921 a high school youth was killed on an upper deck as his class chartered the boat for the ride to Mount Vernon. And only last year a dairy company excursion ended with the passengers stricken with food poisoning.

The decks and alleys will still ring with joyful sounds, however, when the old "Charlie Mac" steams down the river on her last trip.

Emergency Lunch Directors Are Active in Thorough Survey of Schools.

The emergency committee, organized by the Parent-Teacher associations for the supplementary feeding of children in the public schools, is already receiving donations from local parent-teacher associations and other groups and persons, it was announced yesterday.

The committee, which is custodian of a central fund, will distribute this money on reports of principals of schools and local presidents of associations on the needs in their particular schools. The superintendent of schools has asked for these reports. The needs of the schools will be filled so far as the funds permit.

Some donations have already been received, but it is hoped that more will be forthcoming, as those schools which were formerly able to care for their own cases out of the small surpluses are now finding themselves faced with a growing problem due to the decreased number of pupils able to pay for their own milk.

The committee is headed by Mrs. Joseph Sanders, fifth vice president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools.

Many distinguished physicians and surgeons will be present and a notable group of guests of honor will be at the speaker's table. The society's president, Dr. John W. Reed, will preside.

Air Award

Gen. Foulois Is Presented With Mackay Trophy for 1931 Acts.

For his outstanding flight leadership during the Army Air Corps exercises and maneuvers in the spring of 1931, Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, yesterday was presented with the Mackay Trophy by Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association.

The Mackay Trophy, the award of which is limited to flying officers of the United States Army, has been presented annually for 23 years. It was presented by Clarence Mackay in 1912 to the Aero Club of America, but for some years past the National Aeronautic Association has acted as custodian of the trophy.

The board of officers designated to decide on the 1931 award of the trophy recognized the flight leadership of Gen. Foulois during the 1931 Air Corps maneuvers as meriting special recognition, since these maneuvers constituted the largest concentration of military aircraft in the annals of the Air Corps, involving a total flying mileage running well over 1,000,000 miles, and a flying time running into thousands of hours, without a single serious accident to the Army fliers.

Friends See R. F. C. Loan for District

Mrs. Norton and Capper Hope for Passage of Relief Permit.

Hope for enactment at this session of a bill enabling the District government to borrow up to $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was expressed yesterday by Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District Committee, and Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee.

Senator Capper's committee already has reported the measure, and it is awaiting action on the Senate's unanimous consent calender. In the House the measure was referred to the Banking and Currency Committee, before which it is still pending.

Mrs. Norton plans to confer today with Chairman Henry B. Steagall and other members of the banking and currency group, in an effort to get early action. She said she is heartily in favor of this bill, although opposed to the principle of encouraging public charity on a professional scale.

Georgetown Debaters Win From Manhattan

WHITE HOUSE STAND JOB TO BE RESUMED

Contractor Refuses to Supplant One Union Crew With Another.

Work on the inaugural grandstands on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue near the White House will be resumed today, R. P. Whitty, the contractor, declared last night after his refusal to supplant one crew of union men by another crew.

The cessation of the work came, Mr. Whitty said, when he refused to replace the crew which had been receiving the union wage of $11 a day, and he was at a loss to understand the reason for the replacement request.

Officers of the carpenter union could not be reached last night to give any explanation. The full crew will return to work tomorrow, Mr. Whitty expects.

The stand is almost completed and is opposite the court of honor from which President-elect Roosevelt will review the inaugural parade. This stand has been practically sold out by the inaugural committee.

Waddy B. Wood, chairman of the Inaugural Committee on Grandstands and Decorations, would not discuss the affair pending negotiations between the contractor and the union officials.

Washington Company Named in $5,000 Suit

Charging that its copyrighted name, the "Washingtonian" was being infringed upon by a weekly publication known as "Washingtonia," the Washingtonian Publishing Co. yesterday in the District Supreme Court obtained from Justice Joseph W. Cox an order requiring Brian Brown and Duncan Hasell, trading as the "Washingtonia Publishing Co., Inc." to appear February 28 to show why they should not be enjoined from using that name.

The petition also stated that the business of the Washingtonian Co. had been injured to the extent of $5,000 and it asked for a money judgment in that amount. Attorneys Gibbs L. Baker and Alan B. David appeared for the complainants.

COMMISSION TODAY WILL MAKE PUBLIC NEW POWER RATES

Keech Indorses Adoption of Single Charge or Two-Bracket Scale.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech yesterday urged the Public Utilities Commission to adopt a single charge or at least a two-bracket rate for the ordinary domestic electric lighting service so that a greater number of consumers may benefit by whatever share of $562,000 is applied to this schedule.

While expressing the belief that one of the schedules proposed Thursday at the public hearing by the Potomac Electric Power Co. was on the whole equitable, Mr. Keech said he was opposed to the four-bracket scheme suggested for schedule A.

Under the most favorable plan, rates for domestic lighting would run: 3.9 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 50 hours, 3.6 cents for the next 50, 2.9 cents for the next 50 and 2 cents for each kilowatt hour over 150.

Would Aid Householders.

"If there can not be a single charge for the whole schedule, I believe there should not be over two rates," Mr. Keech said. "The break should occur at 50 kilowatt hours, and the secondary rate should be low enough to enable the average household customer to benefit rather than the very few large users of current.

"While I realize that the four-bracket arrangement is perhaps more technically sound, I think that in such a time as this the small home owner or occupant should be first considered."

Initial Plan Expected.

The commission will make public the new rates today, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, stated. It is expected that the initial plan proposed by the power company, providing close to $100,000 for schedule A consumers, will be followed, although some changes may be made in the bracket breaks.

It is considered certain that the commission will consent to the approximately $150,000 reduction in street lighting charges, thus leaving but a little over $400,000 for private subscribers.

Members of Congress Aid Needy to Get Shoes

A shabbily dressed man appeared at the office of "The Old Lady Who Lives in a Shoe" yesterday with a letter from a senator asking that he be provided with a pair of shoes to take the place of the battered, soleless one he was wearing.

Just as he was ready to leave, without a pair, because there was not a serviceable man's shoe to give him, a package arrived at the office. It was a pair of shoes from Representative J. Walter Lambeth, of North Carolina. They fitted him.

Ralph L. Rose, 65, of 430 Third street northwest, suffered severe lacerations on his scalp and a possible skull fracture when struck by an automobile late yesterday on E street between Third and Fourth streets northwest. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Police said the car was driven by Anthony Grelli, 24, of 1930 Fourth street northeast.

U. S. Rests Monday In Payroll Murder

Detective to Be Grilled as He Introduces Alleged Confessions of Four.

The Government Monday will rest its cases against four men charged with the killing of Elner H. Ecklund during an attempted $2,000 pay roll robbery on January 20 near the new House Office Building, Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins said last night.

Only one more witness, Detective Sergt. John C. Dalgiish, will be called by the Government to introduce the alleged confessions to the crime made by Albert E. Cash, Everett Lee Blackwell, Fewel Workman and Claude Myers.

The case will probably go to the jury about the middle of next week. There are seven lawyers for the defense, who will cross-examine Dalgiish when he takes the stand. Indications are that the defense will take about two days.

Zoo Sadness

There were two deaths and one birth at the Zoo yesterday.

The nativity of a baby eland cost the mother her life. She died in giving birth to the infant antelope. It is being bottle-raised.

The other death was a tragedy of old age. A bull bison, too elderly to maintain his position in the corral, was gored to death by a younger bull.

TWO ARE CONVICTED IN WATCHMAN DEATH

Slayers Will Go to Chair; Remanded for Sentence Next Friday.

Within four weeks after the body of William Simms, colored night watchman of the Dickey Brothers feed store, was found lying on the floor of the company's office, two colored men, Joe Goodman and George M. Pitmond, have been convicted of his murder.

A jury in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat late yesterday returned a verdict finding both Pitmond and Goodman guilty of first degree murder, a finding that automatically carries with it the death penalty. Both men were remanded for sentence next Friday.

Through Assistant United States Attorneys Irvin Goldstein and John J. Sirica, the Government showed that Pitmond and Goodman belabored Simms with an iron bar. They obtained entrance to the office by telling the watchman they were cold and, when admitted, robbed him and then beat him to death.

Simms' body was found on the morning of January 22. Goodman was arrested the same day by railroad police, and Pitmond was arrested later in nearby Virginia. Both men made statements, accusing the other of striking the blows which killed Simms.

G. W. U. Alumnus Seeks License to Wed by Mail

James Pickrell Hume, formerly of Washington, has applied by mail at Greenwich, Conn., for a marriage license to wed Miss Marion McFadden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, of Chicago, according to the Associated Press.

It was recently ruled by the Attorney General of Connecticut that mail applications for a license may be received but the contracting parties must appear in person before it is issued. The law requires a five-day notice of intention to marry. Hume is a graduate of George Washington University Law School. His father, Thomas L. Hume, stock and bond broker, lives at 2113 S street.

Gaston Intercedes For Theft Suspect

The man, John G. Zicopoulos, was identified by Parker as the man who held him up at pistol point in the 1200 block of K street northwest, Wednesday night and robbed him of 75 cents.

After Capt. Gaston said he believed Zicopoulos innocent, Judge John P. McMahon continued the case until today. A woman who lives at the address in front of which Parker said the holdup occurred will be summoned as a witness. Zicopoulos denied all knowledge of the holdup.

Brig. Gen. James K. Parsons, now in command of the 23d Brigade, Fort William McKinley, will replace Gen. Ford in command of the 5th Brigade at Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Mrs. Gillie Reynolds, 32, of Takoma Park, Md., held for the grand jury in the case of Arrie Blackstone, colored of 5371 Hayes street northeast, who died early yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital from injuries suffered in an auto accident on February 7.

EXTRAVAGANCE BASE CHARGED TO CLAUSES IN U.S. CONSTITUTION

Most of the extravagance of the National Government can be traced to the useless and unnecessary expenditures made under the commerce and general welfare clauses in the Constitution of the United States, Clarence E. Martin, president of the American Bar Association, told the Federal Bar Association at its thirteenth annual reception and dinner yesterday at the Hotel Mayflower.

"The clause, designed to protect the small merchant and trader, stabilize business and war against special favor, has been the excuse for untold millions of expenditures, part of which have been unnecessarily used to create competition with existing lines of business," Mr. Martin said.

"Government engages in various forms of business under the general welfare clause," Mr. Martin said, "but subsidy to all in Government is one thing and invasion into the business realm of a few is another. Like useless river navigation, these governmental agencies come into direct competition with industries to which the States look for taxes to run the local governments.

Penalty of Extravagance.

"We are now reaping the reward of such extravagant and useless legislation. These activities are costing so much that the Government is finding it practically impossible to finance them, and Congress, because of the influence upon it, seems to be unable to cut the appropriations, much less abolish any of them."

Prof. Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the Law School at the University of Pennsylvania, told the audience that one of the outstanding movements in law at the present time is the work of the American Law Institute which is preparing a "Model Code of Criminal Procedure," basis of a modernization of the administration of criminal justice in any State.

Other enterprises being carried on by various bar associations is the critical and constructive examination of the law of each State to prepare State annotations to accompany the restatements in the various States, and an examination of the law in operation, Mr. Goodrich said.

Supplanted Employes.

A plea for Government employes who will be replaced with the incoming administration to support the Government to their fullest extent was made by Seth W. Richardson, Assistant Attorney General of the United States.

The spirit in which the great army of incoming and outgoing Government workers will do their utmost to support their Government proves conclusively that this is a Government for the people and by the people, Mr. Richardson said.

Messages of regret at being unable to attend the meeting were sent by President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt.

House Will Be Asked Today to Restore Measure to Budget Status.

The District's fight to restore the local supply bill to its budget status will be resumed in the House at noon today, with minority members of the House District Appropriations Committee championing the local cause.

A vote will be ordered on Representative Howard W. Smith's amendment to permit children of Government employes and Navy and Army officials, stationed outside the District, to attend local schools free of charge.

Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, will continue his efforts to increase items of appropriation to amounts asked by the District Commissioners. In view of setbacks on six amendments Thursday, the prospect is none too bright. Liberals on both sides will unite in an effort to reinsert $625,000 for local unemployment relief in the last six months of 1933.

Capt. Collins Speaks To Glover Park Group

Although he declared the Seventh Precinct is freer from crime than any section of the city, Capt. Maurice Collins, commander of the precinct, told the Glover Park Citizens Association last night there is still a lack of police personnel assigned to this station.

The association, meeting at the Industrial Home School, also had as speaker A. H. Gregory, treasurer of the Federation of Citizens Associations. Pointing out that 20,000 District real estate owners out of 100,000 were unable last year to pay their taxes, Mr. Gregory reviewed the bill now before Congress authorizing the borrowing of $2,500,000 for Washington relief work. The federation recently refused to indorse it.

Three Men Are Hurt In Triple Auto Crash

Two men were seriously injured and a third slightly hurt in a triple automobile collision last night on the Paint Branch Bridge, near College Park, Md. The cars of Wallace Angel, 23, 308 Alabama avenue southeast, and Harry Bochner, 35, of Baltimore, collided head-on, and the automobile of Charles Stewart, 30, Wilmington, Del., crashed into the wreckage.
